3696a. Shares deposited as security for debit balance owing to bankrupt—Unauthorised sale by bankrupt.]—Deft. opened a speculative account with a firm of stockbrokers & deposited with them as security for any debit balance which might from time to time be owing by him on that account the indicia of title to various bonds & shares, including certain rubber shares. In 1920 the firm sold the rubber shares without the knowledge or authority of deft., who was kept in ignorance of the sale till after the bkpcy. of the firm. On Feb. 16, 1922, a receiving order was made against the firm & they were adjudicated bkpt. In Feb. 1923, the trustee in bkpcy. of the firm rendered deft. a final account, which, after giving credit to deft. for the proceeds of the sale of the shares, showed a balance due from deft. In an action to recover that balance the trustee claimed that the rights of the parties ought to be adjusted under the mutual credits clause of 1914 Act, as at the date of the receiving order. The judge, in ordering an account to be taken, directed that the value of the shares, to be ascertained when the account was certified, that being the date when the shares ought to have been returned to deft., should be set off against the claim of the trustee :—Held : the brokers could not have maintained an action for their debt if they were not in a position to hand over the shares against payment, & the trustee in bkpcy. had no higher right ; no question of set-off arose under the mutual credits clause of 1914 Act, the right of deft. being to a return of the shares in specie ; & in the special circumstances of the case the order of the judge was correct.—ELLIS & CO.'S TRUSTEE v. DIXON-JOHNSON, [1925] A. 3740a. ——.]—Applt., the managing director of a co. which was insolvent, recovered judgment against the co. for repayment of money lent by him to the co. Shortly afterwards, the provisional liquidator of the co., which was subsequently, in Apr. 1925, ordered to be wound up, paid to applt. the amount for which he had recovered judgment, & in Apr. 1926, an order was made in the winding up upon applt. to repay to the liquidator that amount, on the ground that the payment to him by the liquidator was void as a fraudulent preference. In consequence of applt.'s non-compliance with that order, a bkpcy. notice was served upon him, & a receiving order made against him, the registrar refusing to allow applt. to set off against the amount he had been so ordered to repay to the liquidator the sum for which he had recovered judgment against the co.:—Held: applt. had not, at the date of the receiving order, any valid or effectual right of set-off in respect of the sum he had been ordered to repay to the liquidator.—Re A Debtor (82 of 1926), [1927] 1 Ch. 410; 136 L. 3776a. —— —— ——.]—By deed dated Mar. 16, 1906, L. bound himself by covenant to pay an annuity of £108 to C. from & after the death of her husband (which occurred on Nov. 13, 1923); & F., the father of the covenantor, guaranteed payment of the annuity. On Aug. 21, 1911, F. died; &, under his will, L. became entitled on the death of testator's widow to a one-fifth share of the ultimate residue of his estate. On Oct. 17, 1929, L. was adjudicated bkpt. On Oct. 30 C. proved in the bkpcy., & early in 1930 her proof was admitted for the sum of £673 17*s.* 8*d.*, & she received by way of dividend in respect thereof £134 15*s.* 7*d.* Ignoring that proof, the exors. proceeded to pay certain instalments of the annuity amounting to £344 9*s.* 10*d.*, & on Sept. 8, 1932, they expended the sum of £849 on the purchase for her of an annuity of £108.

On Jan. 18, 1931, the widow of F. died, & thereupon the trustee in bkpcy. became entitled to payment of the share of the bkpt. in the residuary estate of F., subject to such right as the exors. had to have the estate of the surety indemnified out of the share therein of L., the principal debtor, against any claim upon that estate by C. In this action the trustee in bkpcy. claimed a declaration that the exors. were not entitled (as they claimed to be) to retain out of the said share of the bkpt., on account of any unsatisfied liability of the bkpt., as the principal debtor, to indemnify the estate of the surety, any sum in excess of the sum of £539 2*s.* 1*d.*, being the amount of C.'s proof less the dividends of £134 15*s.* 7*d.*:—Held: on the principle recognised in In re Melton, the exors. were, notwithstanding the bkpcy., entitled to apply the share in their hands of the principal debtor in discharging his obligation to indemnify the estate of their testator, the surety; & that, having regard to the fact that C. proved in the bkpcy., they were entitled to retain out of that share the sum for which C. proved less the amount received by her by way of dividend, but were not entitled to retain any sum in excess thereof.—Re Lennard, Lennard's Trustee v. Lennard, [1934] Ch. 235; 103 L. 3781a.—— Property conveyed to settlement trustees—Against unpaid sum covenanted to be brought into settlement.]—Upon the marriage of the bkpt. in 1802, the estate of the wife, consisting of freehold, copyhold & leasehold lands, were conveyed to the use of the bkpt. & his heirs, who covenanted with the trustees within six months after the marriage, to pay to them £4,000 upon the trustes of the settlement. The trustees never demanded payment. In 1806 the bkpt. sold part of the freehold premises, & he & his wife levied a fine of the whole, declaring the uses of that part which was sold to the purchaser, but without making any declaration as to the remainder. In 1812 the bkpt. conveyed all his estates to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. In 1813 the bkpt. covenanted that he & his wife would levy a fine to the uses declared in the deed of 1812, & a fine was levied accordingly. The wife never surrendered the copyhold premises pursuant to the settlement 1802. In 1814 the commission issued, & the husband was declared a bkpt., his execution of the trust deed 1812 being the act of bkpcy. The trustees of the settlement proved the £4,000 under the commission & signed the bkpt.'s certificate:—Held: the trustees on behalf of the wife & children of the pkpt., had a lien upon the estates thereby conveyed & remaining unsold by the bkpt. to the amount of the £4,000.—

3781b. —— Dividend—Against sums paid by debtor on contract of guarantee.]—F., having guaranteed advances by certain banks to the T. Assocn., in which he was interested, subsequently executed two deeds of arrangement in favour of his creditors. The Assocn. having gone into liquidation, the liquidator lodged a proof against F.'s estate in respect of sums due by F. to the Assocn. The trustee of F.'s estate rejected the proof & claimed to set off the various sums which had been advanced by the banks to the Assocn. for which F. had given his personal guarantee. At that time, although one or more of the banks had proved against F.'s estate under the guarantees, nothing had been paid to any of them. The Assocn. was admitted to prove against F.'s estate for a very large sum, & the trustee declared an interim dividend of 1*s.* in the pound. The banks were paid the dividend in respect of their admitted proofs, which also amounted in the aggregate to a considerable sum. The sums constituting the amount of the banks' proofs represented the amount of the Assocn.'s debt which had been guaranteed by F. The question arose whether the trustee of F.'s estate was under the circumstances entitled to pay to the liquidator of the Assocn. the sum representing the interim dividend declared in respect of the admitted proof. The matter came before the ct. by way of motion on behalf of the trustee, the question being whether this declared dividend was properly payable to the liquidator of the Assocn. or the trustee was entitled to withhold payment of all or any part thereof. On behalf of the Assocn. it was urged that the previous proceedings reported in Re Fenton, Ex p. Fenton Textile Assocn., Ltd., No. 3656a, ante, had concluded the matter, that the question was now res judicata, & that, notwithstanding the payment to the banks of the amount of the dividend since that decision, the liquidator of the Assocn. was entitled to the full dividend in respect of the Assocn.'s admitted proof:—Held: (1) the question raised by the motion had not been determined by the Ct. of Appeal in the previous proceedings; & (2) the claim by the trustee to withhold the payment of any part of the dividends payable in respect of the Assocn.'s proof failed. The rule against double proof afforded an answer to the trustee's claim to retain the dividends on the admitted proof of the Assocn. so long as any part of the debt due to the banks remained unsatisfied.—Re FENTON (No. 2), Ex p. FENTON TEXTILE ASSOCN., LTD., [1932] 1 Ch. 178; 146 L. 4353a. —— —— Debt left on deposit with debtors.]—A creditor for a sum of £100,000 of a firm of merchant bankers in May, 1918, agreed with the debtors to leave the debt on deposit with them until Jan. 1932, at interest, with commission to be paid to nominees of the creditor—namely, O. & his family ; & it was further agreed that O. should be credited with a share of the firm's profits, which in fact he subsequently drew from the firm. In July, 1920, the debt was, by the direction of the creditor, transferred in the books of the debtors to F., who agreed with the debtors to leave the debt on deposit with them until Jan. 1932, upon the conditions expressed in the former agreement, as if F.'s name had been inserted therein instead of the name of the original creditor. On Feb. 24, 1926, F. transferred the debt in equity to O., & on Mar. 2, 1926, the debtors had notice of that assignment. On Mar. 15, 1926, a receiving order was made against the debtors on their own petition, & shortly afterwards they were adjudicated bkpts. Between Mar. 2, 1926, & the date of that order F. became indebted to the firm in the sum of £15,000 for moneys expended by the firm between those dates in taking up accommodation bills drawn by F. on & accepted by the firm for which, as between F. & the firm, F. through not having supplied the necessary funds, was liable, F.'s liability arising in every case from contractual liabilities undertaken by F. towards the firm at dates earlier than Mar. 2, 1926 :—Held : upon the proper construction of the agreement of May, 1918, the creditor did not advance money to the debtors on a contract that she should receive a share of the profits of their business within Partnership Act, 1890 (c. 39), s. 2 (3) (d), with the result that O.'s proof for the £100,000 was not liable to be postponed to the claims of the other creditors.—Re PINTO LEITE & NEPHEWS, Ex p. DES OLIVAES (VISCONDE), [1929] 1 Ch. 221 ; 98 L. 4372a. Creditors for annual interest—Appropriation of dividends.]—In cases where the Official Receiver is acting as trustee, an arrangement exists between the Board of Inland Revenue & the Bkpcy. Dept. whereby creditors for annual interest are entitled to prove gross, & to appropriate any dividends received in the bkpcy. against principal until 20*s.* in the £ thereon has been paid. Such arrangement was not intended to apply only where the trustee is an Official Receiver, but also to outside trustees, & is likewise applicable to cases of composition or schemes of arrangement under the Bkpcy. Acts.—Re BEECHAM WELLES v. TRUSTEE, [1934] B. & C. R. 138.

4377a. Final dividend—Duty to give notice—Sufficiency of proof of posting.]—On Jan. 30, 1933, the trustee in bkpcy. wrote to the creditors asking for a proof of their debt. On Feb. 24, the trustee wrote again saying that he understood that the creditors had a charge upon certain land of the bkpt. & asked for particulars. The creditors replied with some details of the charge, but put in no proof. In Nov. 1935, the creditors wrote again, & in Feb. 1936, a proof was put in. The creditors denied that they had received the statutory notice under 1914 Act, s. 67, which the trustee proved he had posted on Dec. 10, 1933. The creditors alleged as the reason for their delay that they believed a negotiation was in progress for the sale of the land :—Held : (1) proof of posting was sufficient compliance with sect. 67, & the creditors were not entitled to claim ; (2) in the exceptional circumstances of the case the creditors should be given seven days in which to establish the claim upon paying the costs of the motion.—Re PAVYER, BROWN, SON & VARDY v. TRUSTEE, [1936] 1 All E. 4637a. Admission at preliminary examination—On criminal charge of misappropriating funds.]—The accused, who was a trustee under a will, was charged with having in Mar. 1916, fraudulently converted to his own use certain shares deposited with him by a co-trustee. In an affidavit filed by the accused in defence to proceedings for an account commenced against him by the co-trustee in the Ch. Div. the accused swore that he had, with the approval of his co-trustee, invested the capital in his own business. Subsequently, in his preliminary examination in bkpcy., he made admissions to the Official Receiver in regard to the disposition of the capital by him. He was indicted for fraudulent conversion as a trustee under Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 21, but the judge, on his notice being brought to the fact that that Act was not in force at the time when the offence was alleged to have been committed, allowed the indictment to be amended by the substitution of Larceny Act, 1861 (c. 96), s. 80, for the later statute. The two statutes define the offence in almost precisely the same words :—Held : the admissions in the preliminary examination in bkpcy. were not admissions made "in any compulsory examination or deposition before any court on the hearing of any matter in bkpcy.," & could, therefore, be given in evidence at the trial without infringing Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 43 (3).—R. v. TUTTLE (1929), 140 L. 4665a. —— Necessary before other side entitled to refer to contents.]—On June 29, 1923, resps., having received from bkpt. an order for goods, on the same day delivered them to bkpt. together with an invoice bearing the same date, which subsequently at bkpt.'s request was post-dated to July 10. On July 20, bkpt., although fully realising his insolvency, sent to resps. & to 107 other creditors cheques which were all post-dated to July 31 in settlement of their several accounts. On July 31 bkpt. gave notice to his creditors that he was about to suspend payment. Not one of those post-dated cheques was paid on presentation; but on July 30, the day preceding the act of bkpcy., bkpt. paid in cash to resps., who had no knowledge of bkpt.'s financial difficulties, the amount he owed them less discount. On Aug. 30, 1923, on a creditor's petition presented on Aug. 3, an order of adjudication was made against bkpt. Upon a motion by the trustee in bkpcy. for a declaration that the payment to resps. was a fraudulent preference under 1914 Act, s. 44 (1), resps. filed an affidavit in opposition, which contained statements which revealed a voluntary offer on July 30 on the part of bkpt. to resps. to pay the amount due to them in cash; & the question was then raised whether the trustee had the right, which he claimed, to read those statements as admissions by resps. of the absence of pressure & of the entirely voluntary nature of the payment :—Held : (1) the practice in the Bkpcy. Ct., differing in this respect from the practice in the Ch. Div., was that where an affidavit had been filed by a resp. to an application, applt. was only entitled to refer to the contents thereof after resp. on opening his case had elected to read it; (2) where a bkpt. in imminent expectation of bkpcy. voluntarily pays a particular creditor with the result of giving him a preference in fact, & the reason for such payment is unexplained, a primâ facie case of fraudulent preference is established; therefore, the trustee having proved a primâ facie case of fraudulent preference & the creditors having withdrawn their affidavit in opposition, & there being therefore no evidence to the contrary, the trustee was entitled to succeed on his application.—Re COHEN, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1924] 2 Ch. 515; 94 L. The position of one of the creditors, if the scheme had been approved, would have been far more serious than that of the other two, & the solrs. engaged a leading counsel to appear for him. The application was dismissed, & the registrar ordered that the costs of the proceedings be taxed & paid out of the bkpt.'s estate. The taxing master, being of opinion that there should be no discrimination between the three creditors, disallowed the whole of the costs incurred in briefing leading counsel:—Held: the taxing master ought to have considered the position of each creditor separately &, in the circumstances of the case, have allowed the costs of briefing leading counsel.—Re POTTS, Ex p. EPSTEIN v. TRUSTEE & BANKRUPT, [1935] Ch. 334; 104 L. 4851a. —— From refusal of application.]—On Dec. 31, 1935, a secured creditor gave notice to a trustee in bkpcy. calling upon him to exercise his right of election under 1914 Act, Sched. II., r. 13 (c). In June, 1936, the trustee applied for an extension of the time within which to exercise his election. The application was dismissed on June 25, 1936, & the trustee was ordered to pay the creditors' costs. After some correspondence the order was drawn up dismissing the application & containing provisions by which the trustee should be reimbursed out of the estate for the costs which he had been ordered to pay. On Aug. 5, 1936, notice of appeal was given. The creditors raised a preliminary objection that the notice of appeal was out of time under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 130. The trustee contended that the direction as to costs had the effect of making the order a compound & not a simple order, & that he was entitled to see the order before making up his mind as to an appeal:—Held: the refusal of the application for extension of time was a simple refusal & the appeal ought to have been brought within 21 days of such refusal.—Re BULMER, INLAND REVENUE COMRS. & TRUSTEE v. NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK, LTD., [1936] 3 All E. On forfeiture clause—Conditional discharge.]—(1) The discharge from bkpcy. of a life tenant with the common form protected life interest, such discharge being conditional on his paying a sum of money, does not have the effect of putting an end to the operation of the forfeiture clause if the money has not in fact been paid.

(2) Where there is a trust of a fund under the terms of which the trustees are bound to apply the income of the fund in a particular way on a given future contingency, the person who takes the income as a result of that trust on the happening of the contingency is a person who has an interest of a kind which, but for the forfeiture clause, is capable of vesting in his trustee in bkpcy.—Re CLARK, CLARK v. CLARK, [1926] Ch. 833; 95 L. 5495a. —— —— —— ——.]—The object of the public examination of debtor is not merely to obtain a full & complete disclosure of his assets & the facts relating to the bkpcy. in the interests of his creditors, but is also for the protection of the public ; & debtor is not entitled to refuse to answer questions put to him at his public examination on the ground that by so doing he may incriminate himself.

In the course of his public examination debtor refused to answer a question on the ground that he might thereby incriminate himself. On the case coming on before the judge he interviewed debtor in his private room & on his return into ct. stated (1) that he was not satisfied that an answer to the question would result in further assets or secure rights for the creditors, & (2) that he was satisfied that there were serious personal reasons why it would be to debtor's detriment to answer the question in public :—Held : neither of the reasons given by the judge for declining to order debtor to answer the question was a sufficient reason.—Re PAGET, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, [1927] 2 Ch. 85 ; 96 L. At his public examination on Oct. 19, the bkpt., who was admittedly still dealing in electrical goods, on being asked by the registrar where he had obtained the lamps that he sold when he was in business, refused to answer the question :—Held : as it was not clear that the disclosure of the source of supply might not lead to the disclosure of further assets, e.g. claims to commission or otherwise, or might not be in the public interest, by enabling the supply of infringing lamps to be stopped at its source, the bkpt. must answer the question.—Re JAWETT, [1929] 1 Ch. 108 ; 98 L. 5562a. —— As to compromise of proceedings between bankrupt & third party.]—W., who had deposited with the debtor bonds of the value of £30,000 & shortly before his death had made a demand for their return to him with which the debtor refused to comply, died on July 12, 1930. On Feb. 23, 1931, the exors. of W.'s will brought an action against the debtor claiming the return of the bonds. In Nov. 1931, pltfs. discovered correspondence which disclosed the fact that the debtor had made proposals to W. for obtaining for him an honour from His Majesty, & they communicated this to deft.'s solrs. On Jan. 14, 1932, a compromise of the action was arranged between counsel under which the debtor consented to return the value of the bonds, & by Jan. 1933, this was in fact done. On May 23, 1933, the debtor was adjudicated bkpt. In the bkpcy. N., one of W.'s exors. & the surviving pltf. in the action, was, under 1914 Act, s. 25, summoned to give evidence & produce documents relating to the deposit of the bonds with the bkpt. N. was asked whether, after reading the correspondence between W. & the bkpt., he understood that the transaction related to some trafficking in honours. On the advice of his counsel N. refused to answer the question. The matter was accordingly reported by the registrar to CLAUSON, J., who on June 11, 1934, made an order directing N. to answer the question. On appeal :—Held : as the compromise was not impugned by any documents, materials or evidence before the ct. & thus stood good & binding, it would not be right to compel an answer from the witness in respect of a matter to which he was not primâ facie shown to be a party or privy. The ct. must deem the witness capable of giving information on some grounds that appeared to have a foundation. It ought not to lend itself to a mere fishing inquiry based upon the trustee's hope to build up some case as to which there was before the ct. no information showing that the witness was implicated.—Re GREGORY (MAUNDY), Ex p. NORTON, [1935] Ch. 65; 78 Sol. In his public examination he was required to disclose these formulas in writing to his trustee. The debtor & his brother had each of them agreed not to disclose the secret. Upon the dissolution of the partnership bkpt. retained the assets & goodwill of the business in England & America, while his brother continued to carry it on in France. The formulas had never been committed to writing. Bkpt. refused to disclose them on the ground that they existed only in his brain as the result of his skill & capacity, & that to disclose them would be a breach of his agreement with his brother :—Held : the formulas were part of the goodwill & assets of his business, & he was bound to communicate them to his trustee.—Re KEENE, [1922] 2 Ch. 475 ; 91 L. 5838a. Termination of protective trust—Trustee Act, 1925 (c. 19), s. 33—Debt owed to estate—Application of income for maintenance.]—A testatrix guaranteed her son's loan account at a bank. She then made a will appointing him one of her exors. & giving him a legacy of £100 & a protected life interest in the income of her residuary estate. She then guaranteed the son's overdraft on his current account. On each occasion the son charged his estate & interest in a public-house to secure such sum as testatrix might be called upon to pay. The estate of testatrix was about to be called upon to pay a sum of over £5,000. The son after the death of testatrix executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of his creditors :—Held : (1) the fact that testatrix required security for the repayment of the debt after the execution of her will showed an intention not to release the debt, & the son was liable to the estate in the amount which would have to be paid to the bank ; (2) notwithstanding that the debt or some part might remain unpaid, the trustees of the will were entitled to pay in their discretion such part of the income as they might think necessary for the son's maintenance & support.—Re EISER'S WILL TRUSTS, FOGG v. EASTWOOD, [1937] 1 All E. 5902a. "On bankruptcy or until he suffered any act or thing or any event happened whereby he would be deprived of right to receive income"—Order of Probate Court setting apart whole income for children of beneficiary.]—In 1887, C. settled the proceeds of property as to the income upon himself for life determinable on his bkpcy. or until he suffered any act or thing or any event happened whereby, if payable to him absolutely, he would be deprived of the right to receive the income or any part thereof. By an order in 1895 after the dissolution of C.'s marriage, it was ordered that the trustees should set apart the whole of the income of the settled funds

5909a. "Shall do some act" whereby income would be assigned—Authority to ... to trustee of composition scheme—No notification of authority to trustee.]—B. was entitled to the income of one-third share of the residuary estate of testatrix unless & until he should be or become bkpt. or should do or suffer some act or thing whereby such share of income should be wholly or partially assigned, charged or incumbered or until he should die, whichever event should first happen, & from & after his death or bkpcy. or the doing or suffering such act as aforesaid such share & the income thereof should be held upon trust for his issue. Shortly after the death of testatrix B. entered into a scheme for composition with his creditors, & he then signed an authority to the trustees of testatrix's will "until further notice" to pay to the trustee under the scheme "the income now due or to accrue due" to B. from her estate. It appeared that there had been no communication by B. to the trustee of the scheme for composition concerning the authority given to the trustees of the will until after these proceedings had been taken in the matter:—Held: in these circumstances the authority given to the trustees of the will did not operate as a good equitable assignment of B.'s interest in testatrix's estate & did not work a forfeiture thereof, inasmuch as in the absence of communication concerning the authority, the same remained simply a bare authority which was revocable.—Re HAMILTON, FITZGEORGE v. FITZGEORGE (1921), 124 L. 5935a. —— Bankruptcy at & after determination of prior life interest—Annulled after income payable.]—B. was bequeathed an interest during his life in the income of testator's residuary estate, & by his will testator directed that, if any beneficiary thereunder should become bkpt., such beneficiary should forfeit his share which should thereupon devolve as provided for in the event of his death. Testator died in 1910 & on Apr. 16, 1914, B. was adjudicated bkpt. On Dec. 14, 1925, B.'s life interest fell into possession, & on Apr. 7, 1926, he procured the annulment of his bkpcy. Between Dec. 14, 1925, & the date of the annulment the trustees received income in respect of the residuary estate, but dealt only with such part as did not include the income in respect of B.'s interest, no payment being made in respect of that by them:—Held: as after Dec. 14, 1925, the trustees received sums in respect of the income of testator's estate which they could have been asked to hand over to the trustee in the bkpcy. of B. before the annulment of his bkpcy., there existed something upon which the forfeiture could operate, the test being whether there was any actual income of the share which could be treated by the trustees as payable to, or retained for, or appropriated for, the residuary legatee, & the annulment was not in time to prevent the operation of the forfeiture clause.—Re FORDER, FORDER v. FORDER, [1927] 2 Ch. 291; 96 L. 5936a. "Unless he attempts to become bankrupt"—Whether applicable to bankruptcy in invitum or generally.]—Testator, by his will dated Dec. 21, 1911, devise & personal estate to his to sell & convert with power to pos proceeded: "Out of my estate trustees to pay to my son H. an £156 to be paid monthly, unless he to assign it or to become bkpt. In events it shall be entirely optional with trustees to pay him the annuity, my wish & intention being that the money is to be for his personal use to keep him from want. If they think his conduct or circumstances deserves or requires it, I authorise them to increase the annuity to £260 per annum, payable as & on the condition stated." Testator then directed that the residue of the income of his estate should be paid to his wife during her life or widowhood, & that after her death or remarriage it should be applied for the maintenance of his daughter until she attained the age of twenty-five years, & that upon her attaining that age the whole of the residue of his property should be given to her. By a codicil to his will, dated Sept. 10, 1918, testator devised two freehold farms to his son H. for the term of his life or "until he shall do some act to effectuate a sale or mtge. thereof or which shall forfeit the same in the case of bkpcy.," in either of which events the farms were to fall back into & form part of his residuary estate. Testator died on Sept. 13, 1918, leaving his widow, his daughter, & his son H. surviving. On Nov. 3, 1911, a receiving order had been made against H. on a creditor's petition, the act of bkpcy. being the failure to comply with a bkpcy. notice, & on Nov. 24, 1911, he was adjudged bkpt. Testator made his will & codicil with knowledge of these facts. On Jan. 22, 1919, H. obtained his discharge, but his creditors had not been paid in full, & the bkpcy. had not been annulled. On a summons taken out by the trustees for the determination of the questions whether the legacy given to H. by the will had become forfeited by his bkpcy., & whether the freeholds devised to him by the codicil belonged to him or formed part of the residuary estate:—Held: (1) the words "unless he attempts to become bkpt." in the will must be read in their strict grammatical sense & as so read did not apply to a bkpcy. in invitum or bkpcy. generally, & therefore no forfeiture of the annuity had occurred on which the discretionary trust arose, & consequently the annuity was payable to the trustee in H.'s bkpcy.; (2) the words of devise in the codicil though phrased in words of futurity applied under the doctrine of Trappes v. Meredith, No. 5932, ante, to the past bkpcy. of H., & there was no principle upon which the ct. would be justified in holding that the doctrine was not applicable to legal estates, & consequently the devised freeholds had ever since the death of testator formed part of his residuary estate.—Re EVANS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. EVANS, [1920] 2 Ch. 304; 89 L. J. Ch. 525; 123 L. T. 735; 36 T. L. R. 674, C. A.

5936b. "Become vested or charged"—Assignment of "whole means & estate."]—A testator, who died in 1932, bequeathed his residuary estate to trustees in trust to pay the income thereof to his wife, F. P., for life, & after her death to raise thereout a fund the income of which, in the events which happened, they were directed to pay to F. H. during his life, "if at the time of this present trust taking effect in possession no act or event shall have happened whereby the life interest . . . if belonging to him absolutely, would have become vested in or charged in favour of some other persons or person. . . ." A discretionary trust in favour of F. H. his wife & issue was created in the event of failure of the trust during his life. In 1933 F. H. being temporarily resident in Scotland, though domiciled in England, executed a deed assigning to a trustee for the benefit of his creditors "my whole means & estate, heritable and moveable, real and personal, wherever situated, now pertaining & belonging or due & indebted to me or over which I may have any power of disposal or to which I may succeed during the subsistence of this trust." This deed was never registered in accordance with the Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914 (c. 47), s. 2. F. P. died in 1936:—Held: (1) the terms of the deed were wide enough to cover the interest of F. H. under the will; (2) inasmuch as on the true construction of the deed the law intended to be applied in dealing with it was the law of Scotland, which did not require registration, it was not void for want of registration in accordance with Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914 (c. 47); (3) accordingly, there had been forfeiture of the life interest of F. H. & the discretionary trust came into force.—Re PILKINGTON'S WILL TRUSTS, PILKINGTON v. HARRISON, [1937] Ch. 574; [1937] 3 All E. R. 213; 106 L. J. Ch. 360; 157 L. T. 132; 53 T. L. He subquently resided in Algiers & carried on business as a coal merchant there until his death. On a petition presented by him in his lifetime to the ct. in Algiers he was declared bkpt. by the French ct. after his death, & a " syndic " was appointed there to whom creditors' claims might be sent. The effect of the order on the evidence was to vest in the French " syndic " the whole of bkpt.'s estate, including assets accruing after the commencement of the bkpcy. In a subsequent creditor's administration action in England, K., an English creditor, was appointed administrator & after a grant of administration with the will annexed, proceeded to advertise for creditors. Deft. became tenant of a house in Ghent for a period of eight months from Apr. 1913, & employed clerks & other persons. The partnership incurred heavy liabilities, & by a decree of the Commercial Ct. at Ghent, dated Aug. 9, 1913, the partnership & its members were declared to be insolvent pursuant to an article of the Belgian Civil Code. The decree was pronounced by the ct. without notice to deft., but subsequently, in accordance with the recognised procedure, he was notified of the decree & appeared by solr. to show cause why it should be dissolved. It was, however, affirmed by the Ct. of Appeal. Pltf., trustee in the bkpcy., brought an action in England alleging that deft. was possessed of assets within the jurisdiction of the English cts. & claiming a declaration that all deft.'s assets had become vested in pltf. as trustee: —Held: (1) the decree of the Belgian ct. was valid inasmuch as deft. had submitted to the jurisdiction, (2) the proceedings were not contrary to natural justice, inasmuch as deft. had been afforded an opportunity of being heard; (3) subject to the decision of other issues not before the ct., there should be a declaration that pltf. was entitled to all the movable assets of deft., wherever situate, & to the appointment of a receiver.—BERGEREM v. MARSH (1921), 91 L. r i. —— ——.]—Although a foreign Bkpcy. Act cannot, of its own force, operate beyond the country which enacted it, yet private international law & the comity of nations operating on the general principles relating to movable property will recognise its extra-territorial effect, so far at least as it deals with personal property, especially where, as in the case of the U.S. Bkpcy. Act, the Act does not expressly confine itself to property within the United States, but extends to "all property" of bkpt.; & the fact that the U.S. Bkpcy. Act is given effect in Canada only by comity of nations is not a ground for holding that it should be given no greater effect in Canada than would be given to the Canadian Bkpcy. y i. —— Property in British India.]—Upon a foreign ct. adjudicating a person an insolvent, the only property in British India which vests in the receiver by virtue of private international law is such movable property as the insolvent was free to assign to the receiver at the date of the adjudication.

The District Ct. at Secunderabad adjudicated persons insolvents under Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. Jurisdiction is exercised at Secunderabad, & the above Act there applied, by Orders made by the Governor-General in Council under Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890, & Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order, 1902. The insolvents were holders of a decree of the Madras High Ct., which, before the adjudication, had been attached by that Ct. in execution proceedings. By sect. 64 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, any private transfer of the attached decree was void against claims under the attachment:—Held: the District Ct. at Secunderabad was a foreign ct.; accordingly, the adjudication operated in British India only under private international law &, having regard to sect. 64 of the Code, did not affect the rights of the attaching creditor; it was unnecessary to consider whether the attachment created a charge, or conferred title.—ANANTAPADMANABHASWAMI v. SECUNDERABAD OFFICIAL RECEIVER, [1933] A. Under the law of the Union of South Africa the trustee was entitled to the immovable property of the insolvent situate in Ireland, so far as such right did not conflict with the law in Ireland. A. agreed to help him & for this purpose a co. was incorporated on Sept. 1, 1933, with a capital of 100 shares of £1 each, of which A. held ninety-eight, his clerk one, & the debtor one. On the same date the debtor entered into an agreement with the co. by which the co. agreed to buy for cash goods manufactured by him up to a total amount of £7,000, the price to be 10 per cent. less than the prices that any of certain specified customers had agreed to pay for them, & the goods to be invoiced to the customers in the name of the co. The agreement also provided that the debtor should not sell goods to any person other than the co., that he should repay to the co. any part of the price of goods so purchased which the customer failed to pay, & that the co. should not make a profit of more than £2,500 in any one year. Notices were issued to customers that for the future sales would be effected through the co. On Feb. 5, 1934, a receiving order was made against the debtor, & on Feb. 19 he was adjudicated a bkpt. The question arose whether the agreement was void as against the trustees in bkpcy. so that the sums remaining due from customers at the beginning of the bkpcy. formed part of the debtor's estate :—Held : the agreement was not void either as an unregistered bill of sale or as an assignment of future book debts within 1914 Act, s. 43.—Re Lovegrove. Ex p. Lovegrove & Co. (2) Under 1914 Act, s. 105, the ct. having jurisdiction in bkpcy. has the widest possible powers. If, therefore, creditors, in pursuance of a resolution passed at a creditors' meeting, request the trustee or official receiver by virtue of 1914 Act, s. 79 (2), to summon meetings, & the trustee or official receiver refuse to comply with their request, the ct. has ample jurisdiction to decline to order the trustee to carry out the creditors' request to convene the meeting if it considers that the holding thereof would serve no useful purpose & would only result in a useless waste of the assets in the bkpcy. In Jan. 1927, the settlor gave notice to pltf. as trustee that he required the whole income for that year to be paid as to one moiety to himself & as to the other moiety to his wife. In Aug. 1927, the settlor was adjudicated bkpt. :—Held : the power was indivisible, & could not be exercised by the settlor " for his own benefit " within 1914 Act, s. 38 (b), but only for the joint benefit of himself & his wife, & therefore did not vest in his trustee in bkpcy.—Re TAYLOR'S SETTLEMENT TRUSTS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. TAYLOR, [1929] 1 Ch. 435 ; 98 L. 6507a. —— In name of agent—Delivery orders in hands of buyers.]—Bkpt., who carried on business as a merchant, had for some years dealt with pltfs. in vacuum flasks, which came from Germany. The bills of lading in respect of the goods were made out "to order" & the charges were paid by S., a forwarding agent employed by bkpt. The goods on arrival were stored at a wharf in the name, & for the account, of S. When a sale had taken place S. signed a delivery order which bkpt. handed to the buyers against payment for the goods. Between Aug. 3 & Sept. 7, 1927, pltfs. purchased a number of cases of vacuum flasks & paid bkpt. for them prior to the commencement of the bkpcy., the receiving order being made on Sept. 24. Bkpt., upon payment being made for the goods, handed to pltfs. delivery orders for the goods signed by S. & addressed to the wharfingers. These delivery orders had not been presented at the wharf at the date of the bkpcy., & when they were presented shortly afterwards the wharfingers, acting on S.'s instructions, refused to deliver the goods. The trustee in bkpcy. claimed that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. at the date of the receiving order & formed part of bkpt.'s estate under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c):—Held: pltfs. had not by their conduct in any way induced a belief that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. in such circumstances that he was the reputed owner thereof, & the trustee was not entitled to the goods as forming part of bkpt.'s estate.—SIMEONS (C.) & Co. v. DURAND'S TRUSTEE, [1928] 2 K. 6659a. —— ——.]—For some years before his bkpcy. a surveyor & assessment specialist with a staff of clerks had entered into contracts with clients for personal service in the latter capacity. Under these contracts he had to value his clients' properties for rating purposes & give expert evidence on their appeals, his remuneration being a percentage of the reduction of their assessments when obtained. He mortgaged these contracts & the sums to become due on completion thereof to a mtgee., who by special arrangement with the mtgor. gave no notice to the clients so as not to imperil the mtgor 's business position, the mtgor. being allowed to collect the fees when due in his own name & hand them over to the mtgee. At the date of the mtgor.'s bkpcy., some fees (a) were due on completed contracts, but some fees (b) were still unearned. The trustee employed bkpt. & some of his staff to carry out the uncompleted contracts & earn fees (b) :—Held : (1) though the work to be done under the contracts required a certain amount of technical skill on which bkpt.'s clients relied, it was nevertheless part of bkpt.'s business, so that the fees (a) due at the date of the bkpcy. were due to him " in the course of his trade or business " & being in his order & disposition by the consent of the mtgee. belonged to the trustee under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c) ; (2) the mtge. of fees (b) earned since the bkpcy. was inoperative against the trustee.—Re COLLINS, [1925] 1 Ch. 556 ; 133 L. The chattels consisted of cutting tables, work tables, machines, stools, etc. The agreement was determinable in the event (inter alia) of a receiving order in bkpcy. being made against the hirers, upon which all payments made by the hirers were forfeitable & the chattels were to be delivered to the owner. 6858a. ——.]—A trader carried on the business of selling & hiring out of pianos largely by means of hire-purchase agreements, by each of which the trader agreed to let on hire a piano, & in consideration the hirer agreed to pay the trader a sum of £4 on the date of hiring & £1 monthly so long as the hirer continued the hiring. The trader agreed that if the hirer should punctually pay him a specified total sum in these instalments, the piano was to become the absolute property of the hirer, but that until then it was to continue the trader's sole property. Early in 1930 the trader entered into a number of trader's agreements by which he agreed to deposit the hire-purchase agreements with the G. Co., Ltd., & on demand to assign to that co. or its nominees the full benefit of those agreements, & in the meantime to hold them on trust for the G. Co. & its nominees. The G. Co. subsequently assigned the benefit of the trader's agreements to pltf. No notice of the assignment was given until after the trader was adjudicated bkpt. on July 23, 1930:—Held: the monthly sums which, after the commencement of the bkpcy., had or would become payable in advance under the hire-purchase agreements, if the hirer continued the hiring, were "debts . . . growing due to the bkpt. in the course of his trade or business" within Bkpcy. Act, 1914, s. 38 (c), & were therefore properly divisible among the bkpt.'s creditors as being things in action "at the commencement of the bkpcy. in the possession, order or disposition of the bkpt., in his trade or business, by the consent & permission of the true owner" within that sect.—BLAKEY v. PENDLEBURY PROPERTY TRUSTEES, [1931] 2 Ch. 255; 100 L. 6858b. Judgment debt.]—S., a customer of bkpt., a stockbroker, became indebted to him in respect of Stock Exchange transactions in a sum for which bkpt., on Dec. 18, 1923, recovered judgment. Later, S. became similarly indebted to bkpt. in a further sum. On Jan. 15, 1924, bkpt. assigned both debts to W. to secure £500, & covenanted with him that, in the event of his refraining from giving notice of the assignment to S., he, bkpt., would, on payment of the debts or any part thereof, hand the cheque or other form of payment to W. On Feb. 27, 1924, bkpt. committed an act of bkpcy. In Mar. 1924, J., who acted as solr. for both bkpt. & W. in the matter of the assignment, on the instructions of both & without disclosing same, made an agreement with S. for the liquidation of the two debts, whereby S. undertook to pay the aggregate amount thereof by monthly instalments, the first instalments being allocated to the payment of the later of the two debts & the subsequent ones to the payment of the judgment debt; & S. further agreed to deliver promissory notes payable to bkpt. or order to cover the instalments allocated to the later debt. J. received the notes from S. &, as agent of W., collected the amounts as they fell due on the notes & paid part thereof to W. & retained the balance. After payment J. returned the notes to S. to be cancelled. At that time neither J. nor W. nor S. had notice of any available act of bkpcy. On Sept. 18, 1924, a receiving order was made, at which date S. had paid & W. had received from J. sums amounting to £90 in respect of the later debt. Upon receiving notice of the receiving order, J. gave notice to S. of the assignment On Sept. 25, 1924, an order of adjudication was made, & on Oct. 7, 1924, appct. was appointed trustee. In Apr. 1925, W. died, & his exor. was made resp. to the motion by which a declaration was sought that the two debts were at the commencement of the bkpcy. in the order & disposition of bkpt. & property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors:—Held: (1) the earlier debt, which, admittedly, arose in the course of bkpt.'s business, was, notwithstanding its conversion into a judg-

He lodged the deposit receipts with his bank as security for his overdraft, which was also guaranteed by G. G. having paid off the overdraft, was subrogated to the rights of the bank, which thereafter held the deposit receipts on his behalf. A receiving order in bkpcy. was made against the tenant on his own petition, & six days later the bank, for the first time, gave notice to the brewers of the charge on the receipts. The balance remaining due from the brewers to the tenant was claimed both by G. & by the trustee in bkpcy. who alleged that it was a debt growing due to the bkpt. & in his possession, order or disposition at the date of the receiving order:—Held: the balance of the sums deposited with the brewers was a debt growing due to the bkpt. at the date of the receiving order, & such a debt could be, & in this case was, in the possession, order or disposition of the bkpt. in his trade or business, by the consent & permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he was the reputed owner thereof.—LATHAM v. GOLDSBURY, [1933] 1 K. On Mar. 16 the sheriff made a second levy, but on being paid £53 on account of the debt in addition to fees & possession money, he again withdrew reserving a right of re-entry for the £19 balance. After retaining the £53 for fourteen days he paid it to the execution creditors. On Apr. 26 the sheriff made a third levy, but the goods seized being found on interpleader to belong to a third party, he finally withdrew & made a return of nulla bona on May 2. On the following day the sheriff levied execution on the goods of the debtor under a writ of fi. fa. issued by resps. to enforce their judgment. On Sept. 24, 1928, it was agreed in writing between resps. & the debtor that in consideration of resps. withdrawing execution, the debtor should pay to resps. £15 on account of the debt & costs & the balance thereof by monthly instalments, the debtor undertaking, in case of default in payment of any of the agreed instalments, to authorise the sheriff to retake possession. In pursuance of the agreement the £15 & the costs of the execution were paid; whereupon the sheriff withdrew. Up to Oct. 22, 1929, the amount paid in respect of the instalments was £63 & no more, & on Jan. 10, 1930, the sheriff entered a second time into possession to levy execution for the balance of the debt remaining unpaid. On Jan. 13, 1930, while the sheriff was in possession, a receiving order was made against the debtor on his own petition filed on the same day, & he was adjudicated bkpt. On Jan. 14 resps. received notice of the receiving order. On Jan. 16, 1930, the official receiver, as trustee in the bkpcy., claimed from resps. payment of the two sums so received by them, amounting together to £78, as forming part of bkpt.'s estate available for the general body of his creditors, & on Mar. 12, 1931, issued a notice of motion to enforce his claim. On the hearing of the motion before the judge of the Nottingham county ct., on Apr. 30, 1931, a special case was stated under 1914 Act, s. 100 (3), for the opinion of the High Ct., whether resps. were entitled to retain or were bound to account for & pay to the trustee in bkpcy. the two sums of £15 & £63 so received by them or either of those sums:—Held: both sums so received by resps. were, within 1914 Act, s. 40, benefits of the execution for which they were liable to account to the trustee in bkpcy.—Re BRELSFORD, [1932] 1 Ch. 24; 146 L. 6920a. —— ——.]—On June 1, 1932, a creditor obtained a judgment against the bkpt. for £111 1*s*. On June 16 the judgment creditor caused execution to be levied against the bkpt.'s goods for £121 6*s*. 6*d*. & costs of execution. The sheriff went into possession. On July 2 the bkpt. paid to the judgment creditor a sum of £60, & on July 8 a further sum of £60, & on July 22 he paid to the judgment creditor a further sum of £13 9*s*. 3*d*., making in all the total sum of £133 9*s*. 3*d*., being the full amount due under the judgment, together with the costs of the execution. On Aug. 3, 1932, the judgment creditor instructed the sheriff to withdraw, which he did on the same date, his costs being paid by the judgment creditor. The withdrawal was unconditional & no power of re-entry was reserved. On Nov. 21, 1932, the bkpt. filed his own petition, & a receiving order was made against him on that date. On Dec. 6 he was adjudged bkpt. The trustee in bkpcy. moved in the county ct. for: (a) a declaration that the payments made by the bkpt. to the judgment creditor were void as against the trustee by virtue of 1914 Act, ss. 40, 41; (b) an order that the judgment creditor should repay to the trustee in bkpcy. the sums paid to him by the bkpt. by virtue of the same sections. The county ct. judge dismissed the application & the trustee appealed :—Held : dismissing the appeal, the phrase "the benefit of the execution" in sect. 40 (1), referred solely to the protection obtained by an execution creditor by reason of the issue of a writ of fi. fa. & its delivery to the sheriff, & did not include any payments to an execution creditor whether by the sheriff or by the judgment creditor; the section related only to executions which were in fact in existence at one or other of the appropriate dates mentioned in the section, & had no reference to an execution which had been unconditionally withdrawn before any of those dates.—Re GODWIN, Ex p. TRUSTEE v. MORRIS, Re GODWIN, Ex p. TRUSTEE v. BRITISH REINFORCED CONCRETE ENGINEERING CO., [1935] Ch. 213; 104 L. 6920c. —— ——.]—A judgment creditor having seized a debtor's goods under a writ of fi. fa., an arrangement was come to between the judgment creditor & the debtor in order to avoid a sale. In pursuance of that arrangement the sheriff withdraw from possession, reserving the right of re-entry. Under the arrangement the debtor paid various sums to the judgment creditor in part payment of the debt & in satisfaction of the sheriff's fees. The debtor having failed to continue his payments the sheriff re-entered into possession under his power of re-entry. Subsequently the debtor filed his own petition & a receiving order was made against him, & later he became bkpt. At the date of the receiving order the debt had not been paid in full :—Held : the words "the benefit of the execution" in sect. 40 (1) of 1914 Act, did not refer to moneys actually received by the creditor in whole or partial satisfaction of his debt, whether under or in consequence of an execution or not, but they referred to the charge which the creditor obtained by the issue of the execution, & to the extent that by the payment of money that charge had been reduced or abrogated there was pro tanto no benefit of the execution to be considered. The benefit of the execution could only refer to the charge still remaining under the still subsisting execution for the balance of the debt. Therefore, the sums paid by the debtor before the date of the receiving order were not "the benefit of the execution" within sect. 40 (1), & the judgment creditor was entitled to retain them as against the trustee in the bkpcy.—Re ANDREW, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER (TRUSTEE) (No. 2), [1937] Ch. 122; 106 L. 6952a. —— —— Registrar of county court & sheriff same person—Notice received in capacity of registrar.]—The condition of service within the fourteen days limited by 1914 Act, s. 41 (2), of notice on the sheriff of a bkpcy. petition having been presented is sufficiently complied with, so as to entitle the official receiver to be paid the moneys retained by the sheriff, if during that period he has acquired knowledge of the presentation of a petition.

M., who held the office of high bailiff of a county ct., in pursuance of 1914 Act, s. 41 (2), retained the moneys paid to him to avoid a sale of the debtor's goods. Before the expiration of the prescribed period of retention a bkpcy. petition was presented by the debtor & a receiving order thereon was signed by M., who then held the office of registrar of the same ct. of which he was also high bailiff. A formal notice in writing was sent by the official receiver to M. of the presentation of the petition & of the making of the receiving order, which was not received until after the fourteen days had expired :—Held : knowledge of the presentation of the petition acquired by M. as registrar constituted a sufficient compliance with the requirement of s. 41 (2), of service of notice upon him as high bailiff, with the result that the official receiver was entitled to be paid the moneys in the hands of the high bailiff.—Re HARRIS, [1931] 1 Ch. 138 ; 99 L. 6965a. "Any other petition"—Notice not given within fourteen days.]—A sheriff, on behalf of an execution creditor, levied an execution against debtor for more than £20, & received the money from debtor to avoid a sale. Within fourteen days of the payment the sheriff received notice of a bkpcy. petition on which an order would have been made had not debtor in the meanwhile filed his own petition on which a receiving order was made as a matter of course. Notice of this second petition was given to the sheriff more than fourteen days after the payment, but while the money was still in his hands pending the result of the first petition. The trustee in bkpcy. & the execution creditor both claimed the money :—Held : the words in 1914 Act, s. 41 (2), "or on any other petition of which the sheriff has notice," were not to be qualified by the addition of the words "within the said fourteen days" so as to permit the sheriff to pay the proceeds of the execution to the execution creditor because notice of the second petition on which the receiving order was made was not given within fourteen days of the receipt of such proceeds. The sheriff must hold, in the first instance, to see whether a receiving order would be made, & if he had notice of another petition, even after the lapse of fourteen days, then he must hold to see whether an order would be made on that other petition, or on any petition.—LATTER v. JUCKES & PAGE, [1927] 1 K. sk. Settlement on creditor.]—On Jan. 29, 1925, J., being in embarrassed circumstances & indebted, amongst others, to M. for £1,200, settled certain land on M., & another upon trust for herself & her only child during her life & after her death for her child absolutely. A private meeting of J.'s creditors was held on Apr. 22, 1925, & a committee appointed to investigate her affairs, & it was agreed to accept £200 from M. to be distributed among the creditors in full payment of their debts. Some of the creditors, including the R. Co., refused to carry out this arrangement, but on the faith that it would be carried out, J., on Apr. 28, paid M. £100 on account of his debt. On June 5 the debtor filed a petition for liquidation, but before the meeting on June 24 the R. Co. served a debtor's summons. The R. Co. had notice of the meeting for June 24, but did not attend. This meeting was attended by creditors whose indebtedness was about two-thirds of the total sum. They unanimously passed a resolution for liquidation by arrangement, & appointed a trustee. On the hearing of an application by the debtor & the trustee to dismiss the debtor's summons it was held that the application must be dismissed, but as the creditors who absented themselves from the liquidation meeting should have & could have attended it, they must pay the costs. The bkpcy. proceedings were continued, & a trustee appointed. The trustee then applied to have the settlement to M. delivered up to be cancelled & for repayment of the £100 paid to M. on Apr. 28, 1925:—Held: the settlement was not made in good faith & must be delivered up. The payment of £100 to M. was a fraudulent preference, & it must be repaid to the trustee.—Re JEFFREYS (1925), 21 Tas. L. R. 31.—AUS.

7113a. —— Gift by brother to sister.]—By a deed of gift dated Oct. 7, 1919, debtor, who was adjudged bkpt. on Nov. 23, 1920. "in consideration of his natural love & affection for the donee" purported to assign & convey to his sister, resp., "the business carried on by him at 58a, Old Compton Street, Soho, & the stock-in-trade, wine & produce in & about the premises." At the date of the deed petitioning creditors were proceeding to enforce judgment under R. S. C., Ord. 14, & on Mar. 18, 1920, obtained final judgment against debtor for £527 7*s.* 4*d.* for goods sold & costs. On Mar. 20, 1920, execution was levied. Upon such levy being made, resp. claimed under the deed of gift the whole of the furniture & stock seized by the sheriff. An interpleader summons was taken out by the sheriff, & upon the hearing thereof, on Mar. 26, 1920, the master ordered claimant to pay into ct. £600 or give security for such amount, & in default the sheriff was authorised to sell the property seized & pay the proceeds into ct. to abide the result of an issue directed to be tried between claimant & the execution creditors. Pursuant to the order the sheriff sold the goods on Apr. 28, 1920, & on May 20, 1920, paid the sum of £202 12*s.* 2*d.* into ct. On Nov. 3, 1920, the parties to the interpleader summons agreed to divide the money between them & to withdraw the record; these terms were embodied in an order of the master of that date. In the meantime, however, a receiving order was made on Nov. 1, 1920, & petitioning creditors, the execution creditors, the official receiver of the sum of money being in ct. & of the terms of settlement so agreed as aforesaid. Thereupon the official receiver intervened, & on Nov. 1, 1920, gave notice in writing to the Paymaster-General of the Supreme Ct. of the receiving order, & this notice had the effect of preventing the order being acted upon. The trustee moved for a declaration that the deed of gift was void as against him:—Held: (1) the deed of gift was a voluntary settlement &, being made within two years of the bkpcy., was void (2) the execution having been completed & the proceeds held by the sheriff for fourteen days, the trustee's title was barred, because, although the execution was not completed before the sheriff had been in possession for twenty-one days, the act of bkpcy. thereby created had not occurred within three months of the presentation of the petition & was not therefore available to establish the trustee's title.—Re CHIANDETTI, Ex p. TRUSTEE (1921), 91 L. The husband was adjudged bkpt. on June 20, 1922, within two years of the assignment. On motion by the trustee in the bkpcy. for a declaration that the assignment was void against him as being a voluntary settlement under 1914 Act, s. 42:—Held: there was ample consideration in the assignment, & the wife was a "purchaser" for valuable consideration within the sect.—Re CHARTERS, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1923] B. & C. 7149a. Settlor having power to raise sum in excess of debts.]—On Mar. 19, 1932, the settlor executed a voluntary deed of settlement by which he assigned all his interests under two wills to trustees upon certain trusts. By clause 5 he gave himself power at any time to raise the sum of £150 without the consent of the trustees. At the date of the settlement his debts did not exceed £100. 7155a. Covenant to pay premiums on life policy.]—A. & B. were traders in partnership. In 1927 both partners were adjudicated bankrupt. In 1910, A. on his marriage had executed an ante-nuptial settlement, by which he (inter alia) covenanted with the trustees of the settlement to keep up a life policy on his life then existing & to pay the premiums, etc. On the bkpcy. of the two partners the trustees of the settlement lodged a proof in the bkpcy. of A. with regard to the covenant to keep up the policy, for a sum that was arrived at by commuting in a single payment the annual premiums payable to keep up the policy & to make it fully paid. The trustee in bkpcy. rejected the proof on the ground that under 1914 Act, s. 42 (2), their claim was postponed until all the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth had been satisfied, & he alleged that the assets available would not be sufficient:—Held : the covenant fell within 1914 Act, s. 42 (2), & the trustee was right in rejecting the proof, as being a claim for something which was only provable after the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth had been satisfied, & also having regard to 1914 Act, ss. 33 (6); 42 (2), & 63 (1), the right of the trustees to put in a proof must depend on all the creditors of the partnership between A. & B., the joint creditors of the partnership, as well as the separate creditors of A., being first satisfied.—Re Cumming & West, Ex p. Neilson & Craig v. Trustee, [1929] 1 Ch. 534; 141 L. 7166a. —— ——.]—To constitute a fraudulent preference three conditions must be fulfilled; (1) that the payment is made by a person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money; (2) that it in fact prefers one creditor over others; (3) that the dominant motive with which the payment was made was a desire to prefer that creditor to whom the payment was made. It makes no difference that the agent had not authority to sign the cheques he drew & presented to his principal, nor that the principal when signing them had no intention to prefer any creditor, but honestly believed the payments so made to be proper & in the ordinary course of business.

A firm of builders, having contracted to erect houses at S., employed T. as their salaried agent to control & manage the purchase of & payment for building materials, & generally to supervise & advise the firm on financial matters in relation to the contract. The partners had no knowledge as to the terms upon which the materials supplied had in fact been purchased, nor were they aware of any of the circumstances relating to any payments they in fact made. They signed cheques drawn by the agent as & when he prepared & presented them, but the agent had no right to make any payment except by cheques signed by his principals. The partners having become bkpts. it appeared in the bkpcy. proceedings that less than three months before the date of the receiving order, T., intending to prefer S. & Co., creditors of his principals, & then well aware of his principals' insolvency, presented to F., the managing partner, two cheques which T. had drawn & which F. signed without inquiry in the honest belief that T. intended thereby to make proper payments but which were in fact intended & devoted by T., one to the extent of £100 in payment of a debt due by his principal, under a contract other than the S. contracts & the other to the extent of £647 in payment for goods delivered by S. & Co. on credit terms not then expired :—Held : the partners as principals were bound by the acts of their agent T. when he, acting within the scope of his employment & as their agent, made the payments in question, & the act of the agent in making the payments with knowledge of the principals' insolvency & with a view of giving a preference must be treated as the act of the principals.—Re DRABBLE BROS., [1930] 2 Ch. 211 ; 99 L. 7185a. Payment of overdraft—Preference of guarantor.]—The father of the bkpt. had guaranteed the payment of the overdraft of the bkpt. whether on his business or private account up to £2,000, which was the permitted amount of overdraft by applt. bank. In Mar. 1932, the bkpt. was in obvious financial difficulties & was aware of his insolvency. He carried on business until Oct. 1932, but on Oct. 11 he gave notice that he was about to suspend payment, & on Oct. 22 a petition in bkpcy. was presented against him. On Nov. 23 a receiving order was made, & on Dec. 9 he was adjudicated bkpt. The overdraft had been over £2,000, but by Sept. 12, 1932, was reduced to just below that sum. After Sept. 12 he drew cheques in favour of his creditors, but paid in cheques of greater amount, & at the date of the petition in bkpcy. he had reduced his business & private accounts' overdraft to £1,301 15*s.* 7*d.* In May, June, July & to deft. co., the creditor from which he had bought it. Pltfs., judgment creditors, sought to set aside the transfer under Fraudulent Preferences Act, R.S.B.C., 1924. Deft. contended that said Act had ceased to be operative since the passing of Bkpcy. Act, R.S.C., 1927 :—Held : assuming for the purposes of the argument that the debtor was in insolvent circumstances when the transfer complained of was made & that the transfer was "with a view of giving" deft. co. a preference over other creditors, pltfs. were, under the circumstances, entitled to invoke the provisions of Fraudulent Preferences Act.—GARD v. YATES, [1936] 1 W. Aug. 1932, the bkpt. paid out of his account to trade creditors considerably larger sums than in Sept. The trustee in bkpcy. claimed that in so reducing the overdraft, after he knew he was insolvent, he had fraudulently preferred the bank & the guarantor to the general body of his creditors, & claimed that the difference of £698 4*s.* 5*d.* was payable to him, the trustee, on behalf of the other creditors. CLAUSON, J., held that there had been a fraudulent preference of the bank & that there should be repayment:—Held: the onus was on those who claimed that there had been a fraudulent preference to establish that the debtor's real intention was to prefer, &, to establish that, a dominant intent to prefer must be shown, & where there was not direct evidence & more than one explanation the intent to prefer could not be inferred. The account after Sept. 12, 1932, continued to be operated in the same way as before that date, payments being made out of it to trade creditors & sums paid in, the only course that a business man could pursue, therefore there was no evidence of a dominant intent to prefer.—Re LYONS, Ex p. BARCLAYS BANK, LTD. v. TRUSTEE (1934), 152 L. After several ineffectual attempts to make an arrangement, it was finally resolved, at a meeting of the creditors, that A.'s property should be immediately sold; thereupon A. employed an auctioneer for that purpose, & directed him to pay the balance of the proceeds, after deducting his own charges, to defts., which was accordingly done. Another meeting of the creditors took place, at which 5*s.* in the pound was offered, which being refused, A. went to prison, & obtained his discharge under the Insolvent Act. Defts. claimed to retain a portion of the money paid to them by the auctioneer in discharge of their bill of costs:—Held: this was not a voluntary transfer in favour of a particular creditor, within sect. 32 of above Act.—WAINWRIGHT v. CLEMENT (1838), 4 M. & W. 385; 1 Horn & H. 395; 8 L. Agreement to assign interests—In consideration of advance—No memorandum of agreement within Statute of Frauds.]—By a parol agreement between a lender & D., the former agreed to lend & did lend D. £2,000 in consideration of the latter's promise to assign certain interests. About a year later, in pursuance of this agreement, D. assigned these interests to the lender, & became bkpt. immediately afterwards. 7411a. ——.]—Early in 1936 S. had a banking account at each of two branches of resp. bank. The account at one of the branches had been dormant since Oct. 1935, & stood in debit as an overdraft secured by a guarantee. On Mar. 17, 1936, a petition in bkpcy. was presented against S. on an act of bkpcy. committed that same day. At all material times the bank was admittedly entirely ignorant of the fact that any petition was pending or that any act of bkpcy. had been committed. From towards the end of 1935 the manager of the branch at which S. had an overdraft had been pressing S. & the guarantor to pay off the overdraft. Pending the petition, S. sought to obtain an overdraft at the other branch, but the manager was not prepared to grant an overdraft, unless the overdraft at the first branch was first cleared off. On May 5, 1936, before the adjourned hearing of the petition, S. obtained an advance from a moneylender with which he paid off the overdraft at the first branch, & the guarantee was returned to the guarantor. S. then obtained an overdraft at the second branch. A receiving order was made against S. on July 27, 1936. The trustee in bkpcy., asserting that his title related back to Mar. 17, 1936, claimed that the money paid in discharge of the first overdraft was the trustee's money, & he claimed its return :—Held : in the circumstances the bank was protected by sect. 45 of 1914 Act, & the trustee was not entitled to recover the sum paid to the bank in discharge of the first overdraft.—Re SEYMOUR, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1937] Ch. 668, *sub. nom. business.]—A payment by a debtor to an agent who receives the money in the ordinary course of his employment for the use of a creditor is not a payment in favour of a "person in trust for any creditor," within 1914 Act, s. 44. The effect of that sect. is not to render the personal liability of an agent to repay a debt, payment of which he has received on behalf of his principal, greater than his liability in a case where money has been paid to him for the use of his principal in circumstances which entitle the person paying it to recover it back, even though it should turn out that, in fact, the payment constituted a fraudulent preference within the sect.

M. being indebted to G. & also to a co. for the price of goods supplied, on Jan. 14, 1921, paid to C. & B., agents of G. & the co. &, to the knowledge of debtor, authorised to receive the payment, the sum of £1,500 in settlement of the amounts respectively owing to G. & the co. 7603a. —— Employee of company—Refusal of company to pay—Termination of employment alleged.]—Bkpt., after his adjudication, entered into an agreement of service in writing for one year at a salary of £1,000, the agreement being signed in the name of a joint stock co., underneath which was the name of the managing director followed by the words, " managing director." An order was subsequently made by a registrar, under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2), that £300 out of a sum of £416 13*s.* 4*d.* due under the agreement from the co. &/or its managing director to bkpt. be forthwith paid by them to the trustee of the estate of bkpt. When the registrar made that order the only parties before the ct. were the trustee & bkpt. Neither the co. nor its managing director paid the £300, but alleged that nothing was due to bkpt. upon the ground that he had broken the agreement by absenting himself from his employment. The trustee then served a notice of motion in the High Ct. upon the co. & its managing director asking for a declaration that he was entitled to the £300 from resps. as forming part of the property of bkpt., & for an order for payment of that amount. The judge found that no dismissal had taken place nor had bkpt., by his conduct, given notice of his intention not to perform the contract which could be treated by resps. as an anticipatory breach. No point was taken as to whether the managing director was properly made a resp. :—Held : in the circumstances there must be a declaration & order for payment in terms of the notice of motion.—Re LAVEY, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1920] 1 K. 7793a. —— —— ——.]—Disclaimer of a lease by a trustee in bkpcy. operates as a discharge of a surety for payment of the rent, notwithstanding that part of the demised premises have been sublet before the bkpcy. The lessee of certain premises was adjudicated a bkpt., & his trustee, acting in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 54, disclaimed the lease. Prior to the bkpcy., the lessee had sublet a portion of the premises. Deft. had guaranteed the payment of the rent, & the lessors claimed from him sums equal to the rent which would have accrued if the lease had still been in existence:—Held: the disclaimer discharged the surety, on the ground that if the surety were called on to pay he would have a right of proof against bkpt.'s estate, whereas the intention of sect. 54 was that the bkpt. & his property should be released from all liability.—MORRIS (D.) & SONS, LTD. v. JEFFREYS (1932), 148 L. He had bought the interest from a trust in which he was sole trustee, but he had never had the title transferred from himself as trustee to himself as an individual. The borrower offered to repay the loan on receipt of a valid discharge, but he would not accept a discharge signed by the trustee in bkpcy. The trustee, therefore, prepared an assignation of the bond by bkpt. to himself, but bkpt. refused to sign it, & persisted in his refusal in the Sheriff Ct. No pains could follow, as bkpt. was already in prison. The trustee then presented a petition craving the ct. to authorise the clerk of ct. to sign the assignation on bkpt.'s behalf. The parties interested in the execution of the assignation in the manner proposed having lodged in process letters of consent thereto, the ct., in view of the small sum involved, granted the prayer of the petition.—PENNELL'S TRUSTEE, [1928] S. 8024a. Against receiver for debenture-holders—Act of bankruptcy consisting in sale of property to company.]—On Jan. 9, 1929, S., a builder, assigned his business & assets to a limited co. in consideration of shares in the co. On Jan. 14, 1929, the co. issued debentures charged on its assets & undertaking. On Feb. 14, 1929, a receiver was appointed by the debenture-holders. On May 23, 1929, S. was adjudicated a bkpt., & on May 27, 1929, a trustee in bkpcy. was appointed. On Apr. 15, 1930, an order was made by CLAUSON, J., upon a motion by the trustee against the co. & the debenture holders declaring that the assignment of Jan. 9, 1929, was fraudulent & void & an act of bkpcy. & that the assets of the bkpt. purported to be thereby assigned formed part of his estate & vested in the trustee for the benefit of his creditors ; & the co. was ordered to deliver up to the trustee or to account to him for such of the assets as had come to the hands of the co. or of any person by the order or for the use of the co. The receiver on taking possession converted to his own use chattels of the bkpt. consisting of plant & machinery, motor vans & office furniture & carried on the bkpt.'s business of a builder, in the course of which he completed a number of current building contracts & received payment thereunder from the building owners. On Dec. 23, 1931, the trustee elected to treat the receiver as a trespasser & claimed that the receiver (who by leave of the ct. was made a resp. to the motion of the trustee in place of the debenture-holders) by so taking possession, intermeddling with or trespassing on the assets, contracts & possessory rights which passed to him was a trespasser &/or guilty of conversion &/or interference with the trustee's contractual rights & was liable in damages for the value of all the assets & for the net moneys paid by the building owners under the building contracts as money had & received to his use. The receiver did not dispute his liability to account to the trustee for the sum of £2,600, the value of the chattels which he had converted to his use, but resisted the trustee's claim to recover as damages for their conversion a sum equal to the profits that would have accrued to him from the building contracts but for the acts of the receiver :—Held : the trustee having elected to treat the receiver as a wrongdoer in completing the contracts was not entitled to treat the contracts as having been kept alive for his benefit or to call upon the receiver to account for the profits realised by such completion as special damages for conversion or as damages for wrongfully intermeddling with the contracts between the bkpt. & the building owners ; also the profits made by the receiver on the contracts completed by him could not on the facts of the case be treated as money had & received to

At the end of the declaration & order a provision was inserted, at the request of, & by way of indulgence to, the wife that, with a view to the furniture being bought by or on behalf of the wife from the trustee at a valuation by an independent valuer to be appointed by the parties or in case of difference to be appointed by the judge, & the wife undertaking not to part with or dispose of the furniture, execution should not issue except by leave of the judge. The furniture was valued by a firm of valuers selected by the wife out of three firms suggested by the trustee, & bought by or on behalf of the wife at a price based upon the valuation. Upon the taxation of the trustee's solrs.' bill of costs, the taxing master disallowed as against the wife the fee paid by the trustee to the firm of valuers, upon the ground that the costs relating to the purchase of the furniture by or on behalf of the wife under the valuation did not come within the order, & were not costs of carrying it out. On a motion by the solrs. to review the taxation :—Held : the taxation must be reviewed & the fee for the valuation allowed as against the wife, inasmuch as it formed part of the costs of carrying out the order &

Where the official assignee, standing in no higher position by reason of the special provisions of the insolvency law than the bkpt. himself, seeks to recover a debt which is not admitted, it is a matter of discretion for the judge sitting in insolvency whether in any given case he should deal with such a claim in the Insolvency Ct. or refer it to the machinery of the ordinary cts.—OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. NARASIMHA MUDALIAR (1929), I. 8398a. Equitable assignor—Undertaking to pay specific sum out of moneys to be received.]—An action for the grant to pltf. by deft. of his proprietary interests in an invention was compromised by an order on certain terms. One of the terms was an undertaking by deft. to pay pltf. a sum of £1,000 forthwith, which was duly paid, & a further sum of £4,000 out of the first moneys received by deft. on a future sale of his rights in the invention. No time for the payment of the sum in question was fixed by the undertaking. At the date of the order pltf. was aware that deft. had already disposed of half his rights. Pltf. having learnt that deft. had agreed to sell the remaining half interest in these rights to one G. for a sum immediately payable & the balance by deferred payments & that he had used the amount received for his own purposes in breach, as the ct. found as a fact, of his undertaking, moved the ct. for the committal of deft. or the issue of a writ of attachment :—Held : (1) the undertaking to pay the £4,000, being an undertaking to pay a specific sum out of the moneys to be received in respect of a future sale, constituted a good equitable assignment thereof, & by dealing with the moneys received in disregard of the undertaking deft. had committed a breach of his fiduciary duty to pltf. The act of deft. therefore brought the case within the third exception to Debtors Act, 1869 (c. 62), s. 4 ; (2) the undertaking to pay out of the first moneys received could not be construed as an order to pay forthwith or within a fixed time after receipt within R. S. C., Ord. 41, r. 5, & therefore the order for committal or for leave to issue a writ of attachment could not be made. The ct., however, fixed a time for the payment of the moneys remaining due.—COTTON v. HEYL, [1930] 1 Ch. 510 ; 99 L. J. Ch. 289 ; 143 L. T. 16.

Bkpts. having made default in payment of instalments under the orders, the official receiver as trustee applied for a committal of bkpts. for contempt of ct. under sect. 22 (4) of the Act. It was objected that each application should be supported by affidavit & not by a report of the official receiver:—Held: the official receiver's report was sufficient evidence in support of the application in each case, & an order for committal must be made.—Re WHALEY, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, [1921] 2 K. 8439a. —— Application by agent for unincorporated association.]—In an action by pltf. against an unincorporated body & seventeen named persons described as its committee, in which pltf. claimed damages for libel, judgment was given in the High Ct. for deft. with costs. On a bkpcy. notice founded on that judgment not being complied with, defts. presented a petition in bkpcy.; but this petition was dismissed by the registrar as being wrong in form, on the ground (inter alia) that the petition was by an agent on behalf of an unincorporated assocn. & others, whereas such an assocn. cannot sue or be sued, either in its own name or by a purported agent. Subsequently, defts. took out a judgment summons in the county ct., & the county ct. judge ordered pltf. to pay by instalments the sum due under the judgment of the High Ct., together with the costs of the summons:—Held: (1) as procedure by judgment summons is a mode of enforcing a judgment & directly in connection with the action, as distinguished from a bkpcy. petition, which is not, the county ct. judge had jurisdiction to make the order; (2) the death of one of the successful defts. since the judgment did not render it necessary for the survivors to obtain the leave of the ct. before they could enforce the judgment.—BUNDY v. MOTOR CAB OWNER DRIVERS' ASSOCN. Pltfs. asked for rescission of the contract by reason of the fact that the purchaser concealed from them until after the execution of the contract the fact that he was an undischarged bkpt.:—Held: the entering into a contract in this form by an undischarged bkpt. is an obtaining of credit within sect. 155 of 1914 Act, & a contract so entered into by an undischarged bkpt. without disclosure of the fact that he is an undischarged bkpt. is unenforceable by him. 8645a. —— To entertain claim to enforce right adverse to deed—Creditor not entitled to benefit of deed.]—In 1922 applt. entered into the employment of debtor as manageress of his business, & as a condition of such employment she lent him a sum of £500 for the repayment of which he gave her a charge on his share & interest in his business. In 1924 debtor executed a deed of arrangement for the benefit of his creditors generally. The deed was expressed to be made between debtor of the first, the trustee of the second part, three named creditors of the third part, & " the several persons, companies, & partnership firms, being creditors of debtor, whose names & seals are set out & affixed to the schedule hereto, or who shall otherwise in writing assent to these presents, hereinafter called ' the creditors ' " of the fourth part. Applt., who refused to consent to the deed, applied under the above sect. for a declaration that she was entitled as against the trustee of the deed to a charge on all the share & interest, with the exception of chattels, of debtor in his business, & for an order that the trustee should hand over & execute such documents as might be necessary for the purpose of transferring the share & interest to applt. The registrar in bkpcy. dismissed the application on the ground that he had no jurisdiction under the sect. to entertain it. On appeal :—Held : (1) the object of the sect. was to provide a trustee or cestui que trust under a deed of arrangement with a summary means of obtaining a determination of questions arising in the administration of the trusts of the deed similar to that provided by originating summons in the Ch. Div. under R. S. C. Ord. 55, r. 3 ; (2) applt. was not a creditor entitled to the benefit of the deed ; creditors so entitled were those defined as such by the deed, & applt., not having assented to the deed, did not come within that category ; (3) applt.'s claim was not for the enforcement of the trusts or the determination of any questions arising under the deed within the above sect., but was a claim to enforce a right adverse & paramount to the deed.—Re Ellis, [1925] Ch. 564 ; 41 T. 8653a. Proposal in writing under 1914 Act, s. 16—Necessity for signature by debtor.] — At a meeting of creditors of a debtor against whom a receiving order had been made a proposal for a scheme of composition was submitted on behalf of the debtor. The proposal was not signed by the debtor himself but by his solrs. On behalf of the debtor a certificate by an eminent physician was exhibited to an affidavit, in which it was stated that the debtor was " still so seriously ill as to make it quite impossible for him to discuss any matters of business, & that any attempt to explain to him business details or proceedings would have a serious & possibly a fatal effect upon him " :—Held : no proposal for a composition had been lodged by the debtor within 1914 Act, s. 16 (1) ; the words " signed by him " were explicit ; there was no ground for altering the words of the statute or giving to the statute a judicial interpretation which would in effect be an amendment or alteration of its plain terms.—Re Blucher (Prince), Ex p. Debtor, [1931] 2 Ch. 70 ; 47 T. 8772a. Under 1914 (Deeds) Act—Necessity for assent of majority of creditors—How majority calculated.]—A debtor gave his sister a power of attorney authorising her to execute a deed of arrangement for the benefit of his creditors & to make any affidavit necessary for registering the deed. The deed was accordingly executed by her as his attorney under the power, & she also made the affidavit required by 1914 (Deeds) Act, s. 5 (1), to be made " by the debtor " on the registration of the deed stating the total estimated amount of property & liabilities included under the deed & the names & addresses of the creditors. There were ninety-six creditors in all, of whom sixty-eight were for sums over £10; twenty-five of the sixty-eight did not assent to the deed within the time required by the Act; forty-three with debts over £10 & twenty-eight with debts under £10 assented. The debtor escaped bkpcy. proceedings by reason of the execution of the deed & afterwards recognised it & concurred in the trustee acting under it. He subsequently made an application for a declaration that the deed was void. No creditor was made a party to the application, it being addressed to the trustee of the deed alone:—Held: (1) the deed had received the assent of the majority of creditors in number within sect. 3 (5) of the Act, inasmuch as for the purpose of the section creditors whose debts amount to sums not exceeding £10 are not to be reckoned either in calculating the total number of creditors or the majority in number; (2) inasmuch as the creditors did not, under the power of attorney, gain any control over the debtor's property or business, it was not in itself a deed of arrangement within sect. 1 (2) (e) of the Act, which required registration in order to be valid.—Re WILSON, [1916] 1 K. 8778a. —— ——.]—In 1904 debtor who was heavily indebted, & against whom bkpcy. proceedings were pending, signed an instrument under which a trustee was to receive the whole of debtor's income &, after making certain deductions, to distribute the balance among the creditors, & in consideration of the arrangement the creditors agreed that all proceedings in bkpcy. or otherwise were to be stayed & to accept payment of their debts by instalments & to release debtor from all claims or demands in respect of their debts. The instrument provided that no document executed by debtor should be registered under the above Act. A number of the then creditors including appct. assented to the instrument, which was never registered under the Act. The arrangement was carried out until the death of debtor, which occurred in Nov. 1918, appct. receiving pro rata amounts on his debt between Aug. 1905, & July, 1917. The debt carried interest at 4 per cent. & the payments under the arrangement to appct. were not sufficient to cover the interest so that an amount exceeding the original debt was still owing to appct. Feb. 1919, an administration order under 1914 Act, s. 130, was made upon a creditor's petition for the administration of deceased debtor's estate as being a person who had died insolvent, & the estate was being administered by the official receiver. At the time of debtor's death there was in the hands of the trustee under the instrument a sum of £465 8*s*. 3*d*. which the official receiver claimed on the ground that it formed part of the general estate of debtor, & the trustee paid the amount to him upon the terms that the official receiver was to be in the same position as he would have been if the money had remained in the trustee's hands. On a motion by appct. for a declaration that the £465 8*s*. 3*d*. was held by the trustee on behalf of the assenting creditors, including appct., was divisible amongst them, & that appct. was entitled to prove in the administration of the estate for the balance due to him from debtor after giving credit for all sums received or receivable under the arrangement: —Held: (1) the instrument was a deed of arrangement within 1887 Act, s. 4 (2), upon the ground that it was an assignment of property by debtor for the benefit of his creditors generally & also upon the ground that it was an agreement for a composition; (2) not having been registered it was void under sect. 5 of the Act; (3) as the instrument was void it created no trust for the benefit of the creditors, & the trustee under the instrument held the £465 8*s*. 3*d*. to the use of the official receiver as the representative of debtor, & was bound to repay it to him; (4) as the only direction to apply the money received by the trustee was contained in the void instrument & all parties knew & acted upon the assumption that it was invalid, deceased debtor would not have been, nor was the official receiver as his representative, estopped from setting up its invalidity & claiming from the trustee any money still in his hands; (5) equally there was no estoppel which prevented appct. from setting up the invalidity of the instrument & proving in the administration for the balance due to him from debtor; (6) as the instrument was void the release of the debts it contained was of no effect; (7) as under the instrument there was only a provision for payment to the creditors of debtor's income so long as he lived, no promise to pay the balance of the debts could be implied from the payments which had been made so as to take the debts out of the operation of the statutes of limitation, & appct.'s right to prove in the administration for the balance due to him was therefore barred.—Re LEE, Ex p. GRUNWALDT, [1920] 2 K. 8869a. —— Creditor with contingent claim.]—C., a debtor, in Oct. 1936, entered into a deed of arrangement with his creditors under which a certain lease, of which he was an assignee, was not assigned by was to be held by him on trust for the trustee of the deed. In the assignment of the lease to C. there was a covenant by him with the assignors (who were appct. & one D.) & with each of them to pay the rent & perform & observe the covenants on the part of the lessee & to keep the assignors effectually indemnified against all actions claims & demands whatsoever by reason or on account of the non-payment of the rent or the breach, non-performance or non-observance of the covenants or conditions or any of them. The lease had been assigned to appct. & D. by the original lessees, & in the deed of assignment to appct. & D. there was a covenant with the original lessees to the effect that the covenants implied by Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 77 (1), para. (c), should be incorporated in the deed—namely (inter alia) at all times to perform & observe the covenants contained in the original lease, & to keep the original lessees indemnified in respect of any breach of such covenants. Appct. had assented to the deed of arrangement entered into by the debtor with his creditors, but the deed did not contain any provision, in the trusts for the distribution of the debtor's property among the creditors, incorporating the bkpcy. provisions relating to the distribution of the property & assets of a bkpt. Appct. claimed to be a creditor of the debtor under the terms of the deed of arrangement. He alleged that he might be called upon by virtue of the covenants incorporated in the assignment to him to indemnify the original lessees (the assignors to him) against any liability they might be under to the lessors, & that, if he 8977a. To grant preferential treatment.]—On Apr. 21, 1933, the debtor executed a deed of arrangement in favour of a trustee & his creditors. The deed did not contain a trust for the payment by way of preference of those persons who would be preferential creditors if the debtor were in bkpcy. At the date of the execution of the deed an employee of the debtor was receiving compensation at the rate of £1 3*s.* 10*d.* per week under an award made pursuant to the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925 (c. 84). On May 22, 1933, the trustee of the deed wrote, through his solrs., to the employee's solrs. that he would treat the employee's claim to compensation as a preferential claim. Later he was advised that he was not entitled to grant any preferential treatment. He then brought the matter before the county ct. The county ct.

9025a. Claim for royalties.]—N. & B. were the holders by novation of a licence from pltf. co. to use & exercise certain inventions relating to wireless apparatus which were the subject of letters patent owned or controlled by pltf. co. subject to the payment of certain royalties by N. & B. to pltf. co. N. & B. got into difficulties, & were unable to meet their obligations as they became due owing to overtrading, but they claimed to be still solvent. At a meeting of the trade creditors it was agreed that a committee of inspection should be appointed & that N. & B. should execute a deed of inspectorship. The deed, which was executed on May 6, 1928, was in the usual form, & in all material particulars the same as that considered by the ct. in Easterbrook v. Barker, No. 9024. By the deed N. & B., the debtors, in consideration of a release of their indebtedness to the assenting creditors, assigned their real & personal estates to C. as inspector upon trust to allow N. & B. " henceforth to manage & carry on their said business " subject to the covenants & conditions of the deed. N. & B. undertook to carry on the business or wind it up as the inspector & committee should think best. In a circular which was sent out by C., the inspector, on Sept. 10, 1928, announcing that the deed of inspectorship had been executed, it was stated that " all orders for goods required for the purpose of carrying on the business will be issued on my official order forms in the usual way & will be paid for by me." The inspector & the committee of inspection left the conduct of the business subsequent to the execution of the deed of inspectorship to N. & B. Pltfs. brought an action by which they claimed royalties upon wireless sets constructed & sold by N. & B. since Sept. 6, 1928. The action was brought against N. & B. & also against the inspector & the members of the committee of inspection personally :—Held : the deed of inspectorship did not constitute a partnership between N. & B. & their creditors, or between N. & B. & the inspector & the committee, also N. & B. did not become the agents of the inspector or of the committee to carry on the business, but the business remained the business of N. & B. & therefore pltfs.' claim for royalties against the inspector & committee of inspection failed.—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. NEWMAN, [1930] 2 K. sy. Assignment to creditor to secure advances—Retention of amount by assignee in excess of amount paid to creditors.]—Pltf. having become insolvent, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, whereupon one of the creditors was appointed assignee. The business was reconveyed to pltf. on his undertaking to pay a composition on the amount of his indebtedness for the payment of which another of defts. became surety, & pltf. subsequently executed several assignments to defts. to secure advances. Defts. having taken possession under the last-mentioned assignments, the matters in difference between pltf. & defts. were referred to a master, with instructions to " take an account & report the sum due from either party to the other of them." The master having reported (inter alia) that defts., after paying the other creditors of pltf. their respective claims at the rate of sixty-two & a half cents on the dollar, had paid to themselves the full amount of their claim, & that being of opinion that defts. were not entitled to any greater rate of dividend on their claim than that paid to the other creditors, he had disallowed the surplus with interest, & had credited the same to pltf. :—Held : the decision of the Supreme Ct. of Nova Scotia, confirming the report of the master on the reference must be reversed on the ground that the master had exceeded his authority & reported on matters not ref rred to him.—DOULL v. MCILREITH (1886), 19 N. On that date, being in difficulties, defts. executed a deed of assignment to a trustee for the benefit of their creditors. In an action for the balance of the price of goods sold to defts. before the deed of arrangement, the judge held that pltf. co. by its conduct was bound by the deed of arrangement, & was estopped, not only from relying upon the deed as an act of bkpcy., but also from bringing the action :—Held : defts. could not rely upon an estoppel, but pltf. co. by its conduct had assented to the deed of arrangement, &, therefore, could not succeed in the action.—WESTON (VICTOR) (FABRICS), LTD. v. MORGENSTERNS, [1937] 3 All E. The latter portion of the document was as follows: "& we the undersigned creditors of the said A. do hereby agree to accept as full settlement of the claims we have against him such pro rata share as may be found due in respect of the sale of the said assets, & we agree to pay the said applt. the usual commission on all assets realised: applt. having taken possession of the assets & having sold some of them, resp., one of the creditors who had signed the document, in an action against applt., complained that applt. had awarded a preference to one M. a creditor who had signed the document in respect of his claim which was based on two mtge. bonds referred to in the schedule of assets, & that applt. had failed to award resp. a pro rata share of the proceeds of the assets realised. It was common cause that if M. was entitled to the preference, resp., an unsecured creditor, would get nothing. The C. P. D. ordered applt. to amend his account by striking out the preference awarded to M. & distributing the proceeds of the assets among the creditors pro rata according to the respective amounts of their claims. Extrinsic evidence showing that the parties never intended that the secured creditors should abandon their preference had been led subject to subsequent decision as to its admissibility, but was held by the cts. below to be inadmissible, on the ground that the document was not ambiguous :—Held : the words "pro rata share" meant that the three creditors were to look to the proceeds of the assets in the schedule alone for the settlement of their claims, if the assets did not realise the full amount of their debts, that they had reference not to the respective claims of the creditors but to the proportion that the proceeds bore to the total amount of the debts & that there was nothing in the document to show that preferences were to be given up.—SWANEPOEL v. VAN HEERDEN, [1928] App. D. 15.—S. sd. Promise to pay by instalments—

—— Or order.]—The directors of pltf. co., being desirous of paying £250 to the L. & W. Corpn. for services rendered, drew a document in the form of a cheque for that amount on their account with deft. bank & delivered the document to B., a director of the L. & W. Corpn. The document was partly printed & partly in writing. The printed form was suitable for being filled in to make a cheque payable to order. It contained the blank space for the name of the payee to be filled in, followed by the printed words " or order." The document was made out in the form " Pay cash or order," the word " cash " being in writing. The document was not crossed & was never endorsed. It was paid into B.'s banking account & presented to deft. bank in the ordinary way of bank accounting, & was duly paid. In the result, the sum of £250 passed from the account of pltf. co. with deft. bank to the L. & W. Corpn., & deft. bank debited pltf. co.'s account with that sum & interest. Subsequently, a compulsory winding up order was made against pltf. co. on the petition of the Board of Trade, presented a few days before the above transactions took place. The liquidator of pltf. co. contended that the document was a cheque payable to order & required endorsement, & that as it had not been endorsed, deft. bank had no authority to pay the money as they did :—Held : the document could not be described as a cheque, because it was not a bill of exchange within 1882 Act, s. 73. The word " cash " could not be described as a " specified person." The document was not payable either to a specified person or to bearer, &, therefore, failed to satisfy 1882 Act, s. 7, which required that there must be a payee. The document must therefore be construed in accordance with the apparent intention of those who drew it. The printed words " or order," being inconsistent with the apparent intention of the drawers, must be neglected in favour of the written word " cash." Therefore, the document was a good direction to the bank to pay £250 to bearer. Deft. bank having paid the money in accordance with that direction, the action failed.—NORTH & SOUTH INSURANCE CORPN., LTD. v. NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK, LTD., [1936] 1 K. B. 328 ; 105 L. J. K. 508a. —— ——.]—Defts., merchants in London, were in the habit of purchasing goods for G., a merchant at Petersburg, which they consigned to pltf., his agent at Hamburg, & they drew bills to the amount, pursuant to the credit established for them. In such course of business, they consigned Brazil sugars & indigo to pltf. for G. & other merchants at Petersburg, & transmitted the bills of lading, & drew bills to the amount; upon which pltf. informed them, that he protected their drafts to the amount of all the goods consigned to the merchants at Petersburg, except those consigned to G.; that he accepted the draft for the amount of such goods provisionally, under the guarantee of defts., inasmuch as the sugars against which the bill was drawn were not, as ordered by his principal, Havannah, to the amount of which he was authorised to accept, but Brazil, respecting which he had no directions; that he would communicate with his principal on the subject, & inform defts. of the result. Such communication being made, G. at Petersburg, confirmed the order for the Brazil sugars, & directed pltf. to accept to their amount, & release defts. from their guarantee. Pltf. also informed defts. of their drafts, drawn on him against goods, being confirmed & acknowledged by other merchants at Petersburg, for whose account they were drawn. Upon the bkpcy. of G. & an action by pltf. against defts., for the amount of the bill which he had paid:—Held: pltf. was to be considered as having accepted the bill, not for the account of defts. until he, the acceptor, was in funds, but in reference to the confirmation of the order for the Brazil, instead of the Havannah sugars; which confirmation being given, his claim was upon the bkpt. at Petersburg, not upon defts., against whom, consequently, no action could be maintained.—LOHMANN v. ROUGEMONT (1840), 6 Bing. 564a. —— Authority to indorse.]—Bills of exchange drawn by pltfs. to their own order, on & accepted by W. S. & Co., a co. of which deft. was a director, were indorsed by deft. in pursuance of a verbal agreement under which pltfs. sold & delivered goods to the acceptors, in consideration of deft. indorsing the bills with the intention of making himself liable to pltfs. in case of default by the acceptors. Pltfs. subsequently indorsed the bills, writing their name underneath that of deft. Pltfs. sued deft. as indorser:—Held: Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 20, pltfs. had authority to complete the bills by adding their own indorsement, & the fact that pltfs. wrote their name underneath, instead of above, that of deft. was no answer to pltfs.' claim; (2) although the verbal contract found to have been made between deft. & pltfs. was in one sense a contract of guarantee, Stat. 567c. No drawee—Name of wrong drawee inserted—Alteration with consent of drawer.]—M. drew two documents in the form of bills of exchange, but addressed to no one, for £1,000 & £500, respectively, payable ninety days after date. Deft. was induced, by fraud, to sign a form of acceptance written across each document. M. then took the documents to pltf. & requested him to get them discounted at his (pltf.'s) bank. Pltf., by mistake, inserted M.'s name as addressee on both documents, & took them to his bank, who, however, ultimately declined to discount them. M. then asked pltf. to discount them for him. Before doing so, pltf., in the presence of, & with the consent of M., crossed out M.'s name as addressee & substituted that of deft. Pltf., as bonâ fide holder for value without notice of any fraud, subsequently presented the documents to the deft., who refused to pay:—Held: (1) the insertion of deft.'s name as addressee was within sect. 20 of 1882 Act, & made the documents good bills of exchange on which deft. could be sued; (2) there was no material alteration within sect. 64 of that Act; (3) if the documents were not good bills of exchange, they were promissory notes on which deft. could be sued by a bonâ fide holder for value without notice.—Haseldine v. Winstanley, [1936] 2 K. 568a. —— Effect of 1882 Act, s. 12.]—F., a financier, L., a distiller, D. & M., a firm of shipbrokers, & one A. were minded to load a ship with a cargo of whisky to be carried across the Atlantic & sold in the U.S. or at some point from which it could easily be smuggled into the U.S., in violation of the laws of that country. D. & M. entered into a contract to buy a steamer for £2,565; F. advanced £256 as a deposit on the purchase. On Oct. 26, 1927, an agreement was entered into between F., L. & D. & M., whereby L. agreed to sell to D. & M. 7,500 cases of whisky at 27*s.* 6*d.* a case free on board at Leith or Glasgow to be delivered ex warehouse not later than Nov. 26. D. & M. were to take delivery on board a vessel of a regular line of steamers. Payment was to be made by a bill for £5,500 drawn by F., accepted by A. & indorsed to L., & a second bill for £4,812 accepted by A. & D. & M., both bills to be payable ninety days from Nov. 26, & to be drawn & accepted on Oct. 26 & handed to L. to hold as security until he should hand the shipping documents or delivery order from bond on or before Nov. 26. L. agreed to lend D. & M. £2,500 (£1,000 at 8 per cent. per annum & £1,500 at 40 per cent. per annum interest) for the purchase of the steamer, the loan to be secured by a first mtge. on the steamer. F. agreed to lend D. & M. £1,000 at 40 per cent. per annum interest to be secured by a second mtge. on the steamer. D. & M. agreed to insure the steamer for £1,000 against all risks including seizure or confiscation & £2,500 against marine risks & deliver to L. cover notes for £1,500 & £1,000 & to F. a cover note for £1,000. F. & L. agreed jointly to underwrite the insurance for £1,000 against confiscation at a figure to be agreed in the event of the ordinary market rate exceeding thirty guineas per cent. D. & M. agreed to provide £1,600, the estimated balance required for the equipment of the steamer for the voyage. In intended pursuance of the agreement two documents undated, & purporting to be bills of exchange, though written upon unstamped paper, were sent to L.; both were headed "London"; one was drawn by F., accepted by A., & indorsed by F., & was for £5,500, payable ninety days after date; the other not signed by any one as drawer; it was accepted by A. & by D. & M., & was for £4,812 payable ninety days after date. Delay having occurred in naming a liner to take delivery of the whisky & in equipping the steamer for the adventure, L. gave to D. & M. a delivery order addressed to the keepers of the bonded warehouse where the whisky was in store. D. & M. immediately pledged the whisky for £500. F. hearing of this paid off the loan & took a transfer of the delivery order. The so-called bills of exchange for £5,500 & £4,812 were sent to L., who was at Lausanne. He struck out "London" & substituted "Lausanne," added Dec. 3 as the date of each, & signed his name as the drawer of the second, & stamped them both as foreign bills:—Held: (1) the so-called bill for £5,500, being drawn, accepted & indorsed in this country on unstamped paper, was void by Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), ss. 2, 37 (2), 38 (1); (2) the so-called bill for £4,812 though valid in other respects, as a foreign bill, notwithstanding 1882 Act, s. 64, was invalidated by L. having added a date not in accordance with the contract, & was not protected by 1882 Act, s. 12.—Foster v. Driscoll, Lindsay v. Attfield, Lindsay v. Driscoll, [1929] 1 K. 588a. —— Particular purpose—Fraudulent use for another purpose.]—A cheque was signed in blank by one of the partners in a syndicate, in the belief that the stamp of the syndicate would be subsequently affixed & the cheque used for the ordinary business of the syndicate. It was made payable to another partner, & was indorsed by a third partner, who believed the same as the drawer, as well as by the payee. The payee, in fraud of the other two partners, did not affix the stamp of the syndicate & used the cheque for the purpose of raising a loan from money-lenders, for which he gave a promissory note binding him to repay an agreed sum by monthly instalments. When one of the instalments fell due, the cheque was tendered in payment & was dishonoured upon presentation, & the money-lenders then sued the drawer & the indorser :—Held : the drawer & indorser were liable on the cheque, as there had been nothing to put pltfs. on inquiry whether a fraud was being perpetrated by the payee, & as both defts., when signing the document, had intended that the document should be negotiated as a cheque, the cheque could not be regarded as a document given in escrow.—GUILDFORD TRUST, LTD. v. GOSS (1927), 136 L. Accordingly the same two directors signed the bill also on the back, " Fashions Fair Exhibition, Ltd. A.B. & C.D., directors," & one of them when returning the accepted bill drew attention in his letter to the fact that it was " duly indorsed by two directors of the co. as requested by you." In an action against A.B. & C.D. as indorsers of the bill :—Held : (1) they were personally liable, upon the ground that if the indorsement was to be treated as that of the co. it gave no greater validity to the bill than was already contained in the acceptance, & therefore under 1882 Act, s. 26 (2), the construction that it was the personal indorsement of defts. was to be adopted; (2) even if the indorsement stood by itself, as defts.' signature did not in terms say that they were signing on behalf of the co., the addition to their names of the word " directors " must be treated as a word of description only & not as excluding their liability; (3) the ct. were entitled to look at the surrounding circumstances under which the bill was signed, including the letters which passed between the parties on the subject of the indorsement, from which it was to be inferred that defts. by indorsing intended to guarantee the payment of the bill.—ELLIOTT v. BAX-IRONSIDE, [1925] 2 K. They had been accepted in respect of goods supplied by the co. to defts., & pltf. had stated that it must be " clearly understood that I am in no way accepting any liability or responsibility whatever in respect of the orders themselves " :—Held : (1) the above were not " surrounding circumstances " from which the intention of the parties could be inferred, & such intention must be gathered from the terms of the document alone; (2) the words " Receiver, F. Ltd." were words of description only, & the bills did not purport to have been drawn on behalf of the co.; (3) pltf. was entitled to recover against defts. upon the bills.—KETTLE v. DUNSTER & WAKEFIELD (1927), 138 L. 843a. Fraudulent pledge of debentures—Surrender for renewal—Rights of pledgee.]—A man, entrusted with certain debenture securities for the purpose of collecting the interest on behalf of the owners, by means of forged endorsements pledged all the debentures with his bankers to secure his own indebtedness. Later the debentures, which constituted negotiable instruments, were surrendered by the bank to the issuing authority, who exchanged them for new debentures of the same total value. All the new instruments were issued directly to & in the name of the surrendering bank, & clear of all previous endorsements. The original securities were then cancelled & retained by the makers. Later the said bank at the request of the pledgor of the securities endorsed the new instruments over to another bank, the present respondents, to whom he had transferred his loan account. On a claim by the owners of the original tures, the present applts., for the delivery to them of the new instruments by resp. bank :—Held : there was nothing in the circumstances of the transaction to put resps. on inquiry. The issue by the makers of the "renewal" debentures constituted in effect a new contract between them & the first bank, &, resp. bank being the holders in due course of those instruments, applts. had no right of action against them. The "renewals" were in form & in substance new & independent obligations in substitution for those under the surrendered instruments.—MASCARENHAS v. MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LTD., DA SILVA v. MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LTD. This was done at the solicitation of K., a representative of pltf. co., who said that he would not sue "them" so long as they showed a disposition to pay :—Held : by "them" K. meant the debtor co.; forbearance to sue upon the demand note was a sufficient consideration for the giving of it; & the wife deft. was liable upon it.—CITIES SERVICE OIL CO. v. RUBEL, [1931] 2 D. sx. Giving credit.]—In an action upon promissory notes made by defts. husband & wife, in favour of pltfs. wholesale merchants, it appeared that in Mar. 1921, the wife deft. who had been carrying on a retail business, made an assignment under the Bkpcy. Act, & shortly afterwards made a proposal to compound her debts at 35 cents in the dollar, to be paid in ten equal monthly instalments. The composition was duly approved by the ct. Pltfs. were among the creditors. The debtor did not complete the composition payments within the times proposed, & the final payment was not made until Aug. 1923. After the composition was approved, the debtor continued to do business, & made some purchases from pltfs. In Sept. 1922, the debtor proposed to buy a large quantity from pltfs. on credit, but pltfs. refused to give credit for the quantity desired unless defts. would make some settlement of the old debt, i.e. the unpaid balance of pltfs.' compound claim. Defts. thereupon signed the promissory notes now sued upon, delivered them to pltfs., & received a new supply of goods upon the credit they desired :—Held : the notes were not made for the accommodation of pltfs.; but, though representing a compromised debt, were in fact made in consideration of the giving of credit in respect of the new sale, & that was sufficient consideration to support the notes & to render defts. liable.—CHAMANDY BROTHERS, LTD. v. ALBERT, [1923] 2 D. The note was credited by the bank to B., the first resp. receiving no part of the money. On Dec. 23, 1918, B. paid to the bank a sum out of which the bank allocated Rs. 908 to the payment of the interest due upon the note. B. had notice of that allocation & adopted it in his own books. Defts. endorsed the notes upon these conditions. The notes were not discounted by pltf. bank, but were pledged to the bank by the co. as collateral security for advances made to the co. The co. never raised the $1,000 necessary to complete the payment of $4,000 :—Held : the local manager of the bank had full notice & knowledge of the arrangement, & when he accepted the notes as pledge he was not acting in good faith & pltf. bank was therefore not a holder in due course.—IMPERIAL BANK v. HEISZ, IMPERIAL BANK v. HUNDT, [1930] 1 D. It was a term of the hire-purchase agreement, that defts. should be entitled to determine the hiring by returning the car to the H. Co. &, thereupon, the H. Co. was obliged to surrender all promissory notes given by defts., & not then due. Pltf., in course of an arrangement for financing the H. Co.'s transactions, paid the H. Thereafter, defts. proposed, in lieu of the instalments, to pay £150 at once, & the residue of the consideration in a single deferred payment. The H. sf. Question for jury.]—Pltf. sued upon two promissory notes made by deft. to L. & transferred, after maturity, & not for value, to pltf. They were renewals for the balance unpaid of a previous note from deft. to L. There was conflicting evidence as to the reason & consideration for giving the original note. L. asserted that the note was given for the amount owing to him by deft. on a loan. Deft. asserted that the note was for L.'s accommodation; that the loan from L., asserted by L. to have been made to deft., had in fact been made to one R., that subsequently L. wanted the money, R. could not then pay, that deft. gave the note, for the same amount as that owing by R., to enable L. to raise money, but received no consideration, that it was agreed that deft. was not to be called upon to pay the note or any renewals, & that the note or any renewals would not be negotiated after maturity. The trial judge withdrew the case from the jury :—Held : there the questions whether the note was given simply for L.'s accommodation or in consideration of a debt due by deft. or by R., & whether there was an agreement, as alleged by deft., that the note should not be negotiated after maturity, should have been submitted to the jury.—GLESBY v. MITCHELL, [1932] S. 1096 x. —— ——.]—D. sued T. on a promissory note which had been given by T. to F. & which had been indorsed by F. to D. T.'s defence was that the note had been obtained from him by fraud & that D. had notice of the fraud when it was endorsed to him. D. proved the indorsement of the note to him & closed his case. T. then established in his case that the note had been obtained from him by fraud. D. in reply, gave evidence of the circumstances under which the note was indorsed to him; this evidence was not very clear or definite. He was cross-examined at length, & it was shown that his recollection was deficient in some respects. The trial judge directed a verdict for D. & the jury gave a verdict for D. accordingly without leaving the box :—Held : upon proof by T. that the note had been obtained by fraud, sect. 35 of Bills of Exchange Act cast the burden upon D. of proving that value had in good faith been given by him for the bill, & the trial judge should have left that issue to the jury.—DOUGLAS v. TIERNAN (1932), 32 S. Rubber stamp—Various names—Intention of indorser.]—Thomas Cook & Son, Ltd., carried on a tourist & ticket business, & Thomas Cook & Son (Bankers), Ltd., an allied but quite separate co., carried on a money-changing business in the same room. An employee of pltf. co., having in his possession in the course of his employment certain cheques drawn in favour of pltf. co., obtained that co.'s indorsement upon them, wrote above the indorsement " Pay to the order of Messrs. Thos. Cook & Son, Ltd." & gave the cheques to Thomas Cook & Son (Bankers), Ltd., in exchange for foreign currency. The cheques were then further indorsed by Thomas Cook & Son (Bankers), Ltd., by means of a rubber stamp " per pro Thos. Cook & Son. per pro Thos. Cook & Son, Ltd. per pro Thos. Cook & Son (Bankers), Ltd." & countersigned in the usual way. In an action for conversion of the cheques, pltf. co. contended that either Thomas Cook & Son, Ltd., was liable because that co. had converted the cheques & had not given value for them, or that Thomas Cook & Son (Bankers), Ltd., was liable because it gave value for the cheques when Thomas Cook & Son, Ltd., in whose favour they were indorsed, had not indorsed them :—Held : when pltf. co.'s employee wrote the words " Pay to the order of Messrs. Thos. Cook & Son, Ltd." he intended the cheques to pass to Thomas Cook & Son (Bankers), Ltd., in exchange for the foreign currency, & although he misdescribed that co., the cheques were in law indorsed to that co. 1548a. —— —— —— Bill treated as promissory note.]—On Mar. 23, 1920, the branch of the British Trade Corpn., Ltd., at Batoum, drew a document in the following form: "At sight pay this sole exchange to the order of Mr. B. L. Mailoff the sum of one thousand pounds sterling value received which place to account No. 2." The document was signed "For the British Trade Corpn." by the manager & accountant, & it was addressed at the foot "To the British Trade Corpn., 13, Austin Friars, London, E.C." By successive indorsements pltf. became the holder, & on Dec. 20, 1923, his agents presented the document at the London offices of the corpn. Payment was refused, as it was required that the indorsements should have a banker's certification. On Nov. 23, 1926, a special resolution was passed for the voluntary winding up of the corpn. in connection with an amalgamation with the Anglo-Austrian Bank, Ltd. On Apr. 6, 1931, pltf. sought to prove in the winding up for £1,000 in respect of the document, but the liquidator rejected the proof on the ground that it was barred by the Statute of Limitations, as more than six years had elapsed since the date of the document before the winding-up resolution. The holder took out a summons claiming to have his proof admitted and he elected to treat the document as a promissory note :—Held : the document when treated as a promissory note did not need to be presented for payment in order to render the maker liable, because, in order that a place of payment should be specified "in the body" of the note within sect. 87, sub-sect. 1, it must be embodied in the actual terms of the contract for payment. Time therefore began to run under the Statute of Limitations as from the date of the document, & it was barred before the date of the winding-up resolution.—Re BRITISH TRADE CORPN., LTD., [1932] 2 Ch. 1; 101 L. In payment for these goods J. drew a bill of exchange to his own order at three months for £450 upon C., Ltd., who accepted it, & it was indorsed by G. before J. had indorsed it as payee, & his name appeared below that of G. The bill was indorsed by G. in order to enable J. to discount it, & for no consideration moving from J. to G., who was to be under no liability to J. The bill was discounted by J.'s bank & was not met at maturity. An arrangement was subsequently made by which C., Ltd., paid £100 in cash to the bank in part satisfaction & the bank received two bills drawn by J. to his own order & accepted by C., Ltd., for £175 each at one month & two months respectively. These bills were indorsed by G. before they were signed by J. either as drawer or payee. They were afterwards indorsed by J., whose name appeared on the bills below that of G. The first bill not having been met at maturity, J. took it up & sued C., Ltd., & G. upon the bill & recovered judgment, & afterwards presented a petition in bkpcy. in the county ct. against G., founded on the judgment debt, upon which a receiving order was made against him. 2096b. —— —— ——.]—In May, 1920, applts. sold to A. & Co. 19,000 cases of tinned soup at the price of 10*s.* per case, cash against delivery order. A. & Co., being unable to find the money, applied for financial assistance to resps., who undertook as between themselves & A. & Co. to find 75 per cent. of the money, there being then about 16,000 cases which had not been taken up. On Aug. 10, 1920, at a meeting between applts., resps. & A. & Co., it was agreed that resps. should indorse a series of eight bills of exchange, seven for £1,000 each & one for £117 odd, to be drawn by applts. on A. & Co. payable six months after date to applts.' order, & that applts., in consideration of the bills being duly indorsed by resps., should hand to resps. delivery orders for the balance of the cases. These bills were at once drawn by applts. on A. & Co. expressed to be payable to applts.' order, & were accepted by A. & Co & indorsed by resps. Room was left above the name of resps. for the indorsement of the name of any person to whom applts. should direct payment. Resps. then handed the bills to applts. in exchange for the delivery orders. One bill having been discharged, applts. shortly before the remaining bills became due indorsed their name as payee on the bills above resps.' signature. Applts. duly presented the bills to A. & Co., who dishonoured them. They then gave notice of dishonour & claimed payment from resps., who denied liability. In an action by applts. to recover the amount of the bills against resps. as indorsers:—Held: (1) on the facts resps. must be taken to have intended to make themselves liable to applts. on the bills; (2) the bills, when handed to applts., were wanting in a material particular within 1882 Act, s. 20, by reason of the absence of any indorsement by applts. above the signature of resps., & applts. had implied authority to fill in their name as payees, as they did, over the name of resps.; & when so filled up, the bills became retrospectively enforceable.—MCDONALD (GERALD) & CO. v. NASH & CO., [1924] A. 2158a. Breach of agreement to accept—Market value of bill.]—Applts. & resps. had entered into a series of contracts for the purchase & sale of timber. Disputes had arisen with reference to the performance of those contracts, & on Aug. 2, 1931, the parties met & entered into a fresh contract with a view to the settlement of a particular dispute. The fresh contract provided (inter alia) for the acceptance by the resps. of bills of exchange for £70,000. Subsequently resps. on instructions from their principals, refused to carry out their agreement to accept bills. Applts. brought this action, claiming £70,000 or specific performance of the agreement, & resps. raised various matters by way of counterclaim. BATESON, J., by whom the action was tried, gave judgment for applts. for £70,000 & decided in favour of the resps. on part of the counterclaim. On appeal from that judgment the Ct. of Appeal ordered a new trial & stated that the bills to be accepted by the resps. under the contract of Aug. 2, 1931, should have been accepted subject to the terms of the contract so that a discounter of the bills would have notice of the terms of that contract & would be bound by them. There was nothing in the contract requiring that the acceptances should be in any way qualified, although there was an independent stipulation that if the resps. should so require the bills should be renewed. Applts. now appealed to the House of Lords:—Held: acceptance quali-

2416a. —— —— Verbal agreement for acceptance of composition.]—Pltf. was the holder of a bill of exchange accepted by deft. for goods supplied. Before the bill became due deft. had made a verbal offer to his creditors to pay a composition in discharge of his liabilities. At a meeting of the creditors, which was attended by pltf.'s agent, the creditors passed a resolution accepting deft.'s offer. The resolution was reduced to writing & was signed by a number of the creditors, including pltf.'s agent, but not by deft. The creditors subsequently executed a deed assigning their debts to deft.'s solr. in consideration of deft.'s solr. paying the amounts owing to them under the composition. Pltf. was not a party to that deed. In an action by the holder of the bill against the acceptor, for the amount of the bill :—Held : upholding a contention of pltf., which was not raised in the cts. below, 1882 Act, s. 62, had not been complied with, as pltf. had neither renounced his rights under the bill in writing, nor delivered the bill up to the acceptor &, therefore, pltf. was entitled to recover the full amount of the bill.—RIMALT v. CARTWRIGHT (1924), 93 L. 2475a. —— Addition of " per " another party.]—Pltfs., exors. of one Turner, deceased, employed a solr., one C., of a firm C. & P., to act for them in matters relating to the deceased's estate. They wished to invest a sum of £5,000 through a firm of stockbrokers, & C. accordingly prepared a cheque for that amount payable to the stockbrokers ; pltfs. then signed the cheque & handed it back to C. to deal with as directed. C., however, fraudulently added to the cheque the words " per C. & P.," & then indorsed the cheque with the words " C. & P." & handed it to a branch of deft. bank to be credited to the account which a co. in which he was interested kept at that branch. The cheque was credited to that co. & was passed through the clearing house, & in due course pltfs. were debited by their own bank with the sum of £5,000. On discovering the fraud pltfs. brought this action to recover the £5,000 from defts. :—Held : the words added by C. to the cheque constituted a material alteration & rendered the cheque void under Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 64 (1). As therefore the cheque when it came into the hands of defts. was merely a piece of worthless paper no action could be brought on it, & pltfs.' claim failed.—SLINGSBY v. WESTMINSTER BANK (No. 2), [1931] 2 K. The parties to the bills having mutually agreed that the dates of payment should be postponed, resps. altered the dates so noted, but without making any alteration in the bills as originally drawn. On presentation for payment at the extended dates the bills were dishonoured by applts. :—Held : there had been no discharge of the bills by material alteration, nor was a new stamping necessary under Indian Stamp Act, 1899, ss. 14, 35 ; & applts. remained liable.—PESTONJI (H.) & CO. v. COX & CO. 2475b. —— ——.]—Pltfs., exors. of a will, kept an exors.' account with defts., & retained a firm of solrs., Messrs. C. & P., who used to assist them in matters connected with their testator's estate. The acting member of the firm was one J. C. Pltfs. in conference with J. C. decided to invest through Messrs. J. P. & Co. or order" & was drawn on pltfs.' deposit account with the defts. The cheque was signed by pltfs. & left with J. C. to be posted to J. P. & Co. with instructions to invest the money. J. C., instead of posting the cheque to J. P. & Co., fraudulently inserted the words "per C. & P." in the blank space between the payees' name & the words "or order"; he then indorsed the document with the names C. & P. & paid it so altered & indorsed into the W. In an action by pltfs. against defts. for conversion, negligence & breach of duty :—Held : (1) the cheque had been "materially altered" within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 64, & was avoided as between pltfs. & defts. by that sect., & therefore defts. could not rely upon sect. 60 of the Act as excusing them for paying the cheque; (2) for the same reason defts. could not rely on sect. 80 of the Act; (3) assuming the description of the payees, "J. P. & Co. per C. & P." to be a recognised although unusual description, the indorsement of "C. & P." without any reference to "J. 2816b. —— Bills drawn in Russia—Payable in sterling in London.]—In Oct. 1915, in order to rehabilitate Russian credit in London, an arrangement was made by the Bank of England, with the authority of the Treasury, under which approved Russian banks were to draw three months' sterling bills & remit them through the Banque de l'Etat, Petrograd, to London for acceptance by certain banks & accepting houses, who agreed to renew the bills until one year after the termination of the War, the Banque de l'Etat undertaking to provide to meet the acceptances on maturity. Imperial Russian Treasury Bills to the amount of the acceptances were to be lodged with the Bank of England as collateral security. No accepting house was to be liable for more than £100,000, unless otherwise agreed. In pursuance of this arrangement the Russio-Asiastic Bank in 1916 drew 151 bills of exchange on twenty-one accepting houses maturing in Feb. & Mar. 1918, which were prevented through Baring Bros. & Co. as agents for the Banque de l'Etat & accepted by the banks & financial houses under a form of agreement with the Banque de l'Etat which carried out the above arrangement more completely ; & authorised the issue by the Treasury of sterling Treasury Bills of the Imperial Russian Government to the amount of the acceptances to cover any default in payment on maturity. In Jan. 1918, shortly before maturity, all the acceptances were assigned to the Bank of England in consideration of the issue of Exchequer bonds to the accepting houses to the amount thereof. Notice of the assignment was despatched by the Bank of England to the Russo-Asiatic Bank in Petrograd, but according to the evidence never reached its destination in consequence of the Bolshevist revolution in Russia. By a decree issued by the Soviet Government in Dec. 1917, all private banks in Russia were abolished & the whole of their assets transferred to a State Bank. The Russo-Asiatic Bank, whose head office was in Petrograd, was one of the banks so abolished. Its London branch was opened in 1908 & was ordered to be wound up by the ct. in 1926, under sect. 338 of Cos. Act, 1929. The Bank of England, on behalf of the Crown, lodged a proof of debt in the liquidation for £752,500, proceeds of the above named bills. The liquidator rejected the proof of the Bank of England on several grounds, the most important being that the claim was barred by the Statutes of Limitation :—Held : (1) the bills had been assigned to the Bank of England with the authority & on behalf of the Crown, & had passed to the Bank an equitable title to all the rights under the agreements made with the acceptors, including the right of action for breach of contract, if the bills were not paid at maturity ; (2) the obligation being to pay in sterling in London at maturity the debt was located in England & not in Russia, & therefore English law must be applied ; (3) that the Russian Imperial Treasury bills were only a collateral security & being of no value at any material time were not a discharge of the debt ; (4) on the evidence of experts & documents, the Russo-Asiastic Bank ceased to have any corporate existence in Russia as the result of decrees of the Soviet Government on or before Jan. 26, 1918, a date before the bills matured, & as from that date there was no debtor who could be sued. Stat. Limitations therefore was no defence to the application, & the Bank of England was entitled to be admitted to prove for the debt in the winding-up of the London branch of resp. bank. There being no evidence, however, that notice of the assignment had reached the drawers, the assignors must be joined in the application.—Re RUSSO-ASIATIC BANK, Re RUSSIAN BANK FOR FOREIGN TRADE, [1934] Ch. 720 ; 103 L. 2819a. Foreign usage—Evidence of—Admissibility.]—Resps. were jointly bound to fulfil the obligations contained in leases of premises in Santiago de Chile granted by the predecessors in title of applts. The leases provided the following way in which the rents should be payable: " Payment shall be effected monthly in advance in Santiago de Chile on the first day of each month by first class bills on London." In 1931, Chilean legislation supervened which resps. maintained prevented them from acquiring foreign exchange in Chile or from paying the rents in Chile by drafts on London without the authorisation of the committee established by the legislation to control exchanges, & that requests by them for such authorisation from time to time had been refused by the committee. The Chilean legislation established a control of international operations of exchange & the transfer of funds abroad, entrusting such control to a committee or commission. The legislation defined international exchange transactions as " the purchase & sale of all kinds of currency & gold in any form & the bills of exchange, cheques, drafts, letters of credit, telegraphic orders, & documents of any other nature requiring the transfer of funds from Chile or vice versa." Conflicting evidence by Chilean experts was given as to the meaning in Chile of first class bills on London. The evidence accepted was that " payable in Chile in first class bills on London " had a special mercantile meaning in Chile—namely, " bills drawn in Chile by one or other of a select list of bankers & mercantile houses in Chile upon one or other of a select list of bankers & mercantile houses in London " & these were known technically as F.C.L. bills. An advocate in Chile who had been Minister of Justice gave evidence that the F.C.L. bills came within the mischief of the Chilean legislation :—Held : (1) the conditions precedent to the admissibility of evidence as to the meaning in Chile of first class bills on

London had been fulfilled—namely, the evidence did not conflict with a statutory definition, was of a usage common to the place in question & expounded without contradicting the terms of the contract: (2) though witnesses could be called to prove foreign law, the ct. was at liberty to look at a translation of the passages in question & to consider what was their proper meaning, but the ct. would have regard not only to its own view of the foreign law but to the interpretation put upon it by a competent foreign authority; (3) the Chilean legislation made it impossible for the rent to be paid as directed, as the mode of payment as already interpreted would have been an international exchange transaction within the meaning of the Chilean legislation.—DE BEECHE v. SOUTH AMERICAN STORES, LTD., & CHILIAN STORES, LTD., [1935] A. C., Ord. 3, r. 6, by indorsees against the maker of a promissory note, pltfs. in an affidavit in support of a summons for leave to sign final judgment under R. S. C., Ord. 14, r. 1, stated that they were holders in due course of the note, having taken it in good faith for value from the payees without notice of any defect in their title. Deft. in his affidavit in answer stated facts which, if true, showed that the note had been negotiated in fraud of him. The judge in chambers made an order, under R. S. C., Ord. 14, r. 6, that deft. should have leave to defend the action if he brought a sum of money into ct. within a certain time, but that if he failed to do this, pltfs. should have leave to sign judgment for the amount claimed. On appeal from this order:—Held: (1) a triable issue was raised between the parties; the mere statement in pltfs.' affidavit that they had given value without notice of any defect in their indorsers' title was not sufficient to decide that issue in pltfs.' favour, but that the ct. must have an opportunity of deciding it, & therefore deft. was entitled to leave to defend the action without the condition that he should pay money into ct.; (2) by GREER, L.J., & semble by SLESSER, L.J., where a deft. is entitled to leave to defend, the judge in chambers cannot under R. sl. Failure of holder to sue on collateral—Security barred by lapse of time.]—In an action on a promissory note deft. counterclaimed on the ground that pltf. had negligently failed to sue on certain notes given him as collateral security with the result that action on said notes was now barred by Stat. Limitations. The trial judge found that deft. had acquiesced in the opinion of a solr. acting for both parties that it was not worth while suing on the notes & that the only practical thing to do was to try to get renewal notes, but he held that deft.'s acquiescence could operate only as estoppel & since estoppel was not pleaded he allowed the counterclaim. On appeal : —Held : the appeal should be allowed. Deft.'s claim was for negligence in failing in a duty to sue on the notes or to return them to him & thereby put him in a position to sue. Under the circumstances there was no duty to do anything more than to try to obtain renewal notes. The solr. did so try &, therefore, pltf. was not guilty of the negligence which deft. had to establish in order to succeed on his counterclaim.—ORLOFF v. KIPPAN, [1936] 2 W. W. R. 631 ; 4 D. L. 15a. —— ——.]—H., a dealer in motor vehicles, defts., a finance co., entered into a transaction for the sale of a motor lorry by H. to defts. & the letting of the lorry by defts. to H. on an agreement in the form of a hire-purchase agreement. The transaction was carried out by means of the printed forms used by defts. in their business, which were more appropriate to a case in which they bought a vehicle & let it on hire-purchase to a third party, than to the present case. H., being in possession of the lorry, then fraudulently sold it to pltfs., who were not aware of the previous transaction between H. & defts. The payments due from H. to defts. under the hire-purchase agreement between them having fallen into arrear, defts. resumed possession of the lorry & refused to deliver it to pltfs. at their request. Pltfs. thereupon brought an action against defts. claiming delivery up of the lorry or damages for its detention :—Held : in the circumstances the transaction between H. & defts. was in fact what it purported to be, & the agreement between them as to the letting of the lorry was a valid hire-purchase agreement & could not be treated as a bill of sale to secure the repayment of a loan by defts. to H.—STAFFS MOTOR GUARANTEE, LTD. v. BRITISH WAGON CO., LTD., [1934] 2 K. It is not the intention of the Act that the buyer of a chattel who leaves it in the possession of the vendor until it can be sold again & then sells it & makes delivery to a person who takes it away is to be deprived of the proceeds of the resale by reason of garnishee or other proceedings taken by creditors of the person in possession before the resale & delivery.—Re AYLING, ROYAL BANK OF CANADA v. HEYLER & AYLING, [1930] 1 W. purpose a co. was incorporated on Sept. 1, 1933, with a capital of 100 shares of £1 each, of which A. held ninety-eight, his clerk one, & the debtor one. On the same date the debtor entered into an agreement with the co. by which the co. agreed to buy for cash goods manufactured by him up to a total amount of £7,000, the price to be 10 per cent. less than the prices that any of certain specified customers had agreed to pay for them, & the goods to be invoiced to the customers in the name of the co. The agreement also provided that the debtor should not sell goods to any person other than the co., that he should repay to the co. any part of the price of goods so purchased which the customer failed to pay, & that the co. should not make a profit of more than £2,500 in any one year. Notices were issued to customers that for the future sales would be effected through the co. On Feb. 5, 1934, a receiving order was made against the debtor, & on Feb. 19 he was adjudicated a bkpt. The question arose whether the agreement was void as against the trustees in bkpcy. so that the sums remaining due from customers at the beginning of the bkpcy. formed part of the debtor's estate:—Held: the agreement was not void either as an unregistered bill of sale or as an assignment of future book debts within sect. 43 of Bkpcy. 93a. —— —— Room on borrower's premises.]—Deft. co., in order to secure pltf. against loss on a certain contract & in consideration of pltf. giving further time within which to pay for the goods, set aside certain specified goods in two rooms on defts.' premises, which were locked up & the keys handed to pltf., no other goods being in those two rooms. The terms of the transaction were recorded in two letters written by deft. co. to pltf., one letter written before the keys were handed over, & the second letter subsequently. The second letter contained the words: "The goods to be locked up, the keys in your possession, & you to have the right to remove same as desired." The co. went into liquidation & the liquidator claimed that the transaction was invalid under Companies Act, 1908 (c. 69), s. 93 (1) (c), as being a charge created or evidenced by an instrument which if executed by an individual would require registration as a bill of sale. Pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that the goods were in his possession, & that he was entitled to remove them:—Held: possession of the goods passed to pltf. by the delivery of the keys of the rooms in which they were locked up, notwithstanding that those rooms were on defts.' premises, inasmuch as defts. had conferred upon pltf. a licence to make the necessary entry in order to use the keys, which licence could not be revoked, & therefore the transaction was valid as against the liquidator, & pltf. was entitled to remove the goods.—WRIGHTSON v. MCARTHUR & HUTCHISONS, [1921] 2 K. Letter assigning chattel in hands of third party—Or proceeds of sale—As security for overdraft.]—The owner of a motor car which was in the hands of deft., a motor engineer, for the purpose of repairs, & which he had instructed deft. to sell on his behalf when repaired, had an account at pltfs.' bank, which was overdrawn. Being requested by pltfs. to give security for the overdraft he wrote to deft. a letter authorising him "to hold the car to the order of" the bank "or the proceeds when sold," & sent a copy of that letter to pltfs. The letter was not registered as a bill of sale. The car having been sold & the price received by deft., pltfs. claimed the proceeds:—Held: the letter in question created one entire

Later requiring money to finance his business, he borrowed $1,400 from pltf., giving in return a hire-purchase agreement as to the automobile. 80 ii. ——.]—A. an employee of pltf. co., being desirous of obtaining a new motor car for the purposes of his work, arranged with an officer of pltf. that the co. would advance him £200 to enable him to purchase the car. A. selected a car & signed an order for it in his own name, & an invoice addressed to pltf. was issued to A. A cheque for the balance of the amount owing on the car was given by the pltf. to A., who handed it to the vendor. The co.'s ledger showed the amount of the cheque as an advance to A. As security for this advance A. entered into a hire-purchase agreement with the co., whereby the co. purported to let the car to A. upon the usual terms of a hire-purchase agreement. The agreement was not registered as a bill of sale, & A. subsequently sold the car to deft. In an action for detention:—Held: the ct. was not concluded by the form into which the parties had thrown the transaction, but was entitled, & indeed bound, to inquire into its real nature; the transaction between A. & pltf. amounted to an advance by pltf. to A. on the security of the car; the pltf. could not make out its title independently of the hire-purchase agreement, which contained a licence to take possession of a personal chattel, & was consequently a bill of sale within Instruments Act, 1915, s. 12?, & the agreement not being registered as a bill of sale was void, & deft. entitled to charge upon the car & the proceeds which represented it, & the equitable assignment of the proceeds could not be severed from the assignment of the car itself; the letter was consequently a bill of sale & void for want of registration & for non-compliance with the statutory form.—NATIONAL PRO- & UNION BANK OF ENGLAND v. [1922] 1 K. sz. Goods not property of grantor.]—The purchaser of a motor car under an uncompleted conditional sale agreement orally agreed to sell it to his father in consideration (inter alia) of the latter's assumption of the payments due the original vendor; but there was not sufficient change of possession to satisfy Bills of Sale Act if it applied to such a transaction. After the father had paid off the vendor the car was seized under an execution against the son:—Held : the transaction was not a "sale, assignment or transfer" of the car; its only effect was to give the father an equitable interest in the car which did not depend upon the delivery of possession; &, therefore, it was not affected by Bills of Sale Act then in force, R. S. A., 1922, which did not provide, as does the present Act, 1929, s. 27, that it shall apply to bills of sale although the goods may not be the property of the grantor.—BOYD v. HALLING, [1931] 1 W. A herd of hogs in the apparent possession & ownership of an execution debtor were seized under execution. His wife, claiming them as hers, produced a written memorandum, dated five years previously, of a sale to her by the debtor of four hogs; & adduced evidence to show that at that time he owned only four hogs & that the herd seized was their progeny; & contended, that, although the sale had not been registered under Bills of Sale Act & although there had been no actual & continual change of possession, yet as said four hogs were the only hogs owned by her husband at that time they were exempt from seizure, &, therefore, said Act did not apply to them or their progeny:—Held : the contention could not be sustained &, therefore, the seizure was valid.—MCGIRR v. BELOUS, [1932] 1 W. 213a. —— Substantial accuracy—Payment of loan by cheque.]—Pltf. granted a bill of sale over certain furniture to a money-lender, &, as she was unable to pay him the first instalment when it became due, defts. agreed to advance to her £1,000 on another bill of sale for the purpose of paying him off & of having her furniture released from the first bill of sale. Pltf. accordingly received a cheque for £1,000 from defts., & after receiving it she executed the second bill of sale, which stated that the consideration for it was £1,000 paid to pltf. In an action by pltf. to restrain defts. from disposing of the furniture comprised in the second bill of sale, pltf. relied on 1882 Act, s. 8, & she contended that the real consideration was the payment off of the money-lender & the release of her furniture from the first bill of sale:—Held: the consideration for the second bill of sale was the loan of £1,000, & as a cheque was a good payment until dishonoured there was no need to state in the second bill of sale that the payment was by cheque, & therefore, as the consideration was correctly stated in the second bill of sale, the action failed.—D'USEZ v. TRAFFICS & DISCOVERIES, LTD. In pursuance of the agreement a lease was entered into reserving to pltf. as rent one-third of the crop of each of the years, 1929, 1930, 1931, to be applied on the instalments of the purchase price, interest & taxes. In Apr. 1930, A., in consideration of extensions of time, & advances, agreed to give pltf. the whole of the crop & authorised pltf. to sell it as pltf. saw fit & deduct from the proceeds payments due under the agreement for sale plus any advances. The advances were for the purchase of cattle & clover seed. Subsequently, in response to a letter written by a solr. on behalf of A., deft. advanced A. money on the notes of A. & his son. In pursuance of a promise made in said letter A. later consigned a car of wheat grown on the land to order of the deft. The bill of lading was at A.'s instance, issued to A. & a co. which was the agent of pltf. A. delivered the bill of lading to said agent, who endorsed to the order of deft. & forwarded it to deft. with instructions to sell. This was carried out, & to secure the purchase price pltf. took from A. a seed grain mtge. on the crop to be grown:—Held: as A. did not require the whole of the wheat for seed, & as the price fixed had no relation to the value of the wheat but was fixed with reference to the debt owing by A. to pltf., the actual value being much less than the price agreed on, the transaction could not be considered a bonâ fide sale to A., & pltf.'s mtge. was invalid.—LYNCH v. TURNEY (Sask.), [1923] 3 D. agreement that the grantee should pay, as he then did, £600 to creditors of the grantor in satisfaction of their debt, that the existing bill of sale should be cancelled, & that the grantor should give to the grantee a new bill of sale for £1,600. The new bill of sale provided that "in consideration of £1,600 paid to" the grantor "by" the grantee "on June 24, 1925," the grantor assigned the chattels to the grantee:—Held: the new bill of sale truly set forth the consideration for which it was given, as required by 1882 Act, s. 8.

A bill of sale provided that the grantor would pay the grantee the principal sum of £1,600 with the interest then due "on Dec. 24, 1925." A contemporaneous mtge. of other property, given as part of the same transaction & as a collateral security for the principal sum, provided as follows: "The mtgor." (the grantor of the bill of sale) "hereby covenants with the mtgee." (the grantee) "to pay to him on Dec. 24 next £1,600 with interest thereon, & it is hereby agreed & declared that (subject to the right of the mtgee. to require repayment of the principal on Dec. 24 next according to the foregoing covenant by the mtgor. or at any time thereafter) the principal money hereby secured shall be repaid by instalments of not less than £20" on specified dates; these provisions not being contained in the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale by being made contemporaneously with, & as part of the same transaction as, the mtge. containing that clause for repayment of the principal by instalments, was not made or given subject to a "defeasance or condition" within 1878 Act, s. 10 (3), & the fact that that clause was not contained in the body of the bill of sale or written on the same paper or parchment therewith did not avoid the registration of the bill of sale under that sub-sect.—STOTT v. SHAW & LEE, LTD., [1928] 2 K. 237a. —— ——.]—Pltf., H., had had a number of betting transactions with deft., W., a bookmaker, since 1918. Pltf. lost various bets & paid his losses by cheques. He won other bets for which he was paid by various cheques. Eventually, pltf. obtained judgment against deft. for £692 10*s.* Execution was levied at the instance of the judgment creditor whereupon deft.'s wife, claimant in the interpleader proceedings which followed, claimed the goods seized, alleging that they belonged to her because her husband, the judgment debtor, had given her a bill of sale covering them to secure the repayment of a sum of £600 which she had advanced to him. The judgment creditor contended that the bill of sale was bad because it did not truly state the consideration. The bill of sale contained the words "In consideration of a sum of £600 now paid . . ." & the judgment creditor said that the £600 was not paid at the time of making the bill of sale, & therefore was not "now paid," as therein stated, but was paid some time later. It was therefore contended that the bill of sale was not a good bill of sale because the statement that the money was "now paid" was untrue. According to the evidence, deft.'s wife had borrowed the £600 from her mother to help her husband, & she handed the £600 over to her husband to pay his debts at 6 p.m., on the same day that the bill of sale was executed:—Held: there was evidence in the present case on which the county ct. judge could find that the £600 was "now paid" within the meaning of the statement in the bill; the bill of sale was executed, & the money was paid over by claimant at substantially the same time; the bill was therefore valid & the appeal must be dismissed.—HENSHALL v. WIDDISON (1923), 130 L. 613a. —— —— Unless possession taken.]—In Dec. 1926, T. executed a bill of sale to one H., which was registered & duly re-registered in May, 1926, five years later. In Dec. 1926, V., son of T., took a written transfer of the bill of sale & paid off the creditor. At the date of the transfer T. & his wife & V. & his wife were all living in the same house. Nothing was ever paid by T. to V., & in Apr. 1927, V. gave him notice of his intention to seize the property comprised in the bill of sale, & according to his own story took formal possession of the property comprised in it. In Mar. 1928, V. & his wife left the house he was living in with T. & went to another house near, leaving a few of the chattels covered by the bill of sale behind for the use of his mother, brother & sister, but taking away the rest. In May, 1931, T. was made a bkpt. On a claim by the trustee in bkpcy. against V. to the property comprised in the bill of sale & also to the proceeds of sale of certain furniture (which was also comprised therein) on the ground that the bill of sale had not been re-registered in May, 1931, as required by Bills of Sale Act, 1878 (c. 31), s. 11, & Bills of Sale Act, 1882 (c. 43), s. 8 :—Held : resp. V. took possession of the chattels in Apr. 1927, & as regards those he did not remove when he left the house in Mar. 1928, he allowed his mother to retain them for her use & that of his brother & sister. He had therefore obtained the legal title to the chattels in Apr. 1927, & no re-registration of the bill of sale was necessary.—Re TOOTH, TRUSTEE v. TOOTH, [1934] Ch. 616 ; 102 L. J. l (p. 109) i. ——.]—Resp., as trustee in bkpcy. of an automobile dealer in O., disputed the right claimed by applt., as vendor to the dealer under conditional sale agreements, in certain automobiles, in stock on the dealer's premises at the time of the assignment in bkpcy. Two of the automobiles, had been ordered by the dealer from the maker, & shipped to the dealer by freight, the bills of lading being sent to a bank with draft for price attached, so that the dealer could get possession by payment of the draft. The dealer, having ascertained the serial numbers of the cars, executed an "indenture," in reality a bill of sale, purporting to sell, assign, transfer, & set over the cars to applt. in consideration of the price represented by the drafts. The bill of sale was not registered. Applt. & the dealer then executed a conditional sale agreement (which was registered) by which applt. agreed to sell the cars to the dealer for the amounts represented by the drafts, the property in the cars to remain in applt. until the price was paid. Applt. then gave cheques to the dealer with which the dealer paid the drafts & got possession of the cars. In the case of the other cars, the dealer, when ordering one, sent its driver to the maker's factory with the dealer's blank cheque, which was filled in for the price & handed to the maker, the driver then taking possession of the car & driving it to the dealer's place of business, where it went into stock. The dealer then executed an "indenture," or bill of sale (not registered), of the car to applt., which then executed a conditional sale (registered) of it to the dealer for the original price, or 90 per cent. of it, & gave its cheque to the dealer for that sum, thus enabling the dealer to meet its cheque to the maker of the car :—Held : as against resp., the bills of sale & conditional sale agreements were invalid.—Re GRAND RIVER MOTORS, LTD., COMMERCIAL FINANCE CORPN., LTD. v. MARTIN, [1933] S. The furniture having been taken in execution by a judgment creditor the bill of sale holder claimed the furniture under the bill of sale. 171a. —— ——.]—Pltfs. were incorporated, under Canvey Island (Sea Defences) Act, 1883, for protecting Canvey Island from inundation by the sea. They succeeded former comrs. appointed by an Act of 1729 (32 Geo. 3, c. 31), which contained a power for these comrs. under s. 13 to erect a new sea wall further inward, on giving compensation to the owner whose land was taken for this purpose. In 1813 the new wall was built, & £150 given as compensation to the owner of the land taken. Under the Act of 1883 the property & rights of the former comrs. were vested in pltfs. who had power under that Act to hold lands. Pltfs. claimed to be owners in possession of the foreshore between the new & the old wall. Deft. claimed under a conveyance of Apr. 1919 to be the freeholder in possession of a strip of land comprising part of this foreshore, & to be entitled as of right to excavate & remove shells & other drift even although, as pltfs.

135 ii. ——.]—A public road crossed a stream by a bridge. There was a fence between the road & the land adjoining it, erected by the proprietor of the latter. At a point immediately adjoining the bridge there was a gap, 15 feet wide, in the fence. A pedestrian, on a dark night, mistaking this gap for the road, walked through it & fell into the stream & was drowned. In an action of damages against the proprietors of the land adjoining the road :—Held : there was no duty on such proprietors to fence a natural, as opposed to an artificially created, danger on their lands, any such duty, where it existed, falling on the road authorities, & action accordingly dismissed.—MORRISON v. LONDON MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. alleged, it deprived the new wall of protection & support, & exposed it to injury by the action of wind & water. The greater risk to the wall in consequence of deft.'s action was established by the evidence. In an action by pltfs. to restrain deft. from so removing the drift, & from trespassing on their land:—Held: (1) assuming the strip in question to be deft.'s freehold, pltfs. were still entitled to an injunction restraining him from so removing drift from the strip as to expose their wall & works & the lands protected thereby to greater risk of inundations of the sea; (2) pltfs. had established their statutory title under the Acts of 1792 & 1883 to the whole of the land taken & set out pursuant to s. 13 of the first Act, & had exercised specific acts of ownership over the foreshore; the possession of pltfs. & of deft. being at most doubtful or equivocal the law attached possession to the title; deft., therefore, was a trespasser, & must be restrained from excavating or removing stones, shingle, shell or soil from the particular strip of foreshore & from otherwise trespassing on same.—CANVEY ISLAND COMRS. v. PREEDY, [1922] 1 Ch. 179; 91 L. sl. Duty not to plant trees alongside fence—Meaning of "alongside."]—The word "alongside" in sect. 26 of Fencing Act, 1908, which prohibits a person from planting trees on or alongside any boundary line or fence without the previous written consent of the occupier of the adjoining land, must be construed as "contiguous" to, in its ordinary sense—viz., "touching"—that boundary line or fence, & not in its loose sense as meaning "neighbouring." Therefore, young macrocarpa trees planted for a length of about 25 chains parallel to & at a distance varying from 2 ft. to 4 ft. from the boundary line or fence were held not to have been planted "alongside" such boundary line or fence.—GILBERT v. SAMPSON, [1934] N. 3k. "Extra haul" & "overhaul."]—The view of a contract advanced by resp. was that the contract phrases "extra haul" & "overhaul" have, by usage, in construction contracts, or at all events in railway construction contracts, a special & specific meaning ; & that they signify that the length of the haul in respect of which the contractor was entitled to charge for overhaul, was to be ascertained by taking the distance, measured along the centre line of the railway in process of construction, between the projections first, of the centre of mass of earth, to be excavated in making the cut, & second, of the embankment, & deducting therefrom 500 feet ; the projections being for this purpose the several points on the centre line nearest the respective centres of mass :—Held : the alleged usage had not been proven. It had been established that there was a practice widely followed of inserting in railway construction contracts a clause providing for the computation of payment for overhaul according to the method contended for by resp. ; but in the text books, engineering manuals & writings by engineers produced, there was no basis for the view that the effect of the words used in the present contract is, apart from such special stipulations, what was contended by resp.—GEORGIA CONSTRUCTION CO. v. PACIFIC GREAT EASTERN RY. 55a. Construction of clause.]—(1) A building contract contained provisions under which the date for completion of the works was Nov. 15, 1931. Clause 31 of the contract provided that "it shall be lawful for the engineer if he shall think fit, to grant from time to time, & at any time or times by writing under his hand such extension of time for completion of the work & that either prospectively or retrospectively, & to assign such other time or times for completion as to him may seem reasonable." Clause 37 provided for the payment of liquidated damages for delay at a specified rate. The contractor did not complete the works till July 25, 1932, & on Nov. 17, 1932, the engineer issued a certificate granting an extension of time to Feb. 7, 1932, & certifying the amount due to the building owner as liquidated damages in respect of the period between Feb. 7 & July 25, 1932 :—Held : the words "either prospectively or retrospectively" did not confer on the engineer a right to fix the extension of time ex post facto when the work was completed. They empowered him to wait till the cause of delay had ceased to operate, & then "retrospectively" with regard to the causes of delay to assign to the contractor a new date to work to. The extension admittedly proper not having been granted in time no liquidated damages were payable.

(2) The contractor claimed to be paid the first portion of the retention money, which by clause 41 was to be paid on the issue of the certificate of completion. The building owner relied on clause 42, which provided that "no sum or sums of money shall be considered to be due & owing to the contractor . . . unless the engineer shall in writing under his hand have certified or recommended the amount to be paid as such instalment or balance to the contractor." No such certificate had been given :—Held : the retention money claimed must be either an "instalment" or a "balance," & a condition precedent had not been complied with, so the action was premature.—MILLER v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL (1934), 151 L. 58a. —— Contract for supply between employer & third party.]—A. co. carrying on the business of builders & decorators entered into a contract with a corpn. for the erection of two lodges & a park entrance. With the assent of the builders, the corpn. conducted the negotiations with a stone firm for the supply of the stone which was required for the work & fixed the quantity & price. The contract between the builders & the corpn. provided that the corpn. should pay the stone firm the price of the stone, to be deducted from the contract price. Owing to delay in delivering the stone the builders were unable to complete the work until some months after the date fixed for completion by the contract. In an action by the builders against the corpn. in respect of the loss arising to the builders by reason of such delay :—Held : there was no implied obligation on the corpn. under the contract between them & the builders to supply the stone; at the highest there was only an obligation on them to hold the benefit of the contract with the stone firm for the builders; & that "business efficacy" did not require that there should be implied an obligation on the corpn. to make good to the builders any loss which they might suffer by reason of the failure of the stone firm to deliver in time. Accordingly the corpn. were not liable to the builders for such loss.—GAZE (W. H.) & SONS, LTD. v. PORT TALBOT CORPN. (1929), 93 J. P. 89; 27 L. G. R. 200.

87a. When contractor entitled to.]—A building contract contained a clause, numbered 30, in these words : " The contractor shall be entitled . . . under certificates to be issued by the architect to the contractor . . . to payment by the employer from time to time by instalments, when in the opinion of the architect actual work to the value of £1,000 has been executed in accordance with the contract, at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work so executed in the building & materials actually on the site for use on the works until the balance in hand amounts to the sum of £2,000. . . ." By clause 32, if any dispute should arise between the employer, or the architect on his behalf, & the contractors as to the construction of the contract or as to the withholding by the architect of any certificate to which the contractors might claim to be entitled, the dispute was to be referred to an arbitrator. By another clause, No. 26, if the contractors should suspend the work, except in case of a certificate being withheld, the architect was empowered to give notice to the contractors to proceed with the work with all reasonable dispatch. Disregard of this notice might involve the contractors in serious consequences. During the progress of the work, after £9,000 or more had been paid by the employers to the contractors upon certificates given by the architect, the contractors claimed that on Mar. 11, 1929, they were entitled to a further substantial sum which had not been included in the architect's certificates. The employers insisted that the contractors had been overpaid, & that no certificate was due to them. The contractors thereupon stopped work, & the architect served upon them a notice under clause 26. The parties then submitted to an arbitrator the " disputes in regard to (a) the issue of certificates, & (b) the validity of the notice served by the architect under clause 26 " of the contract. The arbitrator found that on May 11, 1929, there remained due to the contractors a sum of £793 17*s.* 10*d.*, & awarded that " having regard to the provisions of clause 30 " (which he then set out as above) " the architect had up to the said 11th day of Mar. 1929, issued to the contractor certificates in accordance with the terms of the contract." He further awarded that the notice given under clause 26 was properly given & was valid :—Held : the arbitrator had erred in his construction of clause 30 of the contract in holding that, after the value of work done & materials on the site had reached the sum of £1,000, it was still necessary that a round sum of £1,000 should be due to the contractors in order to entitle them to a certificate ; the construction of sect. 30 had not been expressly or specifically left to the arbitrator, & his award should be set aside for error in law appearing upon the face of it.—ABSALOM (F. Thereupon the District Engineer verbally relieved him of the dredging, the foundation area for crib to be levelled off with bags of concrete, etc., but refused to put the instructions in writing. The contractor would not carry on, & the work was taken out of his hands for delay in execution of the contract. Hence the present action for damages to have been suffered :—Held : if a party by his contract charges himself with an obligation possible to be performed he must make good, unless the performance becomes impossible in law or in fact, or by the conduct of the other party. If what is agreed is possible & lawful, it must be done. The changes in the work under the contract made by the District Engineer in this case were not matters of detail, but, from an engineering standpoint, were fundamental changes which could only be authorised by the Chief Engineer.—BOONE v. R., [1933] Ex. PART VIII. SECT. 1.

k i. —— Different contractors for building & joiner work.]—A builder contracted to carry out the building & plastering work in connection with the erection of a house, & another contractor undertook to carry out the joiner work. The builder finished his work, & the owner accepted possession of the house & paid two instalments

The houses were completed to the satisfaction of the surveyor & the inspector, & pltfs. sold them at a profit. In fact the express agreement to cement & the implied agreement to do the work properly had been broken, & on complaint by the purchasers pltfs. carried out repairs to put the houses in a habitable state, & they sued defts. for the cost of the repairs. Defts. contended that they were under no liability as the surveyor & the inspector had approved of the work, that pltfs., having sold the houses at a profit, had suffered no damage, & that, as the repairs were only an act of generosity, pltfs. could not recover the cost :—Held : there being in the contract no statement that the approval of the surveyor & the inspector was to be final & conclusive, their approval was only a superadded protection, & pltfs. were entitled to recover the difference between the value of the houses as they ought to have been when completed & their value in fact. —NEWTON ABBOT DEVELOPMENT CO., LTD. v. STOCKMAN BROS. (1931), 47 T. L. R. 616.

225b. Liability for defects limited to defects discovered within five years—Discovery within five years—Effect on subsequent discoveries.] —A district council employed contractors to make a road, the contract containing the following clause : " Should it at any time subsequent to the termination of the period of maintenance up to but not exceeding a period of five years from the date of the completion of the works be discovered that the terms of this specification have been violated by the execution of bad, insufficient or inaccurate work the council shall be at liberty to make good such work & to recover the cost thereof from the contractor . . ." :—Held : the council could recover only for the defects discovered within the five years to the actual extent of that discovery, & such discovery did not entitle the council to recover for defects thereafter discovered.—MARSDEN URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL v. SHARP (1931), 48 T. L. R. 23, C. A.

230a. —— Excess of cost of completion over contract price.]—By a contract in writing dated May 12, 1916, deft. agreed to build for pltf. a house, subject to the conditions set forth in the schedule thereto, for the sum of £1,900. The conditions provided (inter alia) that deft. should begin the works immediately after possession of the site was given to him, & should regularly proceed with & complete the same within six months after the date of the plans being passed by the local authority, & that if deft. should suspend the works or should not proceed with them with due diligence, pltf. by his architect should have power to give notice to deft. requiring him to proceed, & on failure of deft. to comply with such notice for thirty days pltf. should be entitled to enter upon & take possession of the works & site & employ any other person to complete the works. On July 10, 1916, the plans were duly passed. On July 14, 1916, an order was made by the Minister of Munitions under the powers of the Defence of the Realm (Consolidation) Regulations, 1914, which provided that on & after July 20, 1916, no person should without licence from the Minister of Munitions commence or carry on any building or construction work. On July 21 deft. applied for a licence to proceed, & continued to work fairly well until Aug. 12, when he ceased to proceed with due diligence with the deliberate intention, as the ct. held, of ensuring that the licence should be refused & that he should thereby be enabled to put an end to the contract. On Sept. 9 pltf.'s architect gave him thirty days' notice to proceed with the works. On Sept. 30, before the expiration of the notice, the Minister of Munitions refused to grant the licence to proceed. In an action by pltf. for damages for breach of contract :—Held : deft. could not take advantage of the intervention of the Minister of Munitions, which was brought about by his own act, & the proper measure of damages was what it cost pltf. to complete the house substantially as it was originally intended & in a reasonable manner at the earliest moment he was allowed to proceed with the work, less any amount that would have been due & payable to deft. by pltf., had deft. completed the house to the roofing-in at the time agreed by the terms of his contract.—MERTENS v. HOME FREEHOLDS CO., [1921] 2 K. of the account. Afterwards the outside walls began to crack, & it was discovered that the walls were off the plumb. In an action by the builder for the balance of his account, the owner averred that the defect in the walls was occasioned by the use of faulty materials in the construction of the concrete floors by the builder. The builder averred that the damage to the walls was caused by the use of unseasoned timber in the construction of the roof by the other contractor. Neither of these averments was established at the proof, but either of them might have been the cause of the cracking of the walls :—Held : breach of contract had not been established against pursuer, & he was entitled to decree for the balance of the contract price.—CARRUTHERS v. MACGREGOR, [1927] S. Before the builders had commenced to build the trawlers so contracted for the Admiralty issued an order to them under Reg. 8A of the Defence of the Realm Regulations, directing them not to proceed with any work on vessels for private owners, but to work for the Admiralty instead. At the time of making that Order the Admiralty had full knowledge of the existence of the claimant's contract with the builders. By reason of the order he suffered substantial loss. Even if the contract provides that the work will be performed under the supervision of the city engineer, the contractor cannot complain of the fact that the engineers had not given him any instructions or advice as to the way the trenches should be cribbed, as he was at liberty to do such work in his own way without the permission of the engineer as long as the latter was not making any formal objection.—RIVET v. LA CORPORATION DU VILLAGE DE ST.-JOSEPH, [1932] S. 342a. ——.]—Pltfs. claimed £1,000 being retention moneys due from defts. to a firm of contractors. Pltfs. claimed under an assignment dated Apr. 7, 1924. On Nov. 21, 1922, defts. entered into a building contract for a lump sum with S., the contractors, for the construction of a number of cottages under a housing scheme. The contract provided for interim payments, but no money was to become payable to the contractors except on the architect's certificate in writing, & certificates were to be issued when work to the value of £1,000 had been executed & thereafter at monthly intervals as certified by the architect in writing. He was to certify the amount from time to time payable to the contractors under the contract. The amount to be certified by the architect on his first & monthly certificates as due to the contractors was to be at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work, including extras. The balance of 10 per cent. of the value of the work was to be retained until the sum so retained, called a retention fund, should amount to £2,472 after which the contractors were to be paid monthly to the full value of the work done & the materials supplied. The retention fund was to be deposited in a bank until the final adjustment of accounts. The contract was varied by consent, & in the events which happened the retention fund amounted to £1,000 at the beginning of 1924. This was never deposited at the bank & remained a merely notional fund, but both parties treated it as a separate sum capable of being earmarked.

PART XI. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1. a 1. ——.]—An unpaid builder as such has no lien upon the building in his possession for the balance due to him, unless under the contract for construction.—N. P. A. CHETLIAR FIRM v. SHARMA (1927), I. L. R. 6 Ran. 87.—IND.

It was included without distinction in the architect's final certificate for £1,848 10s. 2d. on Jan. 28, 1927. Meanwhile pltfs., who were supplying cement to the contractors, found that the latter were getting into arrears with their payments & to obtain further credit the contractors, being then indebted to pltfs. in the sum of £671 on Apr. 7, 1924, assigned to them the retention fund by a document dated Apr. 7, 1924, in the following terms: "In part reduction of the amount now, or to be, owing from us to you for goods supplied by you, we hereby assign to you all moneys now or hereafter to become due to us from the Hemsworth R. D. C. for retention moneys in respect of the G. housing scheme, & for which your receipt shall be a sufficient discharge. It is understood that we are only to be credited with the amount actually paid to you under this assignment as & when the same is received by you." Due notice of that assignment was given by pltfs. to defts. on the following day. This was acknowledged by defts. on May 26, 1924. By that time the contractors had issued a number of debentures to the M. & C. Bank. These debentures were dated at various periods from Feb. 1, 1900, to Feb. 2, 1924, & they charged the undertaking & property, both present & future, of the contractors, the charge being a specific charge on their freehold & leasehold property, machinery, goodwill, & uncalled capital & a floating charge on all the co.'s other assets, subject to a proviso that the contractors were not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge on any of the assets in priority to the debentures. A receiver for the debenture holders was appointed in Oct. 1924, & he duly entered into possession. Seven days after the appointment of the receiver a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding-up of the co. The receiver refused to recognise the right of pltfs. to payment under their assignment in priority to the debenture holders, & on the architect's certificate being given in Jan. 1927, defts. declined to interplead & paid the retention moneys to the receiver for the debenture holders:—Held: the assignment in question was a good legal assignment & pltfs. were entitled to sue on it. The retention fund in this case arose out of an existing contract, & although it did not become payable until a date later than that of the assignment, it was a debt or other legal thing in action which could be assigned. The assignment was within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25, & Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136. It could be sued on by the assignee without joining the assignor as a party. Pltfs. were therefore entitled to recover on the assignment.—EARLE (G. & T.) (1925), LTD. v. HEMSWORTH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL (1928), 140 L. T. 69; 44 T. L. R. 758, C. A.

345a. Effect of—On contractor's rights under arbitration clause.]—Building contractors assigned to a bank all money due & to become due to them under a building contract, which contained an arbn. clause, & the proper notice of the assignment was served on the building owners. Disputes having arisen regarding a claim by the contractors for compensation & extra payment, recourse was had to arbn.:—Held: (1) the arbitrator had jurisdiction to entertain the arbn., since the contractors' rights under the arbn. clause did not constitute a "legal" or "other remedy" for the debt within Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136 (1), & were not passed & transferred to the bank by the assignment; (2) the arbitrator had to consider not merely the terms of the contract within the limits of the document, but also the application & enforcement of those terms, having regard to the whole legal position which the parties had created, including the relinquishment by the contractors themselves by the assignment of their right to claim the debt, & he must make his award in favour of the building owners.—COTTAGE CLUB ESTATES v. WOODSIDE ESTATES CO. Part XIII.—Substituted Contracts and Sub-Contracts.

369a. —— Dismissal of sub-contractor at request of employer.]—Deft., a contractor, had contracted to divert a road for a county council, &, as incidental to that purpose, to make a tunnel. The work of excavating for the tunnel was sub-contracted to a firm called C. Bros. This firm was later turned into a limited co. & a receiver was appointed by the debenture holders. The receiver elected to complete the sub-contract, but, hampered by lack of money, he was unable to proceed with the work at the speed the contract required. The head contract contained a clause giving the engineers of the county council, if they were dissatisfied with any sub-contractor, power to require his removal.

sub-contract, which contained many provisions in similar terms to those in the head contract, contained no clause providing for the contingency of the engineers giving a notice under the above clause. The engineers served such a notice: Held: (1) as the parties had the head contract before them when they entered into the sub-contract, they must be taken to have had in contemplation the possibility of the engineers giving such a notice, & a term could not be implied in the sub-contract giving the contractor power, as between him & the sub-contractor, upon such a notice being given, to put an end to the sub-contract; (2) a recital that the sub-contractor had agreed to carry out the work in accordance with the terms of the principal contract did not, where other clauses were expressly included, incorporate the clause of the principal contract here in question; (3) the effect of the giving of the notice was to give the sub-contractor the right to sue for breach of contract or upon a quantum meruit basis. He was not obliged to wait until the date of completion arrived & then sue on a breach of contract.—CHANDLER BROS., LTD. v. [1936] 3 All E. R. 179; 80 Sol. Jo. 951, C. A.

The Dock Board required a guarantee for the performance of the contract & defts. gave a joint & several bond in the sum of £50,000 conditioned for the due performance of the contract:—Held: (1) this was a contract of guarantee & not of insurance; (2) by clause 7 of the agreement the Dock Board had made it clear that they were a non-disclosing body & they had thereby contracted out of any duty to disclose; (3) loans of £45,000 made to the contractors by the Dock Board out of a fund provided by the Treasury under Trade Facilities Act, 1921 (c. 65), & of which the guarantors had no knowledge, were outside the construction contract & therefore outside the guarantee; & no certificate of the Dock Board engineer, though agreed to be final & binding upon them, could make the guarantors liable in respect of such loans; (4) such advances, though repayable by an increased percentage of retention money, were not a variation of the contract & therefore not a discharge of the guarantors.—TRADE INDEMNITY CO., LTD. v. WORKINGTON HARBOUR & DOCK BOARD, [1937] A. 383b. —— Bond to indemnify road authority—Authority stated to be rural district council—Authority in fact county council.]—On June 6, 1930, in consideration of the issue by pltf. co. of a bond on behalf of F. "in favour of the Gower R.D.C.," in connection with a contract for road improvement, defts. undertook to indemnify pltf. co. against all losses incurred in consequence of having issued the bond. On July 4, 1930, pltf. co. & F. bound themselves by a bond issued in favour of the Glamorgan C.C. which had by virtue of the Local Government Act, 1929 (c. 17), s. 30, become the competent road authority on Apr. 1, 1930. Pltf. co. became liable to perform its obligations under the bond, & it thereupon sought to be indemnified by defts. Defts. did not know, when they gave their undertaking that the Glamorgan C.C. had become the competent road authority:—Held: (1) the maxim ignorantia legis neminem excusat was not applicable; (2) the words in the undertaking "in favour of the Gower R.D.C." were not mere surplusage & immaterial, & it could not be inferred that defts. meant "the competent road authority"; (3) there was no evidence that defts. misled pltf. co. by their conduct, & defts. were not estopped from saying that they had never agreed to indemnify pltf. co.—PROVIDENT ACCIDENT & WHITE CROSS INSURANCE CO., LTD. v. DAHNE & WHITE, [1937] 2 All E. h 1. ——.]—A contract for the construction of a covered way from the mainland to a lighthouse contained an arbn. clause, the first part of which referred all disputes, whenever arising, as to the contract & its execution to the employers' engineer, while the second part referred any dispute or claim arising after, or consequent on, the completion of the contract to another engineer. A dispute having arisen as to the rate payalbe for the removal of certain rock, the contractors refused to continue the work, & the employers took the work out of their hands. An action having been brought by the contractors for payment of sums alleged to be due under the contract & for damages:—Held: as the work was still in progress, the first part of the arbn. clause applied, it being immaterial that the work had been taken out of the hands of the pursuers, & action sisted to allow the arbn. to

Alleging that by reason of breaches of the contract committed by deft. by its engineer deft. had repudiated the contract, which repudiation pltf. had elected to accept as a rescission of the contract, pltf. brought an action for damages or for work & labour done. Deft. applied under Arbn. Act, 1928, s. 5, for a stay of the 388a. Clause restricting time for opening reference —"Until after completion of works"—Meaning of.]—The form of building contract issued by the Royal Institute of British Architects provides, by condition 31 in the schedule thereto, that should the building owner not pay the builder any sum certified by the architect within the time limited by the contract, the builder is to be at liberty to determine the contract & recover from the building owner payment for all work executed. Condition 32 provides that in case any difference shall arise between the building owner & the builder as to the construction of the contract or as to any matter arising thereunder, such difference is to be referred to arbn., but that "such reference . . . shall not be opened until after the completion of the works." During the progress of certain works which were being carried out under a building contract in the above form the building owner neglected to pay the builder a sum certified by the architect within the stipulated time, & thereupon the builder determined the contract under condition 31. The builder commenced arbn. proceedings while the contract works were still uncompleted, & the arbitrator made an award in his favour for the money due to him under the contract :—Held : the words "until after the completion of the works" in condition 32 meant until after completion of the whole of the works contracted for, & not merely until after completion of so much of the works as the builder was under the circumstances bound to perform ; consequently the arbn. was premature & the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to make the award ; or at all events the validity of the award was sufficiently doubtful to render it improper to enforce it summarily.—SMITH v. MARTIN, [1925] 1 K. 425a. —— —— Interim certificates.]—Pltfs., a local authority, made a contract with builders under which deft. was the architect. The Ministry of Health had the right to require the use of materials which the Disposals Board had for sale. While the houses were in course of erection deft. gave interim certificates, & he also gave documents under which pltfs. paid the Board for articles supplied by the Board. Under these certificates & documents pltfs. had to pay both the builders & the Board for the same material. In an action by pltfs. to recover the amount from deft. on the ground of negligence :—Held : as the certificates were only interim certificates, & as deft. on going into the figures with pltfs. had indicated to them that the amount paid to the Disposals Board was to be deducted from the final balance due to the contractors, deft. had not been guilty of negligence, & the action failed—WISBECH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL v. WARD, [1928] 2 K. were amongst the matters agreed to be referred. Deeming himself bound by authority :—Held : although deft. was otherwise entitled to have the proceedings stayed until the matters agreed to be referred had been referred to the appointed arbitrator, in which case the ct. could afterwards determine whether on his decision there had been a repudiation of the contract, yet in the exercise of its discretion under the sect. the ct. should not compel pltf. to accept a tribunal which in the circumstances had become unsuitable for the determination of the dispute which had arisen. The matter should therefore stand over to enable the parties to agree upon another arbitrator ; failing such agreement the appeal should be dismissed.—MODERN ROAD CONSTRUCTION CO. After the plans were prepared, but before the inaccuracies were discovered, the parties quarrelled & pltf. retired from the employment on terms which he set out in a letter to deft. as follows : "As your decision to carry out the erection of garage contrary to the instructions issued by me to contractor entirely overrides my authority & leaves me without any security that the work will be done as I direct, I accept your offer to be relieved of all responsibility in connection with same. . . ." The magistrate gave judgment for pltf. on the counterclaim on the ground that the arrangement between the parties relieved pltf. from all responsibility in respect of the plans :—Held : the arrangement between the parties only relieved the architect from responsibility in connection with the erection of the work in accordance with the plans he had prepared & did not relieve him from any responsibility which he had incurred by reason of defects in the plans & specifications which were not known to the building owner at the time.—MURNANE v. STEERE, [1934] W. 115a. —— Collateral security for first mortgage.]—An estate co. in respect of two separate advances for the purposes of one building estate mtged. two separate sets of plots of that estate with a building society. It further secured each advance by a collateral charge. These collateral charges were second mtges. & each contained a clause stating that Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 93, should apply to the charge. It was most probable that it was intended that that clause was intended to negative such application. The estate co. had executed another mtge. with the same society in respect of quite different land & the society, not being satisfied with the security in this case, refused to allow the collateral mtges. to be released unless this third mtge. was also redeemed. It was contended that as the society was forbidden by statute to lend money on the security of a second mtge., the collateral mtges. were invalid & inoperative :—Held : (1) the Building Societies Act, 1894 (c. 47), s. 13, forbidding an advance on land subject to a prior mtge. does not make void a second mtge. where the society already has a first mtge. as security for the same debt. The society can fortify its position by taking a second mtge. ; (2) the collateral mtge. being good, the society was entitled in the circumstances to consolidate this mtge. with the third mtge. & to refuse to redeem unless the debts outstanding under both mtges. were satisfied in full.

The covenant in the mtge. was to pay the money advanced to him & also such other subscriptions & payments as may become payable in respect of the shares :—Held : the proper construction of the covenant was that the original mtgor. was liable to pay all sums due in respect of such shares whoever the shareholder might be ; & the proper construction of the rules was that in order to be released from the covenant, he must obtain a release from the board.—WEST BROMWICH BUILDING SOCIETY v. BULLOCK, [1936] 1 All E. may transfer its mtges. either to an individual or to another building society, yet if it agrees to sell those securities to a purchaser & makes no stipulation as to what it is that the purchaser is to take under such agreement for sale, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that it agrees to transfer such benefits as it itself enjoys, & that it cannot do. Pltf. society was in liquidation, & in May, 1919, its liquidators entered into a contract with deft. society for the sale to deft. society of thirty-seven of the freehold & leasehold mtges. of pltf. society for £6,400. Deft. society having declined to complete, pltf. society issued a writ for specific performance. Subsequently the parties by agreement stated a special case for the opinion of the ct as to, amongst other things, whether the contract was ultra vires deft. society, because it had not at the date of the contract surplus funds properly available for investment, & whether pltf. society could transfer the mtges. without the consent of the mtgors. Both these points were decided in favour of pltf. society:—Held: (1) although the contract might be intra vires in its inception, notwithstanding that deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds to carry it out, yet if at the time when an order was made for its specific performance deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds the effect of the order would be to require the society, which was not an investing society, to invest moneys which were not its surplus funds in a security in which it had no power to invest them; (2) a further effect of the order, if made, would be to require deft. society to borrow money to pay for the mtges.; & as its borrowing powers could not be resorted to except for borrowing for the purposes of the society, & as the purchase of the mtges. was not one of those purposes, the order would be an order requiring deft. society to do an ultra vires act; therefore no order for specific performance ought in the circumstances to be made; (3) having regard to the fact that the mtges. in question were building society mtges., pltf. society was not in a position to transfer to deft. society all the rights & benefits to which under them it was itself entitled, pltf. society was not ready & willing to perform its part of the contract, & consequently it could not enforce the contract.—SUN BUILDING SOCIETY v. WESTERN SUBURBAN & HARROW ROAD BUILDING SOCIETY, [1921] 2 Ch. 438; 91 L. Part XII.—Amalgamation and Transfer.

285a. Amalgamation—Effect of 1874 Act, s. 33—Dissolution of constituent societies unnecessary.]—By a contract dated Sept. 15, 1928, applt. agreed to sell to resp. two freehold plots of land & a dwelling-house. On Nov. 30, 1925, the property so contracted to be sold was mtged. to the H. Equitable B.B. Society, & on Jan. 31, 1928, that society was united in accordance with the provisions of the Building Societies Acts with the H. Permanent B.B. Society under the name of the H. Building Society. On June 28, 1928, the money due on the mtge. was repaid to the H. Building Society, which society gave a receipt endorsed on the mtge. A note was also endorsed that on Jan. 31, 1928, the H. Equitable B.B. Society & the H. Permanent B.B.Society were united & became one society under the name of the H. Building Society, & that the transaction was duly registered as required by the Building Society Acts. The purchaser required an abstract of the documents effecting the transfer of the mtge. to the H. Building Society from the H. Equitable B.B. Society & asserted that resolutions as to union, the notice to the registrar, & consents in writing of the shareholders in the two societies must be abstracted. The purchaser also claimed to be entitled to see the instrument of union to ascertain that the provisions of the Building Societies Acts had been complied with. The vendor contended that this was not necessary as under 1877 Act, s. 5, the registration operated as a conveyance of the property which was then vested in the H. Equitable B.B. Society. The judge held that under the Building Societies Acts the possibility was contemplated of a union without a dissolution of the uniting societies, & 1877 Act, s. 5, which provided that the registration of the union should operate as a conveyance, must be read as subject to 1874 Act, s. 33, under which the instrument of union might provide that certain properties should be excepted & not transferred, & it was therefore necessary for the purchaser to be furnished with an abstract of the instrument of union to enable him to see whether 1877 Act, s. 5, could operate without 243 ii. —— ——.]—The rules of the building society provided that every dispute arising between members of the society or any person claiming through or under a member or under the rules of the society or any officer thereof should be referred to arbn.:—Held: the effect of the rules of the society & sect. 36 of Building Societies Act, 1886, was not to oust the jurisdiction of the ct. to determine a question whether a certain person was a member of the society or not, such question not being a dispute within the rules & sect. 36 of the Act.—BOLTON & DOWNS BUILDING CO., LTD. v. DARLING DOWNS BUILDING SOCIETY, [1935] Q. any qualification :—Held : 1874 Act, s. 33, & 1877 Act, s. 5, contemplated that a union of two societies might be made without a dissolution of each society, & it was putting too much on 1874 Act, s. 33, to say it gave complete union so that no inquiry could be made as to the terms of union, & 1877 Act, s. 5, made it clear that only such properties vested in the united society as the instrument of union provided, therefore it was necessary that the vendor should abstract & verify the resolution of union, the notice to be given to the registrar of the union, & the other instrument of union if any, & until he had done so he had not produced to the purchaser a proper title.—Re FRYER & HAMPSON'S CONTRACT (1929), 140 L. 140a. Material—White marble.]—(1) A faculty to erect a memorial in a churchyard was refused by the Consistory Ct. on the ground that the memorial was to be of white marble. It was 8 feet by 4 feet, & consisted of a St. Andrew's cross about 1 inch above the ground. Resting on the cross was a vase about 20 inches above the ground. Forty-one per cent. of the memorials already in the churchyard were of white marble :—Held : there was nothing illegal in the use of white marble for the memorial & in the circumstances the wishes of petitioner ought to be acceded to & a faculty granted.

(2) The incumbent's so-called discretion does not exist. All that he can do, when any one wishes to erect a memorial, if he does not consent, is to say that that person must obtain a faculty, & if that faculty is refused the matter cannot proceed. That is the power of the incumbent : he has no judicial discretion. In the second place there has been a grave misunderstanding as to the report of the Central Council for the Care of Churches, & its pamphlet on the care of churchyards. That report is merely advice, & does not profess to be anything else. The incumbent in the present case thought that he was bound to follow that report. He spoke of himself as a man under authority, referring to the diocesan report, which followed the lines of the report of the Central Council. That is wrong, for, as I have said, these reports are merely advice. The only authority is that of the Chancellor & of the ct. to which appeals from his decision can be taken (Sir LEWIS DIBDIN).—Re LITTLE GADDESDEN CHURCHYARD, Ex p. CUTHBERTSON, [1933] P. 150; sub nom. CUTHBERTSON v. LITTLE GADDESDEN PARISHIONERS, 77 Sol. The land proved unfit & was never used for interments, & it was never fenced off or consecrated, nor did it adjoin any burial ground. The council agreed with pltf., with the approval of the parish meeting, to exchange the land for other land suitable for use as a burial ground :—Held : (1) the land first acquired by the council had never been "set apart for the purposes of interment" & was not therefore a "disused burial ground," so as to be subject to the restriction imposed by 1884 Act, s. 3 ; (2) the council had power to effect the exchange by virtue of the powers to sell land not required for interments & to buy land for the purposes of interment conferred respectively by 1852 Act, ss. 28 & 26, as extended by 1853 Act, s. 7.—NICHOLL v. LLANTWIT MAJOR PARISH COUNCIL, [1924] 2 Ch. 214 ; 93 L. 4a. —— ——.]—Defts., furniture removers & warehousemen, contracted to carry pltf.'s furniture from L. to H., the contract being subject to a condition that the contractors would not be responsible for loss or damage caused by fire. Part of the furniture, which was loaded on a motor lorry, was destroyed by fire, occasioned by the negligence of defts.' servants, the remaining portion being damaged by the fire. Pltf. sued defts. for the value of the goods damaged & destroyed:—Held: defts. were not liable, inasmuch as the condition that they would not be responsible for fire protected them from liability, since the clause would be of no effect unless it referred to fire caused by the negligence of defts., as, not being common carriers, they would not in any event be liable for loss caused by accidental fire.—TURNER v. CIVIL SERVICE SUPPLY ASSOCN., LTD., [1926] 1 K. The goods, which were loaded on a motor van, were destroyed while in transit by fire, which was occasioned by the negligence of defts.' servants. Pltf. sued defts. for the value of the goods:—Held: as defts. were bailees only & not common carriers, &, therefore, not liable for an accidental fire, the condition must be construed as exempting them from liability for fire arising from their own negligence, as otherwise the condition would be of no effect.—FAGAN v. GREEN & EDWARDS, LTD., [1926] 1 K. In respect to luggage which did not fulfil these conditions the council were entitled to make such charge as they thought fit. Pltf., wishing to send a parcel of goods weighing some 50 lbs. to a customer, instructed his servant to convey it by one of defts.' tramcars. The servant did so, & in addition to paying his own fare paid 2*d.* for the parcel. When he arrived at his destination the servant claimed his parcel, but found that it had been lost. In an action brought by pltf. claiming damages:—Held: the provisions of sect. 42 of the private Act being inconsistent with one of the peculiar features of a common carrier, who was bound to carry all goods of the class which he proposed to carry, for all & sundry & irrespective of the fact that the goods were accompanied by a passenger, the London County Council were not common carriers of goods so as to be entitled to the benefit of Carriers Act, 1830 (c. 68).—ROSENTHAL v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL (1924), 131 L. This price includes all transit charges, including delivery to house & unpacking, also risk of breakage, the value of any one package not to exceed £10." This tender was accepted:—Held: deft. was not in this transaction a common carrier, & Mercantile Law Act, 1918, s. 19, did not apply.—WILSON v. [illegible] CO., LTD., [1923] N. Z.

31. For existing paragraph substitute the following :—

Deft. was a barge-owner, & let out his vessels for the conveyance of goods to any customers who applied to him. Each voyage was made under a separate agreement, & a barge was not let to more than one person for the same voyage. Deft. did not ply between any fixed termini, but the customer fixed in each particular case the points of arrival & departure. In an action against deft. by the pltfs. for not safely & securely carrying certain goods :—Held : deft. in exercising this employment had incurred the liability of a common carrier, & was liable though the goods were lost without negligence on his part.

Deft. was not a common carrier nor liable as such, but was liable as a ship-owner carrying goods for hire, upon the custom applicable to him as such (per CUR.).

234a. ——.]—A carrier who regularly receives goods for carriage upon terms limiting his liability may be under the obligations & subject to the liabilities of a common carrier in so far as the limitation of liability does not extend. He does not by limiting his liability assume for all purposes the position of a bailee for reward who is liable only for negligence of himself or his servants, unless the limitation of liability is so extensive as to be inconsistent with the profession or contract of a common carrier.

A consignor who tenders to carriers for carriage goods apparently harmless but in fact dangerous, whether the carriers are common carriers bound by the custom of the realm to carry goods provided they are safe & fit for carriage or whether they are a railway co. bound by statute to afford reasonable facilities for the receiving, forwarding & delivering of goods, must give warning of the danger ; otherwise he impliedly warrants that the goods are safe & fit for carriage.

Forwarding agents delivered to a railway co. for carriage certain carboys containing a corrosive fluid & also certain bales of felt goods on the terms of consignment notes exempting the co. from liability in certain events & stating that they did not undertake to carry dangerous goods except on special conditions. The carboys were insufficient to contain the fluid, which escaped & injured the felt goods. The co. professed to carry the felt goods as common carriers. The owner of the felt goods claimed damages against the co., & the co. paid £437 in settlement of the claim. In an action by the co. against the forwarding agents to recover this sum as damages for breach of warranty :—Held : (1) the terms of the consignment notes did not prevent the co. from being, as they professed to be, common carriers of the felt ; (2) the co. were therefore liable as insurers, & without proof of negligence, to the owner of the felt goods ; (3) they were entitled to recover from the forwarding agents, as upon an implied warranty that the carboys were fit to be carried, the amount they had paid to the owner of the felt goods for the damage done to his goods.—GREAT NORTHERN RY. 491 iii a. —— ——.]—Ry. cos. have a duty to provide a reasonably adequate & safe access to their carriages for normal passengers, but they owe no special duty towards those passengers who are abnormal by reason of physical disability.

A passenger brought an action against a ry. co. for damages in respect of personal injuries sustained by him through a fall, owing to his having missed his foothold on the step of a ry. carriage while attempting to enter it at one of defenders' stations. Pursuer averred that, being of abnormal weight & advanced age, he had great difficulty in entering ry. carriages, a fact which was well known to defenders' servants as he was a regular traveller by their trains from the station in question, & that, at the time of the accident, access to the carriage was rendered difficult for a normal passenger, & dangerous to him in view of his physical disability, by reason of a concealed danger, viz., that the step of the carriage, owing to its design & to the place where the train was drawn up on the occasion in question, was at an unusual height above the platform:—Held: (1) while defenders had a duty to provide a reasonably adequate & safe access to their trains for the normal individual, they had no special duty towards abnormal passengers such as pursuer; (2) defenders were not bound to ensure that there should be an unvarying distance between step & platform; (3) pursuer's averments did not disclose any failure of duty on defenders' part, by way of concealed danger or otherwise, which brought about the accident, but the true cause of the accident was pursuer's own physical disability; action dismissed.—HENDERSON v. LONDON MIDLAND, & SCOTTISH RY. 560a. —— Warning not heard by passenger—Passenger asleep.]—Pltf. was a passenger on defts.' railway to G. by a train which arrived at that station while it was still daylight. Owing to the train being too long for the platform at G., upon its arrival there the hindmost carriage, in which pltf. was, stopped short of the platform. A porter shouted to the passengers to keep their seats, but pltf., who was asleep, did not hear him. On waking pltf. realised that he was at G. station, & fearing that he might be carried on, got out in a hurry without looking to see what he was stepping on. There being a drop of five feet from the carriage floor to the ground, he fell & was injured :—Held : even if in the circumstances defts. were negligent, of which the ct. thought there was no evidence, pltf.'s act in getting out without looking where he was going was contributory negligence, & defts. were not responsible.—SHARPE v. SOUTHERN RY. To the question " In what did the negligence consist ? " the jury answered : " By the south side of rear end of second-class car by trap & door of vestibule being open ":—Held : this answer, making the negligence the " being open " of the door, & not the opening or leaving of it open, & not indicating who opened it or left it open, was not a finding upon which a judgment for pltf. could be based.—ALEXANDER v. CANADIAN NATIONAL RY., [1930] 3 D. 575 i. —— Platform too low.]—Where at a railway station there is no platform, or a platform of inadequate length to permit a passenger to step from his carriage on to a platform, the duty of the carrier to supply passengers with reasonable facilities for boarding & alighting from trains is fulfilled by providing the carriages with steps. A train pulled into a station in broad daylight, the carriage in which suppliant was travelling being drawn up beyond the platform. After goods from that station had been put out & a reasonable time had elapsed, the guard, thinking that all passengers had alighted, gave the signal to start & the train moved on, with the result that suppliant, who was then alighting from the side of the carriage away from the platform & out of view of the train officials, fell & was injured : —Held : there was no obligation upon the train officials to see that all passengers had actually alighted, & was no evidence of negligence.—MUNT v. R., [1932] N. place where she intended to alight, she descended the step below the rear platform, & that, while she was standing with both feet on the step, waiting for the car to stop, the car was accelerated with a jerk which threw her off the step & caused her injuries :—Held : pursuer, by voluntarily placing herself on the step of the moving car, had added a risk, which was not contemplated in the contract of carriage between her & defenders, & which constituted contributory negligence on her part ; action dismissed.—CALDWELL v. GLASGOW CORPN., [1936] S. There was no artificial light in the passage, & the daylight was waning. 685b. —— —— —— Injury on journey by special train.]—Pltf. was engaged as a workman by contractors to the Ministry of Health for the construction of a road near H., & the Ministry made with deft. railway co. arrangements for a special train to take pltf. & other men from C. to H., a distance of twenty-six miles. Pltf. received from his employers a voucher which was addressed to the booking clerk & which contained these words: "On surrender of this voucher please supply the bearer with a return workman's ticket to H. by any ordinary workman's train without payment. This voucher is only available by workman's train." The voucher, on presentation at the booking office, was exchanged for a ticket. One side of the ticket had on it (interalia) the words: "See back. Workmen. By special cheap train for the 'working classes.'" On the other side were (inter alia) the words: "This ticket is issued subject to the bye-laws, rules & regulations of the Managing Committee," & "This ticket is issued subject to the conditions mentioned in the Managing Committee's Act (62 & 63 Vict. c. clxviii), & its use by the holder is to be taken as evidence of a special contract upon those conditions. The liability of the co. is limited to a sum not exceeding £100." The above-mentioned Act contained provisions as to the running of workmen's trains on the particular railway within twenty miles of London, & limited the co.'s liability to £100, subject to certain conditions. Pltf. was injured by a collision between his train & another train. In an action for damages defts. admitted negligence, but contended that the issue of the ticket created a special contract between themselves & pltf. whereby their liability was limited to £100. The ct. found that pltf. must be taken to have been aware of the conditions indorsed on the back of the ticket. On the further question whether the terms of the contract applied to the particular journey :—Held : although the ticket & the conditions on it had been drafted as applicable to a journey by a train coming under the co.'s private Act, & contained no reference to such a journey as pltf.'s by a special train to a destination beyond twenty miles from London, yet, in the case of a passenger in the position of pltf., the conditions were a plain intimation that one condition on which the contract was made was that the co.'s liability should be

In an action to recover damages for injuries during transportation, due to the negligence of the ry. co.'s servants :—Held : the fact that the attendant had not paid any fare was due to the fact that the ry. co.'s agent made no attempt to collect the fare, & the ry. co. was responsible for the omission; the attendant was a full-fare passenger & not a trespasser & was entitled to recover damages.—STEWART v. GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RY. 685c. Time limit for making claim.]—Pltf. was received by defts. under a contract to be carried in one of their steamships. The contract contained a clause that the shipowners should not be liable for loss, damage or delay to a passenger or his baggage arising from the act of God, or from causes of any kind beyond the carrier's control, even though the loss, damage or delay might have been caused by the neglect or default of the shipowners' servants. A subsequent clause provided that no claim under the contract should be enforceable against the shipowners unless a written notice thereof was delivered to them within three days after the passenger should be landed from the steamer at the termination of her voyage. In the course of the voyage one of pltf.'s hands was injured by reason of the negligence of defts.' servants, but no written notice of any claim was given by pltf. within the time limited by the contract:— Held: (1) the clause relieving defts. from liability for the negligence of their servants was valid & enforceable, but applying the ejusdem generis rule, the clause did not absolve defts. from liability for pltf.'s injury; (2) as pltf. had failed to give any written notice of his claim within the time prescribed by the contract, he was not entitled to recover.—JONES v. OCEANIC STEAM NAVIGATION CO., [1924] 2 K. 686a. Contract for voyage—Mistake as to nature of voyage—Ratification.]—In Oct. 1933, pltf., a widow lady who since the death of her husband in 1929 had suffered from insomnia, nervous disorder, & heart trouble, wished to go to sea for a pleasure cruise. She called at the office of deft. co. & bought a ticket for a voyage to Australia & back on defts.' steamer O. She was under the impression that the voyage was to be a pleasure cruise & that she would have the benefit of the usual entertainments & shore excursions which are arranged on pleasure cruises, but in fact the voyage was an ordinary voyage in the regular mail & passenger service between England & Australia. She embarked on the O. in due course, & after the steamer had started she discovered that the voyage was not a pleasure cruise & she asked the purser to make arrangements for her to be put ashore & conveyed back to England. He suggested that she should go ashore at Toulon & return home by train through France, but as he could not undertake that deft. co. would refund the money which pltf. had paid for her passage she decided to stay on board, & she accordingly travelled to Australia & back. She then brought this action for damages for breach of contract. She had paid to deft. co. £140 for the return ticket to Australia & had paid a further £60 as a deposit to cover incidental expenses during the voyage, & she said that owing to the circumstances of the voyage her health had become worse & she had been put to trouble & expense at the ports of call:— Held: although originally the parties were not ad idem & there was no concluded contract, when pltf. made up her mind to remain on board for the voyage to Australia & back instead of returning to England from Toulon she elected to affirm the contract which deft. co. had in fact offered her, & as deft. co. had performed that contract the action failed.—MACMILLAN v. ORIENT STEAM NAVIGATION CO., LTD. On the excursion bills excursion tickets were stated to be issued subject to the conditions shown in the company's current time-tables. The time-tables, which could be obtained for sixpence each, stated: "Excursion tickets . . . are issued subject to the general regulations & to the condition that the holders . . . shall have no rights of action against the co. . . . in respect of . . . injury (fatal or otherwise) . . . however caused." p 1. —— —— —— ——.]—In an action by a passenger against a ry. co. to recover damages for personal injury sustained by him while travelling on one of their trains, defenders maintained that, under the contract of carriage, they were exempt from liability. When the accident occurred, pursuer was travelling on a "pleasure party" ticket, issued at a fare less than the ordinary fare. The ticket bore on the front, in legible print, "See Back," & on the back, also in legible print, "This ticket is issued subject to the General Notices, Regulations, & Conditions in the co.'s current Time Tables & Bills." Defenders' current Time Tables contained a section headed "General Notices, Regulations, & Condition," which included a condition that the holder of a ticket issued at a fare less than the ordinary fare should have no right of action against the co. in respect of injury, however caused. Pursuer admitted that he knew that there was printing on the back of his ticket, & that he must have read what was printed on the back of a similar ticket when travelling on previous occasions, but deponed that what he read had conveyed nothing to him:— Held: the condition formed part of the contract, in respect that the reference of the ticket to the conditions in defenders' time tables was reasonable notice of their existence & terms, & further, as pursuer knew there was printing on the back of the ticket, & admitted that at some time he must have read the printing, he must be taken to have known that it referred to conditions. covered by the excursion ticket was due to negligence on the part of deft. co. To prevent the case going back for a new trial, the jury were asked whether the deft. co. took reasonable steps to bring the conditions to the notice of pltf. & answered "No," & awarded damages. Argument was then allowed whether the jury could so find, & it was held that as a matter of law when the ticket was accepted the contract was complete, & therefore there was no evidence on which the jury could find as they did :—Held : (1) the fact that pltf. could not read did not alter the legal position ; she was bound by the special contract made on the excursion ticket on the acceptance of the ticket ; & the indication of the special conditions by reference to the time-tables was sufficient notice of their existence & contents ; (2) the question put to the jury for the sake of convenience as to reasonable notice must be determined upon the law applicable to the conditions upon which the ticket was issued, & those conditions negatived the right of pltf. to recover damages.—THOMPSON v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. Informations were preferred against K. & G., under the bye-law set out below, charging them respectively with having unlawfully transferred & unlawfully received a partly used ticket. The bye-law provided : "No person shall . . . transfer or receive any partly-used ticket . . . to or from any other person with intent that any person shall use the same for the purpose of travelling . . . on the ry., unless the ticket shall at the time of issuing thereof purport to be transferable." Where it is sought to restore a former convenience & conditions have changed, there is nothing in the fact that it was afforded before, & the question will be decided on its merits.

The real dispute between the parties as to each car was as to the quantity (a) shipped, (b) delivered at destination, (c) loss in transit, if any, & if any whether the shipper was to blame for the loss. The cars were all shipped under the uniform bill of lading for bulk grain :—Held : after reviewing the method of weighing & billing the grain, it was not to be assumed on that account that the grain was not carefully weighed or that the ry. was charged with any worthwhile quantity as having been put into any car which was not actually put into it, & the bills of lading largely lost their value as prima facie evidence of quantities, & in accordance with the real intention of the parties, should be considered rather as evidence only of approximate quantities shipped.—GRAIN CLAIMS BUREAU, LTD. & FEDERAL GRAIN, LTD. v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. In 1931 the Comrs. allowed an application to be made to rescind an order made in 1891. In 1891 the Comrs. ordered a railway co. to afford reasonable facilities for passenger traffic on a branch line which had been closed to passenger traffic. The railway co. complied with the order. In a later case between other parties it was held by the Ct. of Appeal that the Comrs. had no jurisdiction to make the order of 1891. In 1930 the railway co. again closed the line to passenger traffic. On an application by the urban council of the district for an order compelling the railway co. to obey the order of 1891, & on a motion by the railway co. to rescind the order of 1891 :—Held : the order of 1891, having been made without jurisdiction, must be rescinded. The new rate having been withdrawn, an application was made for a through rate equal to the original charge :—Held : (1) the question of rebate had been rightly excluded in fixing the amount of the through rate; (2) the Railway Comrs. had power to apportion the rate in such a way that part of it would be finally handed over to the trader. —GLENAVON GARW COLLIERIES, LTD. v. RHONDDA & SWANSEA BAY RY. 1166a. —— Wharfage.]—By its Act a canal co. was precluded from charging for wharfage in respect of private wharves constructed under provisions of the Act, which empowered adjoining owners to construct wharves on the banks of the canal. An oil co. acquired from the canal co. land adjoining the canal bank, under three conveyances, by one of which they were obliged, & by another empowered, to construct a wharf on a line beyond their boundary, so that the front part of the wharf should extend beyond the canal bank over the canal. On a wharf so erected the oil co. fixed a pipe & discharged oil in bulk from vessels lying in the canal. Competitors of the oil co. owning land that was near to but did not adjoin the canal obtained from the canal co. easements to erect valve houses on the canal bank, & discharged their oil in the same way. The canal co.'s sched. of charges contained two classes of oil. As to the one it was stated that the rate was inclusive of a charge for wharfage, as to the other, that the rate was for tolls only but that the use of the canal co.'s wharves was free. The oil co. & their competitors were charged the same rates, which were less than the maximum tolls for the use of the canal :—Held : the oil co.'s wharf was not a private wharf, to which the wharfage rate was inapplicable, firstly because it was constructed, not under the powers conferred by the Act on adjoining landowners, but under the obligations imposed as part of the consideration for which the land was acquired; secondly, because the wharf, extending over the canal, was not wholly constructed on the land of the adjoining owner; therefore, the oil co. was not unduly prejudiced by being charged the same rates as their competitors who did not own land adjoining the canal. The Commission found as a fact that the canal co. did not, in certain cases, charge for wharfage, though they charged an inclusive rate which covered the use of their wharves.—ANGLO-OIL CO. v. MANCHESTER SHIP (1929), 20 Ry. & Can. in respect of which a railway co. is bound to show no undue preference, then, if it can be shown that there is allowed out of the inclusive charge less for those services than is charged to complainants for the same services, an undue preference is made out. Therefore a cause of action was disclosed by an application which alleged that out of an inclusive charge made by the resps. for collection & delivery by water of rail-borne traffic less was retained by resps. in respect of wharfage at a wharf where goods were loaded on to railway trucks than was charged to the applicants for the same wharfage; (2) by the Ct. of Appeal such a question ought not to be tried on the pleadings because there might be disclosed at the trial material facts which had not been disclosed on the pleadings.—MASTER LIGHTERMEN & BARGE OWNERS ASSOCIATION v. SOUTHERN RY. ·]—Resps. made an inclusive charge of 3*s.* 10*d.* for collection & delivery by lighter on the Thames. This charge covered lighterage by resps.' accredited agents & also wharfage at the waterside station where the traffic was loaded & unloaded. Resps. paid their agents 2*s.* 10*d.* for the lighterage & retained 1*s.* for the wharfage. For the same wharfage the resps. charged 1*s.* 6*d.* to appcts., who were lightermen competing with resps.' agents. The Comrs. found as a fact that this discrimination, which they assumed to be a preference of resps.' agents against appcts., was necessary for the purpose of preventing the traffic collected & delivered by resps.' agents from being transferred from resps.' railway to rival carriers by road:—Held: (1) it was in the public interest that this traffic should be retained by the resps. instead of being carried by road; (2) the following facts were properly taken into account by the Comrs. in deciding that the preference was not undue, viz., that a similar system had been enforced for forty years by other railway cos. owning other wharves on the Thames; in consideration of the preference resps.' agents had submitted themselves to a system of control which was an advantage to resps.; the effect of the preference & the consequent monopoly of resps.' agents had been to augment resps.' traffic, & at the same time to render the working of it cheaper & more efficient, & to minimise delays & demurrage charges.

Appcts. called no evidence. The railway co., while submitting that the onus of proof had not shifted on them under 1888 Act, s. 27 (1), called evidence & put in tables based on the Pidcock principle with the object of showing that the value of the private siding services rendered to appcts at S. was in excess of the amounts included in their rates for station terminals at that station & also of the value of the respective private siding services rendered to appcts.' competitors at B. after allowing for the rebate:—Held: without deciding whether the onus had shifted to the railway co., but inclining to the view that it had, the Pidcock principle had been properly applied in the dissection of the respective rates, & there was no preference of appcts.' competitors.—PRENTICE BROTHERS, LTD. v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. The latter co. also owned a similar warehouse within their dock area at Manchester. A large consignment of cigarettes was conveyed over the Ship Canal to appcts.' warehouse, & was thence consigned to London over the railways of resp. cos., who charged a rate of 107*s.* per ton in two-ton lots, this being the ordinary Manchester town rate, whereas for similar traffic consigned from the warehouse of the Ship Canal Co. they quoted a rate of 54*s.* 6*d.*, the latter being the Liverpool to London rate, which was governed by competitive shipping rates. Upon a complaint that the Manchester Ship Canal Co. were being unduly preferred the above difference in rates was sought to be justified by the railway cos. on the ground that, the ports of Manchester & Liverpool being in competition, the lower rate was necessary in order to secure for Manchester in the public interest traffic which otherwise would go to Liverpool, & that the only practical way in which to distinguish between goods consigned from Manchester Town & Manchester Port respectively was to draw a line between goods on the premises of the Ship Canal Co. & those which had passed out of the control of that co. :—Held : (1) both rates were properly charged under the circumstances, & the difference between them was justified ; (2) where a railway co. quotes a rate constituting an undue preference & asserts a right & intention of charging the same the ct. has jurisdiction to interfere by injunction without waiting till such charge is actually made.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. CHESHIRE LINES COMMITTEE, GREAT CENTRAL RY. 1237b. —— —— ——.]—(1) A colliery co. agreed with a railway co. that in consideration of the colliery co. sinking a pit the railway co. would build a railway & would charge for the coal conveyed from the pit to the port of shipment rates as low per ton per mile as the rates for the time being charged by the railway co. for coal to or from the said port to or from any colliery in Glamorganshire. In pursuance of this agreement a charge of 6.923*d.* was made from before 1914 to Jan. 1920, when, in consequence of the imposition of a flat rate addition by the Minister of Transport the mileage rate of the said charge so increased came to exceed the mileage rate of the charges, similarly increased, for coal from more distant collieries to the same port : by the Rates Tribunal the charge of 6.923*d.* was fixed under a statutory agreement & originally fixed for valuable consideration.

(2) An assignment of the goodwill of a business " & all other protected rights & all other hereditaments, effects & things not capable of delivery by hand held relating to or enjoyed or exercised in connection with the said business " transfers the benefit of an agreement for a railway rate.

(3) An agreement which has been assigned, but incompletely for want of notice, is a subsisting agreement within sect. 34 (2) of Railways Act.

(4) The jurisdiction of the Rates Tribunal under sect. 34 (2) of the Railways Act is to continue charges, but not so as to override the repeal of agreements for charges effected by sect. 34 (1). Consequently, an agreement that a colliery co. shall have as low a rate per ton per mile as any other colliery cannot be continued.

(5) The adjustment prescribed by sect. 34 (2) means that the adjusted charge is to bear the same relation to the general charges made on the appointed day as the charge to be continued bore to the general charges made on Aug. 4, 1914.—POWELL DUFFRYN STEAM COAL CO. v. GREAT WESTERN RY. 1245g. Co. (1904), 12 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 151.

1245h. Alteration—When granted.]—The standard charges based on the classification are not intended to be the equivalent of the services rendered in each particular case. They are overall charges which the cos. are prepared to make in all the circumstances of all the articles in the classification. The cos. may make more profit out of one carriage than another. That alone is not a ground for transferring the article which is carried at the greater profit into a lower class.—WOOLWORTH & Co. v. AMALGAMATED RY. Cos. (1930), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 149.

1245j. Publication—Addition of explanation to statutory classification.]—By 1921 Act, s. 28, the Rates Tribunal have jurisdiction to determine any question as to the class in which any article is classified, & by sect. 54 the railway cos. are required to keep for sale printed copies of the general classification for the time being in force. The railway cos. kept for sale two copies, one a literal copy, known as the Statutory Classification, in which the different articles appeared according to their class, & another, a copy known as the Working Classification, in which the different articles appeared in alphabetical order followed by the number of the class to which they belonged. In the Working Classification were numerous explanatory entries inserted by the railway cos. but not found in the statutory copy. 1246a. On rejection of goods by consignee.]—A contract of carriage of goods in a co.'s wagon to a private siding does not terminate until the wagon is returned empty by the consignee to the railway co. Where a consignee rejects a consignment delivered to him in a co.'s wagon at his private siding, the services of hauling the wagon back to the station & then accommodating it while the instructions of the consignor as to its disposal are obtained, & also the service of hauling the wagon back to the private siding, where the instructions are to redeliver the consignment, are all services rendered for the convenience of the consignor within para. 5 of the Sched. to the Rates & Charges Orders. The charges for such services are therefore recoverable from the consignor, both under the contract where the consignment note provides that all charges are to be paid by the consignor & under the Rates & Charges Order.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. Co. v. BRAHAMS (1931), 21 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 1.

1246b. Services in connection with sidings—When conveyance begins & ends.]—(1) The Railway Rates Tribunal, on a modification of standard charges under sect. 35 of 1921 Act, fixed standard charges for " services performed by the co. at the beginning & end of transit " :—Held : such standard charges were applicable to services at or in connection with private sidings, & a rate or charge being thereby otherwise provided for such services the Tribunal had no jurisdiction to fix a reasonable charge for them under para. 11 (1) (i.) of Sched. V. of 1921 Act.

(2) The Tribunal having in fact fixed a standard charge for private siding services the question whether it ever had power so to do could not be entertained on an application to fix reasonable charges for private siding services.

(3) In applying sect. 40 of 1921 Act to exceptional rates for traffic which has beer transferred from one class to another, the disintegration is to be made by reference to the standard rate to which the exceptional rate is for the time being exceptional, not by reference to the standard rate out of which the exceptional rate was originally carved.

1287a. Stevedoring.]—The London & North Western Railway Co. (Rates & Charges) Order Confirmation Act, after reciting the Railway & Canal Traffic Act, confirms the Order as set out in the Sched. By para. 21 of the Sched., nothing therein contained shall affect the right of the co. to make any charges which they are authorised by any Act of Parliament to make in respect of any accommodation or services provided or rendered by the co. at or in connection with docks or shipping places, & by para. 26 of the Sched. the term " railway " means any railway or steam tramway over which the co. conveys merchandise, & in respect of which no maximum rates & charges other than those authorised in the Sched. are for the time being authorised by Parliament. By Pt. IV. of the Appendix to the Sched. the co. may charge such reasonable sums as they think fit for any accommodation or services rendered within the scope of their undertaking by the desire of a trader, & in respect of which no provisions are made by the Sched. :—Held : (1) in construing the Sched. the definition of " railway " in para. 26 of the Sched. is to be applied, & not the definition in sect. 3 of 1873 Act ; (2) the work of stevedoring is incidental to the undertaking of a dock owned by a railway co. ; (3) in doing the work of stevedoring a railway co. is not bound by the limitations of Pt. SECT. 6.—EXCEPTIONAL RATES AND FARE
(Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323a. Under 1921 Act—Meaning of " standard " & " exceptional."]—The expression " standard " as applied to charges in Part III. o the above Act is the correlative or complementary term to " exceptional," &, there being therefore no other alternative, every chargeable rate, fare, or charge for conveyance must necessarily be included in one or other of the above categories. Railway cos. are therefore required, under sect. 80 of the above Act, to submit to the Rates Tribunal forms of schedules for standard season tickets & workmen's fares.—Re STANDARD CHARGES SCHEDULES (1923), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 147.

1323b. New exceptional rates—Grounds for granting.]—The fact that equal rates were formerly charged from two competing points to a common market unequally distant from them, whereas the corresponding standard charges are unequal, is not a ground on which the Railway Rates Tribunal will grant a new exceptional rate so as to restore the equality. —DOWLOW LIME & STONE CO., LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1928), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 41.

1323c. —— ——.]—An application for a new exceptional rate under sect. 37 (3) of Railways Act, 1921, may be justified by showing that the rate for which it is intended to be substituted is unfair or excessive, or that the new rate will tend to augment the standard revenue. Where the existing rate in force is one which the railway co. has no legal power to charge the Tribunal will not consider whether it is unjust or excessive.

In a proper case the Tribunal will grant a new exceptional rate to relieve a trader against an undue prejudice. A trader is not unduly prejudiced by a lower rate granted to another trader who does not compete with him.—DOLE (JAMES) & CO. v. FOUR AMALGAMATED RY. COS. & LONDON PASSENGER TRANSPORT BOARD (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 87.

1323d. —— Validity of flat rate.]—A new exceptional rate under Railways Act, 1921 (c. 55), s. 37, must not be a flat rate irrespective of distance, but must contain a charge based on so much per ton per mile according to distance & class.—Re GREAT WESTERN RY. CO.'S APPLICATION, [1933] 2 K. B. 391, 102 L. J. K. B. 549; 149 L. T. 372; 49 T. L. R. 500; sub nom. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. v. BRISTOL GRAIN IMPORTERS DEFENCE ASSOCN., 21 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 46, C. A.

1323e. —— Must be fixed by tribunal & entered in rate book.]—A new exceptional rate within Rys. Act, 1921 (c. 55), s. 37, requires to be "fixed," that is, sanctioned by the Ry. Rates Tribunal under the above section & it also requires to be entered in the rate book of the co. before it is "granted," that is to say, before it becomes operative as between the ry. co. & consignors of goods. Therefore where the tribunal fixed a rate of 10*s.* 9*d.*, but the ry. co. entered in its rate book a rate of 14*s.* 9*d.* there was no effective exceptional rate granted, since neither rate was both sanctioned by the tribunal & entered in the rate book.—GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. v. JAMES (HENRY R.) & SONS, LTD., [1936] 2 All E. R. 660; 80 Sol. Jo. 571; 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 241, C. A.

1323f. Disintegration—On continuation.]—Where an exceptional rate is referred to the Rates Tribunal for its determination under 1921 Act, s. 36, then, if the Tribunal decides to continue the rate, its duty is to disintegrate it in the manner provided for in sect. 40 of the Act, & the performance of this duty may at its discretion be postponed until some party interested in the rate applies for the disintegration.—DISINTEGRATION OF CONTINUED EXCEPTIONAL RATES (1928), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 1.

1323g. —— Time for.]—A railway co. applied to the Rates Tribunal to sanction a rate, more than 40 per cent. below the standard rate, between a seaport town & the Midlands. Another seaport town competing in the same traffic, having been admitted to oppose the said rate, sought to administer interrogatories to the railway co. as to the disintegration of the existing rates between the two ports respectively & the Midlands & of the new proposed rate, with a view to showing the effect that the new rate would have on the competition, & the prejudice that would be caused to the opponents of the rate:—Held: by the Rates Tribunal, such rates are to be disintegrated by the Rates Tribunal, under 1921 Act, s. 40, at the time when they are sanctioned; it is proper for the railway co. to present the rate for sanction without any proposed disintegration, & there is no procedure for obtaining a preliminary disintegration of such a rate.—BRISTOL CORPN. v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1928), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 28.

SECT. 7.—OWNER'S RISK RATES (Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323j. Conveyance of goods by passenger train at owner's risk—Application for reduction of rate—Difference in risk negligible—Whether ground for two scales.]—Appcts. were consignors of gramophone records in the form of flat discs by passenger train. Resps. conveyed these discs at full parcels scale, but under owner's risk conditions. Appcts. claimed that since the discs were conveyed at owner's risk, a reduction should be made from the full parcels scale. It was admitted that when packed by the manufacturers the risk of breakage in transit was negligible. Resps. contended that in the case of goods carried by passenger train the difference between the owner's risk rate & the co.'s risk rate was not intended as a measure of the difference of risk:—Held: the difference in the risk to the railway cos. under the two sets of conditions being negligible, on the analogy of 1921 Act, s. 46 (3), there was no ground for directing that there should be two scales, but the discs, when properly packed, should be carried at co.'s risk, &, when not properly packed, at owner's risk. "Properly packed" means packed according to reasonable regulations made by the railway cos., the question of reasonableness to be settled by the Tribunal in case of difference.—BRITISH MUSIC INDUSTRIES FEDERATION v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 121.

1323k. —— —— Grounds for ordering.]—Revised scales of rates based on the "zone" principle for the carriage of parcels by passenger train at co.'s risk & owner's risk respectively were put into force by resp. cos. in Nov. 1918, & were subsequently twice increased in 1920 by uniform percentage additions in accordance with directions of the Minister of Transport. In May, 1923, new & reduced scales for the above traffic were introduced, whereby the above increases of 1920 were reduced in unequal proportions in order to remove what resp. cos. considered to be anomalies between the co.'s risk & owner's risk scales, with the result that the reductions made in the charges under the owner's risk scale were considerably less than those made in the charges under the co.'s risk scale. Upon an application under 1921 Act, s. 60, to reduce the rates for parcels containing sausages, etc., consigned by passenger train at owner's risk: —Held: looking to the circumstances in which the above percentage increases had been recommended & imposed & subsequently continued by 1921 Act, s. 60, the railway cos. were not entrusted with them for any purpose connected with the adjustment of relationships between scales of charge but for the purpose of meeting increased expenses, & in the absence of special circumstances the proper practice was to give equal reduction to all; taking the above owner's risk scale of Nov. 1918, & not that of 1914, as sought by appcts., as a basis of calculation, the owner's risk rates by passenger train on appcts.' above traffic should not exceed those in force in Sept. 1920, as reduced, by 25 per cent.—SAUSAGE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCN. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO., LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO., GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., SOUTHERN RY. CO., & CHESHIRE LINES COMMITTEE (1924), 18 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 59.

1323l. Delay in making claim—When relief granted.]—Where the course of business between a consignor & his selling agent made it impossible for the agent to know what consignments he ought to have received until the half-yearly stocktaking, & where in consequence no advice was given to the co. within fourteen days of the consignment being handed to them that it had not been delivered, & no claim was made within twenty-eight days:—Held: that is not the kind of impossibility contemplated by the proviso to condition 6 of the standard terms & conditions of carriage of merchandise by passenger train at owner's risk, in respect of which the Rates Tribunal may grant relief.—WAPNAH v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 87.

1326a. —— Charges imposed by Ministry of Transport.]—Appcts. claimed reductions in the charges made by resps. for the detention of ordinary wagons & sheets, which were in the case of wagons 3*s.* per day for the first two days after the expiration of the free periods allowed for loading & unloading & thereafter 5*s.* per day, & in the case of sheets 6*d.* & 1*s.* for the like periods. These charges had been imposed on & after Jan. 1, 1920, by an order of the Minister of Transport, made in accordance with a recommendation of the Rates Advisory Committee, with the object of diminishing wagon detention & causing traders to exercise more diligence in loading & unloading them. The charges in force in 1913 had been 1*s.* 6*d.* per day for wagons & 3*d.* per day for sheets after the free periods then given. Appcts. also claimed that in reckoning the above periods Saturday should be treated as half a day. Resps. contended that the charges complained of were reasonable, & also that it was not open to the ct. to reverse the policy of the Minister of Transport in making a differentiation between the first two days following the free periods & subsequent days:—Held: (1) the ct. had jurisdiction to modify the charges complained of; (2) having regard to the value of wagons & sheets as compared with 1913, the loss of profit to the railway cos. arising from detention, the standing & overall charges & the extra expenses of shunting & occupation of siding involved, the charges of 3*s.* per day for wagons & 6*d.* per day for sheets, while on the high side, were not unreasonable, but the additional charges of 2*s.* & 6*d.* per day upon wagons & sheets respectively after the expiration of the first two days beyond the free periods were no longer justified, & should be discontinued, & the existing arrangements with regard to Saturdays should not be interfered with.—BRITISH HAY TRADERS' ASSOCN. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. 1331a. —— Congestion caused by increased traffic —Insufficiency of unloading sidings.]—Pltf. co. had on their railway system at P. a small junction station, where there was a siding with sufficient accommodation for unloading the normal goods traffic consigned to that station. Defts. were contractors who were interested in one of three local building schemes which were started about the same time, involving a large increase in the goods traffic consigned to P. Owing to the congestion brought about in P. station by this increased traffic, & the fact that the unloading siding could only accommodate a limited number of wagons at a time, a number of the wagons arriving with goods at P. on defts.' account had to be put into storage sidings, to await their turn to be taken into the proper siding to be unloaded. Great delay in the discharge of wagons was caused thereby, but all the delay occurred at the storage sidings before the wagons were put into the unloading siding. Pltf. co. claimed from defts. exceptional charges for the detention of wagons in the storage sidings, under an implied contract or for accommodation or services provided or rendered by pltfs. to defts. within the scope of pltfs.' undertaking by the desire of defts.:—Held: as, on the facts of the case, the wagons were not put into the storage sidings at the desire of defts. they were not liable to pay the exceptional charges claimed.—GREAT WESTERN RY. 1337b. —— Terminal charges not in fact made.]—Appcts. carried on business as timber merchants at a private siding about half a mile from resps.' station at R. They made no use of the station for their traffic. On an application to reduce the rates on appcts.' traffic on the grounds (1) that they were excessive, inasmuch as they were the same as those charged for similar traffic which made use of the station at R., & (2) that the rates in fact included charges for the use of the station, & resps. were not entitled to make any charge over & above the charge for conveyance :—Held : (1) the conveyance of appcts.' traffic started from or ended at a siding in the R. station, & resps. were entitled to charge for any services prior or subsequent to such conveyance, & such services were in fact rendered & the charges were not excessive. (2) The ct. will not infer that station terminals are being paid simply because a siding rate & a station rate are the same in amount. SECT. 12.—REDUCTION OF RATES
(Vol. VIII., p. 217).

1377a. Who may apply for—Trader "interested"—Warehouseman & forwarding agent.]—Appcts., who were warehousemen & forwarding agents at Trafford Park, Manchester, & who had unsuccessfully applied to the Railway Comrs. in respect of an alleged undue preference founded on the same facts, applied for a reduction in a rate of 106*s.* 7*d.*, formerly 107*s.*, charged upon cigarettes consigned in two-ton lots from their Trafford Park warehouse, which was near to, but outside, the Manchester Docks, to King's Cross, London, upon the ground that the corresponding rate from Liverpool was 54*s.* 6*d.*, provisionally reduced to 50*s.* The lower rate was also charged on similar traffic consigned from Manchester Docks, while the higher rate was the ordinary Manchester town rate. Appcts. contended that where traffic as to which the conditions were in all respects alike is sent from two places A. & B. in the same district to the same destination, the same railway co. shall not charge a higher sum from A. than from B., unless the distance of the destination in the case of A. is greater than the distance in the case of B., provided that the rate in the case of A. is a productive rate. They admitted that conditions could not be treated as in all respects alike, if in the one case there was competition which did not exist in the other. Resps. objected that appcts. were not interested traders within 1921 Act, s. 60, & that the rate complained of, which was the ordinary Manchester town rate, was reasonable :—Held : (1) while something in the nature of a direct interest must be shown, the interest of appcts. in the above charges was sufficiently direct to entitle them to prosecute these proceedings ; (2) in deciding what was a reasonable rate to be charged to appcts., regard should be had to the following considerations : (a) that it was not enough for a trader to show that without a reduction in rate he could not carry on a particular branch of his business ; (b) that when railway cos. declared that in their own interests they could not grant facilities or reductions in rates, it would not be right for that ct. to compel them to adopt such a course of business unless appcts. showed that the railway cos. were mistaken ; (c) that it was not intended by 1921 Act to establish the principle of equal mileage rates for all places & the consequent adoption of exceptional rates based on competition by water or road as the standard for all rates whether such competition existed in other places or not, & therefore that the existence of a low exceptional rate, not being in fact an undue preference, while a fact to be considered, was not alone a sufficient ground for ordering the reduction of a rate for goods in competition with those having the benefit of the low rate ; (3) applying the above principles & taking all the circumstances into account, appcts. should be allowed a rate of 72*s.* 6*d* subject to any general revision of rates.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. CHESHIRE LINES COMMITTEE, GREAT CENTRAL RY. 1377b. Grounds for ordering—Necessity for primâ facie case.]—Confectionery in bottles & jars was carried by the railway cos. originally at co.'s risk, & subsequently under certain agreed packing conditions. In 1920 the cos., without making any reduction in rates, refused to carry confectionery packed as above except at owner's risk, owing to the heavy proportion of claims against them for damage. They continued to carry confectionery not contained in bottles & jars at co.'s risk. Upon an application for a reduction in the rates for confectionery when contained in bottles & jars :—Held : (1) an appct. for a reduction in rates must make a primâ facie case for the same ; (2) such a case had been made upon the above facts ; (3) the cos. were not precluded from making special conditions by reason of the fact that they for some time had carried the above goods without conditions ; (4) while certain losses in respect of confectionery not contained in bottles & carried at co.'s risk were borne by the cos., which losses did not arise in the case of confectionery in bottles carried at owner's risk, the saving to the cos., e.g. 4 or 5 per cent., was not sufficient to justify a reduction in rate.—MANUFACTURING CONFECTIONERS' ALLIANCE, INCORPORATED v. CALEDONIAN RY. 1377d. —— Experimental rate.]—Upon an application for an experimental reduced rate of 40*s.* per ton for flax straw in full train loads for a transit of approximately 200 miles, resp. railway cos. offered for a period of five months a rate of 45*s.*, plus siding haulage charge. The ordinary class rate was 88*s.* 2*d.*, less 12½ per cent. Similar traffic was being carried to the same destination from places forty or fifty miles away at approximately the same rate as that offered :—Held : the rate should be 45*s.* Qu. : whether the Tribunal ought to take into account the possibility that an experimental rate will result in bringing a large future traffic.—MARSH v. GREAT EASTERN & GREAT WESTERN RY. COS. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 129.

1377e. —— Removal of flat-rate additions imposed by Minister of Transport.]—Upon applications to remove certain flat-rate additions to the rates on appcts.' traffic which had been imposed by the Minister of Transport in exercise of his powers under Ministry of Transport Act, 1919 (c. 50), s. 3 (1) (c) :—Held : (1) the ct. would not assume that the Minister was wrong in imposing such flat-rate additions ; (2) it was not competent to the ct. to remove such flat-rate additions on the ground that the reasons given in support of their imposition by the former Rates Advisory Committee were not applicable to appcts.' traffic ; (3) the rates on appcts.' traffic were not excessive, notwithstanding that the percentage increase resulting from such flat-rate additions was greater on traffic carried at low mileage rates than on that carried at higher mileage rates, & that larger reductions in rates had been given to blast furnace than to appcts.', i.e., coal, traffic.

(4) A rate is not necessarily excessive because a railway co. are not handing back on balance to the traders all the savings that they are making in reduced expenses.—MONMOUTHSHIRE & SOUTH WALES COAL OWNER'S ASSOCN. v. GREAT WESTERN RY. 1377f. —— Reductions granted to other interests.]—Upon an application for the removal of a flat-rate increase of 2*d.* per ton, being part of a larger increase which originally had been imposed on appcts.' traffic in coal, coke & patent fuel in accordance with a second general revision of rates directed by the Minister of Transport which had since been voluntarily reduced by resps., the following grounds were relied upon by appcts. in support of their case : (1) that a greater proportionate reduction in rates had been given to the traffic of certain admittedly necessitous industries than to their traffic ; (2) that their traffic, & in particular their short distance traffic, had increased in density since the above increase in rates, thereby producing an exceptional profit for resps. ; & (3) that they apprehended in the future an intensive foreign competition which a reduction in railway rates would assist them to meet :—Held : (1) the reductions in rates granted by resps. to the traffic of other industries were justified & did not establish a case of hardship or injustice to appcts. ; (2) while it was doubtful as to how far the increase in coal traffic had resulted in increased profit to resp. cos., the period of prosperity in appcts.' trade which was mainly due to the abnormal European political situation was passing away ; (3) in an application for a reduction of a rate under 1921 Act, s. 60, the onus lay upon an appct. to show the existence of some element of unfairness or of hardship amounting to unfairness, & appcts. had not discharged that onus by alleging that a reduction in rates would assist.—MINING ASSOCN. 1377g. —— Abolition of free storage facilities.]—Appcts., the owners of a warehouse at Trafford Park, Manchester, claimed that a rate of 10*s.* 11*d.* per ton for sugar from Liverpool to their private siding at Trafford Park, being the same amount as the corresponding rate from Liverpool to resp. co.'s Oldham Road station at Manchester, should be reduced by an amount equal to the cost incurred by resps. in providing terminal accommodation & services, including twenty-eight days' free warehousing, at their Manchester station. No sugar had been consigned by rail to appcts.' warehouse, nor was there any evidence that any trader desired to consign sugar to it. Prior to the war resps. had given fourteen days' free storage at Manchester for sugar in view of similar free accommodation provided by competing water-carriers from Liverpool to Manchester. This facility having been withdrawn by resps., they had lost as a result a large part of their sugar traffic from Liverpool to Manchester, &, therefore, as from Nov. 1923, had restored the above free storage for an extended period of twenty-eight days:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to abolish the facility of free storage, there was no evidence that the 10*s.* 11*d.* rate to Trafford Park was unreasonable or excessive, & there was no presumption that the rate when compared with the corresponding rate to Oldham Road station was unreasonable, because the latter included free storage at that station.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. Where, on Aug. 15, 1921, there was a rate for sugar & a lower rate for sugar in four-ton lots, & the railway cos. subsequently conceded a still lower rate for sugar in five-ton lots:—Held: the five-ton rate was not a new rate, & on Aug. 15, 1921, there was a rate in force for sugar in five-ton lots, namely the rate for sugar in four-ton lots.—TATE & LYLE, LTD. v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. 1377p. What agreements approved.]—General observations as to agreed charges under the Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (c. 53).

Where an agreement is approved by the Tribunal statements made by the parties in the proceedings for approval form part of the agreement. It is no objection to an agreement for a charge that it does not limit the railway co. to carriage by rail.—Re CHISWICK PRODUCTS AGREED CHARGE (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 53.

1377q. ——.]—An agreement to carry the whole of a trader's traffic wherever required for a percentage of the purchase price may properly be made under Road & Rail Traffic Act (c. 53), s. 37. The objection that such an agreement makes it impossible for competing traders to compare their own charges with the agreed charge would be equally applicable to a tonnage or a package rate.

It is not necessary that such an agreement should contain a provision for limiting the advantage which may be expected to accrue to the trader. A comparison between a rate based on the purchase price of a certain commodity & a rate based on mileage & weight of a consignment of the same commodity is fallacious.

An agreement may be approved though it gives liberty to the parties to agree (without seeking the approval of the Tribunal) for the exclusion of certain traffics from the operation of the agreement.—Re WOOLWORTH'S AGREED CHARGE (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 90.

1475. —— ——.]—The fact that an appct. was a partner in a firm which used goods vehicles during the basic year is not a relevant matter to be taken into account on an application for an A licence. Since Parliament has granted to licensing authorities a discretion to grant or refuse licences, traders no longer have the right to choose the carriers they will employ.

It is not enough for an appct. for an A licence to prove that traders are willing to employ him. He must also show that there is a need for his services in the locality in which he proposes to operate.—PETRIE v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 15.

PART XI. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.

sx. Consignee—Damage to goods en route—Owner having paid damage to consignee.]—Where an owner of goods had indorsed a bill of lading to the buyer :—Held : he had parted with all his rights to obtain damages from the carrier. The fact that the owner paid the indorsee the damages suffered by the goods en route did not deprive the latter of his right of action against the carrier.—FORD MOTOR CO. v. UNION S.S. Co., [1925] 1 D. L. R. 265 ; [1924] 3 W. W. R. 718.—CAN.

his application was a matter of form, & who did not realise the importance of presenting the whole of his case to the licensing authority was allowed to call new evidence before the Appeal Tribunal.

(2) The fact that an appct.'s vehicle has been employed by other hauliers is some evidence of a public need for additional transport facilities.—Re FRY'S APPEAL (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 29.

1477. —— ——.]—An A licence should be granted where the public need for a carrier in the appct.'s district is established, even though it is not shown that that need has been brought about by any general expansion of industry. An appct.'s ignorance of the law relating to motor cars, the fact that an appct. has bought a goods vehicle without first obtaining a licence for it, & the probability that an appct. will lose money in the business of a carrier are not relevant considerations to which a Comr. should have regard in granting or refusing an A licence.—Re HUGHES' APPEAL (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 141.

1478. —— ——.]—The fact that vehicles were used during the basic year by a firm since dissolved of which the appct.'s son was a member is not a good ground for granting an application for an A licence intended to be exercised for the benefit of the son.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. v. HURD, NEWHAMS, LTD. v. HURD (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 147.

Annotations :—Apld. Watts v. London & North Eastern & London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Cos. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 187. Refd. London, Midland & Scottish Ry. 1480. —— ——.]—The fact that an appct. was a carrier up to a few weeks before the commencement of the basic year, but went out of business because of rate cutting by his competitors, should not influence a licensing comr. to grant him an A licence in the absence of evidence that the work he proposes to do cannot be done by other carriers. Where an appct. failed to adduce evidence showing that his vehicles would not be in excess of local requirements, his application ought to have been refused.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. INMAN (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 184.

—— ——.]—There being only two covered vans in G. suitable for the removal of furniture, the appct. was granted an A licence on proof that there was a need in G. for another such van & that there were persons willing to employ him.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. TAIT & MACCONN (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 201.

1482. —— ——.]—Held: an A licence should not be granted to a carrier of twelve years' standing who gave up the business of carrying because he was losing money, but was out of time for an application under sect. 7 (2). But there may be an equitable right to a licence where a carrier was actively employed as such on Apr. 1, 1934, but failed through inadvertence to apply in time.—YEARSLEY v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 258.

Annotation :—Refd. Barker v. London & North Eastern & London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Cos. (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 161.

1483. —— ——.]—(1) An appct. who proposes to provide a new type of service, such as a regular daily service, is not bound to satisfy the licensing authority that the haulage he proposes to do cannot for some reason be done by other carriers already engaged in carriage, whether by road or rail.

(2) An appeal was allowed where applt. did not present his true case to the licensing authority, but did present it to the Appeal Tribunal. Observations on the duty of a licensing comr. to give the reasons for his decision in writing when duly requested to do so.—SMITH v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 262.

Annotation :—Distd. Ferguson v. Western S.M.T. Co. (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 72.

1484. —— ——.]—The fact that an appct. has been granted a short term licence for administrative reasons under sect. 3 (4), & that he has purchased a vehicle on the faith of that grant are not grounds for granting him an A licence for the full currency period.—RHODES v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 266.

—— ——.]—An appct. for an A licence who proves that there are persons ready & willing to employ him & that the service which he offers can be more efficiently operated by him than by others should be granted a licence.—EDWARDS v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 67.

Annotation :—Refd. London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Co. v. Anton (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 325.

1486. —— ——.]—(1) On an application for an A licence by a newcomer to the carriers' business appct. must not only prove that there are persons ready & willing to employ him, but must also make out a primâ facie case that if the application is granted traffic facilities in the district which he proposes to serve will not be in excess of requirements.

(2) The willingness of an appct. for an A licence to enter into an undertaking to observe a condition limiting his exercise of the licence is not a proper ground for granting the licence.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. COS. v. PALMER (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 76.

1487. —— ——.]—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH

& LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. COS. v. WILLIAMS, No. 1597, post.

1488. —— ——.]—(1) An applt. who had failed to prove his case before the comr. was permitted to call new evidence to prove it before the Appeal Tribunal.

(2) At a public inquiry held by the comr. it appeared that appct. had captured the traffic of the objectors, but it did not appear how this had been done. The comr. refused the application because there was no evidence of any need for the services of the appct. On new evidence being called before them the Appeal Tribunal were satisfied that the traffic of the objectors had been captured by appct. because of the inefficiency of the former; the appeal was therefore allowed though there was no evidence to show that the work proposed to be done by the appct. could not for some reason or reasons be done by other carriers.—STEPHENSON v. SAGAR & SON (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 183.

1489. —— ——.]—Although it is found as a fact that there is work available for an appct. to do, he ought not to be granted a licence to do it unless he also proves a primâ facie case that there is no other carrier able to do the work.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. PENNINGTON (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 256.

Annotation:—Consd. Barkley v. London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Co. & London & North Eastern Ry. Co. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 267.

1490. —— ——.]—(1) A carrier who anticipates that he is not likely to use his vehicle to do any work except for one person only ought not to be granted an ordinary A licence.

(2) The fact that an appct. bought his vehicle before the passing of the Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (c. 53), but after the end of the basic year, & used it for carrying goods for reward, & the hardship which would be occasioned by refusing a licence in such circumstances, are not matters which a Comr. ought to take into consideration in the exercise of his discretion.—BARKLEY v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 267.

Annotation:—Consd. Kerr & London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Co. v. Brown (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 323.

1491. —— ——.]—Held: the fact that a ry. co. offered facilities for the transport of wet hides & had a number of years ago carried wet hides for a trader for whom appct. proposed to carry wet hides was evidence that suitable transport facilities in the district intended to be served by appct. were in excess of requirements.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. v. DUNNETT (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 276.

1492. —— ——.]—A carrier who was entitled to an A licence because he had been carrying during the basic year was granted an A licence under sect. 7 (1) of the Act subject to the condition that he should use his vehicle exclusively for the traffic of one co. Later part of the traffic of that co., came under the control of another person who also desired to employ this carrier. The carrier therefore surrendered his A licence with the condition attached & applied for an A licence without any condition. Sir Henry Piggott was of opinion that in ordinary justice the applicant was entitled to an A licence:—Held: by the Appeal Tribunal, appct. should not have been granted an A licence because it appeared that he was not the only carrier capable of dealing with the traffic.—SOUTHERN RY. CO. v. OWEN (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 36.

1493. —— ——.]—An appct. obtained an A (Contract) licence. Later he applied for an A licence, claiming that he had been mistaken as to the nature of the A (Contract) licence. He adduced no evidence that persons other than the co. with whom he was under contract would employ him:—Held: on the facts, appct. had not made a mistake, & no case had been made out. Semble: if a mistake had been made, this would have afforded equitable grounds for granting an A licence.—AXFORD v. SOUTHERN RY. CO. (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 77.

1494. —— ——.]—A haulage co. went into liquidation in Sept. In Oct. resps., two of its former drivers started business on their own account, & applied for an A licence. At the inquiry two of their customers stated that they, the customers, had employed the co., but that in the interval between the liquidation & the commencement of the new business they had employed other firms. A third customer had no complaint against applts., whom he had employed until the new business started:—Held: resps. had not established a primâ facie case that the work they proposed to do could not be done by existing operators, & were therefore not entitled to a licence.

Per Sir Henry Piggott: Particulars of the objector's & other existing services should be given in the Notice of Objection.—NEWBURY & DISTRICT MOTOR SERVICES, LTD. v. STEPHENS & HEWETT (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 140.

1495. —— ——.]—An application for an A licence was refused both because appcts. failed to discharge the onus of proving the need for the service which they desired to provide & that this need could not for some reason be met by the facilities already available, & also because the grant of the licence would have created an excess of transport facilities in the district.—ORANGE (J.), LTD. v. JENNINGS (1935), 24 Ry. Can. & Tr. Cas. 195.

1496. —— ——.]—An A licence ought not to be granted to an appct. who does not prove that he is the only carrier capable of carrying the traffic he proposes to carry. It makes no difference that there are persons who desire to avail themselves of his services.—JONES v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 24 Ry. Can. & Tr. Cas. 208.

1497. —— ——.]—A co. engaged principally upon haulage on trunk routes applied at the close of the first currency period for a new A licence in continuation of their existing A licence. The amalgamated railway cos. objected upon the ground that suitable transport facilities were already in excess of requirements:— Held: by the Appeal Tribunal: (1) it is no part of a licensing authority's duty to have regard to a difference between road & rail rates or to take into account the railway "rates structure" set up pursuant to Railways Act, 1921; (2) there is nothing in the Act to support the view that the "status quo" should be maintained beyond the first currency period; (3) the principle laid down in Smart's Case, No. 1517, post, is not limited to applications for variations but applies equally to applications such as this. The principle is that, if an objector proves that suitable transport facilities are in excess of requirements, or would be if the licence were granted, then, generally speaking, a licence should not be granted. The Appeal Tribunal now point out that proof of the objection does not give the objector a legal right to have the application dismissed; the reason why such an application should be dismissed is that it would not be in the public interest for a licensing authority to exercise his discretion so as to create wasteful competition; (4) an established haulier on a trunk service when applying for a new A licence in continuation of his expiring licence should satisfy the licensing authority (a) that during the currency of his expiring licence the authorised vehicles have been regularly & fully employed; (b) as to his gross receipts & tonnage; (c) there has been no material change in the circumstances relating to his business. If the licensing authority is satisfied as to these matters he should grant the application unless there are overriding circumstances to the contrary. Such overriding circumstances exist if the evidence establishes beyond reasonable doubt that suitable transport facilities are, or will be, in excess of requirements; (5) transport facilities are not "suitable" within sect. 11 (2) of the Act unless they are (a) suitable for carrying the goods required to be carried, (b) suitable to the person requiring them to be carried on the occasions when he requires transport, & (c) suitable to current industrial & commercial conditions; (6) on the facts of this case, appcts. had satisfied the licensing authority as to the matters (a), (b) & (c) of (4) above, & that the objectors, though they had proved that their facilities were physically adequate, had not proved them to be "suitable." Application granted.—FOUR AMALGAMATED RY. COS. v. BOUTS-TILLOTSON TRANSPORT, LTD. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 158.

1499. ——— ———.]—An old-established firm of hauliers also carried on a gravel, etc., business. In 1927 the entire business was acquired by a limited co. In 1931 a second limited co. was formed & acquired the road haulage portion of the business. This haulage co. was in 1934 granted an A licence, claimed tonnage. It now applied for an A licence in continuation of the expiring licence. Mr. Gleeson Robinson refused the application on the ground that a B licence was appropriate; otherwise any person combining a haulage business with another business could evade the disabilities of a B licensee by incorporating a separate haulage co. On appeal:—Held: although Mr. Gleeson Robinson's views might be properly applicable to many cases, they did not apply in this case where appct. co. was the successor of an old-established transport business & had been incorporated in 1931, before the Road & Rail Traffic Act was contemplated.—Re BOYER (WILLIAM) & SONS (TRANSPORT), LTD. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 302.

1500. ——— For additional vehicles—When granted.]—(1) The principles on which A licences should be granted or refused during the first currency period are inter alia that the status quo should as far as possible be maintained. No increase in the number of vehicles licensed should be allowed except upon proof that such increase is really necessitated by the general expansion of industry in any particular business or district. Stabilisation of the industry should be the first aim of the licensing authorities.

(2) The mere fact that particular customers are willing to give further custom to the appct. is not by itself sufficient to justify the grant of an A licence for an increased number of vehicles.

Where an appct. seeks an A licence for an increased number of vehicles on the ground that particular customers propose to use those vehicles his proper course is to apply for contract licences under Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (c. 53), s. 7 (1).

(3) An undertaking by the appct. to observe certain conditions attached to the grant of an A licence cannot be accepted as an alternative to refusing the application because such an undertaking would not be enforceable.—RIDGEWELL & Co. v. SOUTHERN RY. CO. (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 6.

1501. —— —— ——.]—Held: by the Appeal Tribunal, the enlargement of a carrier's licence cannot be justified by general evidence of an increase in his business & general evidence that that increased business cannot be done by other carriers.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. v. BRIGGS (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 252.

1502. —— —— ——.]—(1) Where an appct. hired vehicles in the past as part of a general policy, & not in a casual manner, he has no right to a licence to enable him to dispense with hiring in the future, apart from special circumstances such as those mentioned in L. M. S. and Barr.

(2) A general increase in a carrier's business is a good ground for authorising him to use a larger number of vehicles; & the fact that the increase is largely attributable to the custom of one particular firm is not in the circumstances a ground for limiting him to a contract licence under sect. 7 (1).—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. 1503. —— —— ——.]—HAWKER, LTD. v. GREAT WESTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. No. 1530, post.

1504. —— —— ——.]—(1) On an application to vary a carrier's licence by the inclusion of an additional vehicle it is not sufficient for appct. to prove an increase in his business since the original grant of his licence, & there is no distinction between the cases where the application is opposed by a railway co., where it is opposed by a rival road carrier, & where it is not opposed at all.

(2) Where the decision of the licensing authority appears to have been based on erroneous grounds a resp. is nevertheless entitled to support the decision on other grounds.—ALLATT v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 82.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. London & North Eastern & London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Co. v. Beazley (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 112.

1505. —— —— ——.]—(1) An application in part for claimed, & in part for discretionary, tonnage should be so published, & not as an application for discretionary tonnage only. Where an appct. carries partly in one traffic area & partly in another general evidence as to his operations throughout the country will not suffice to support an application for a licence for vehicles intended to be normally based in a particular traffic area.

(2) A licensing comr. should act judicially, & should not allow his mind to be influenced by mere complaints unsupported by evidence.

(3) Where the previous conduct of an appct. is brought in issue by allegations of criminal offences it is the duty of those making the allegations to furnish appct. with particulars of the offences he is alleged to have committed if he requires them. If the fact that a criminal offence has been committed comes in question even collaterally, it must be strictly proved.

(4) A licensing comr. who is required to give his reasons for a decision under sect. 6 (3) of Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (c. 53), it bound to give all his reasons. He cannos reserve to himself a right to give additional reasons later.

(5) Previous offences committed by an appct. as a carrier against sect. 19 of Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1930, & the charging of uneconomic rates as a carrier do not constitute "previous conduct of appct. as a carrier of goods" within sect. 6 (2) (b) of Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933, & a licensing comr. is not entitled in law to take such matters into consideration when exercising his discretion under that sect. But if an objection to the application is made under sect. 11 (2) of the Act, on the ground that suitable transport facilities are or, if the application were granted, would be in excess of requirements, such matters are relevant to such objection & should be taken into consideration.

(6) A road carrier who maintains long-distance trunk services, & seeks authority for additional vehicles to be used for the collection & delivery of his traffic, may justify his application by showing that such collection & delivery can be better co-ordinated with his trunk services & can be performed more efficiently with vehicles owned by him & under his control than by employing others to do the work.—BOUTS-TILLOTSON, LTD. v. DONALDSON WRIGHT, LTD. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 106.

Annotation:—As to (6) Refd. Watts v. London & North Eastern & London, Midland & Scottish Ry. Cos. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 187.

1506. —— —— ——.]—On an application to vary an A licence by including an additional vehicle appct. established a case for his tonnage being increased, & his application was granted. On appeal by the objectors to the Appeal Tribunal:—Held: a case for an additional vehicle could not be established merely by making a case for additional tonnage, &, though the latter case had been made out, the Tribunal were not competent to deal with the appeal on that basis.—SOUTHERN RY. CO. v. BARNES (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 137.

1507. —— —— ——.]—(1) There is no right of appeal by an objector to an application for claimed tonnage where the comr.; being satisfied that the vehicle to be authorised is properly included in the claimed tonnage grants the application.

(2) Where a carrier who was established during the basic year seeks to augment the vehicles which he is authorised to use he must prove some general expansion in the business of his customers.—STUBBS (LEONARD) & CO., LTD. v. JACKSON & ELLIS (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 141.

1508. —— —— ——.]—(1) An increase in the business of a carrier is not the same thing as an increase in the business of his customers; & evidence of the former by itself does not justify an addition to the vehicles authorised by a carrier's licence.

(2) On an application for a variation of a licence a Comr. is entitled to take into consideration the conclusions he came to on the original application.

(3) General evidence that a carrier has had difficulty in finding other carriers to carry for him is not a special circumstance justifying the licensing of additional vehicles to enable the carrier to do his own carrying himself.

(4) A licence ought not to be granted to a carrier for services which the Comr. thinks are unnecessary.

(5) The decision of a Comr. on an application cannot create anything in the nature of an estoppel against appct.—FORRESTER v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 225.

1509. —— —— ——.]—An established carrier sought an enlargement of his licence on the ground that his fruit-carrying business had increased. The Comr. having refused the application on the ground that suitable transport facilities in the district were in excess of requirements:—Held: though the evidence in support of the Comr.'s finding was very slight, the appeal should not be allowed because the Tribunal were of opinion that appct.'s fruit-carrying business had not increased, & they refused to consider whether his business of carrying vegetables had increased.—COOPER v. SOUTHERN RY. CO. (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 55.

1510. —— —— ——.]—A haulier holding an A licence for two vehicles applied for it to be varied by the addition of a third vehicle. His gross receipts had increased & he had been compelled to hire:—Held: such an appct. must first establish a case as laid down in Ridgewell's Case. If such a case is established the formula in Hawker's Case must then be applied to determine how many (if any) additional vehicles should be authorised. Assuming that this appct. had established the first point, he failed on the second point, for he had not proved abnormal hiring, while the increase in gross receipts, computed on a basis of ten-months as laid down in Hawker's Case, was too small to justify the extra vehicle. The formula in Hawker's Case cannot be applied to certain cases. Alternative considerations discussed. Matters to be considered when assessing evidence of increase in gross receipts discussed. 1511. —— —— ——.]—An appct. claimed an additional vehicle under his A licence on three grounds: (1) that the vehicle was to be acquired from a trader, who was then operating it under a C licence, & that the trader would thenceforth employ the applicant to do his cartage; (2) that his business was increasing; (3) that he required a heavier vehicle for certain work:—Held: operation of a vehicle under a C licence was no evidence of need for its authorisation under an A licence, & since the trader could obtain another C licence there was danger of a dual grant in respect of his work. Ground (2) had not been established by the evidence; & the evidence for ground (3) did not justify an additional vehicle, though it might have justified the replacement of an existing vehicle by a heavier one. The fact that an extra vehicle would be placed on the roads is not a ground for refusing a licence where a case has been made out. "Contracting out" of the Act, referred to. Remission to licensing authority, refused.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. v. ROBERTS (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 154.

—— —— ——.]—(1) The fact that a trader desires to transfer his traffic from other carriers to appct. only because appct. is in a position to help him financially is not a matter to be taken into consideration on an application to increase the number of vehicles authorised under a licence.

(2) Evidence of increase in gross receipts is not so useful as evidence of increase in tonnage of goods carried, nor so useful as evidence of increase in gross receipts & increase in tonnage of goods carried.—REECE, LTD. v. FOUR AMALGAMATED RY. COS. (1935), 23 Ry. Can. & Tr. Cas. 199.

—— —— ——.]—(1) The fact that manufacturers adopt a practice of waiting for orders before manufacturing their goods in place of manufacturing the goods first & warehousing them in anticipation of orders, if proved, is material to the question whether there is a need for additional vehicles.

General evidence that an appct. has had difficulty in hiring will not by itself justify the grant of a licence for an additional vehicle.

The evidence of a commercial clerk assistant goods manager to a ry. co. that the ry. formerly carried traffic which it has since lost, & that, so far as he knows, the ry. facilities meet the requirements of traders, does not prove that the ry. facilities are suitable with regard either to that traffic or to the persons requiring facilities for it.

General evidence of an increase in a carrier's business without evidence that the business of his customers has also increased will not justify the grant of a licence for an additional vehicle.

Evidence that one carrier has without good cause abstracted the traffic of another may be a ground for refusing a licence, but the mere fact of absence of any such evidence is not a ground for granting a licence.

1517. —— —— ——.]—(1) Objectors having submitted that if they proved suitable transport facilities to exist in the district where an appct. proposes to carry, then the application must fail:—Held: if such facilities are in excess of requirements, or would be if the licence were granted, then, generally speaking, a licence should not be granted. But there may be exceptional cases (though the Appeal Tribunal failed to visualise them) where a grant would be justified. In this context, "suitable" means more than "adequate" & "requirements" does not refer solely to the requirements of appct. & objector; both words must be considered in relation to current industrial & commercial conditions.

A haulier operating nine vehicles under A licence on a trunk service & one vehicle for collection & delivery, applied for an extra vehicle for the trunk service. The objectors contended that suitable facilities were in excess of requirements:—Held: the two questions, whether appct. has made out a case within Ridgewell's Case, & whether the objectors have proved their objection, have both to be considered. On the facts, this appct. had made out a case, & the objectors had not shown that their facilities were "suitable."

Methods of ascertaining quantum of extra tonnage discussed. When considering quantum on a trunk service, the tonnage of a collection & delivery vehicle should not be taken into consideration. Extra vehicle of 2½ tons authorised.

1519. —— —— ——.]—H. applied for the variation of his A licence by the authorisation of additional vehicles. At the inquiry in Feb. 1935 certain of his customers gave evidence of increases in their business, in their industries, in the tonnage they desired H. to carry, etc. The variation was granted. Later H. applied for another variation to authorise further additional vehicles. At the inquiry in Apr. 1936 the customers who had given evidence in 1935 were not called, but general evidence was given by H.'s accountant that there had been an increase in tonnage due partly to increased business done for these customers:—Held: additional vehicles should not be granted solely on the ground that tonnage had increased, since increased tonnage for old customers might be due not to increases in customers' businesses but to their transferring to appct. work hitherto done by other carriers. However, it is unnecessary for customers to be called to give the same evidence which they have given fourteen months previously, provided that some evidence is given to confirm appct.'s general statements. Helpful evidence would be (i) evidence of inquiries by appct. as to the cause of increases in the business of these customers, or (ii) letters from these customers containing statements as to increases in their business & as to their suffering inconvenience from appct. being unable to supply transport. Such letters would be open to challenge by objectors.

H. operated a trunk service & ancillary collection & delivery services. He based his application as to the trunk service upon increased traffic due partly to increased work for old customers, as stated above, & partly to obtaining substantial business from a new customer whose goods had hitherto been carried by rail. H. delivered these goods more expeditiously than the railway, but no reason was given why speedier delivery was necessary:—Held: it would not be in the public interest to grant H. a licence to carry goods hitherto carried by another carrier, provided that the previous carrier's facilities were suitable. The fact that the latter were slower did not render them unsuitable in the absence of evidence that more expeditious delivery was reasonably necessary to the trader. H. was not entitled to additional vehicles for his trunk service.

As to his collection & delivery service H. gave evidence that owing to reorganisation of the working of his fleet he needed further vehicles for this work, that he had been hiring these at a cost of £500 per annum, & had had difficulty in hiring suitable vehicles:—Held: special considerations apply to collection & delivery vehicles; it was reasonable for H. to use his own vehicles for this purpose; the amount paid for hire represented the work of two vehicles, & he should be authorised to use these on his A licence.

The "Hawker formula" discussed obiter. When once an appct. for a variation has established a case within Ridgewell's Case, this formula is a useful guide to determine the quantum, if any, of additional tonnage to be authorised.—HAWKER, LTD. v. GREAT WESTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. 1520. —— —— ——.]—Additional tonnage will not be authorised upon the ground that appcts. had sometimes to keep customers waiting for transport. It is inevitable that on some occasions carriers cannot meet the demands of their customers at short notice. Nor is the hiring of horse-drawn vehicles a ground, in the absence of evidence that appcts. intend to use motor vehicles in substitution for horse-drawn vehicles.

"Carrying capacity" discussed. "Static carrying capacity" distinguished from "performance capacity."—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. COS. v. RICHARDS, LTD. (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 114.

1521. —— —— ——.]—(1) An appct. for additional tonnage performed 80 per cent. of his work for customers who refused access to their premises to motor-drivers who were not members of a trade union. For this reason appct. found it difficult to hire vehicles for this work:—Held: customers' requirements as to trade union membership were not a special circumstance entitling the appct. to additional tonnage in the absence of evidence of need.

(2) Where 80 per cent. of a haulier's work is done for three particular customers, this cannot be said to be a case in which a Contract A licence should be applied for.—PAYNE v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH, LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & GREAT WESTERN RY. COS. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 269.

1522. —— —— ——.]—S. & Co. applied for the authorisation of additional vehicles under A licence upon the grounds that (1) they had obtained substantial new traffic from U.; (2) certain fruit traffic had increased; (3) there had been a substantial general increase in their tonnage carried; (4) they had proved a case within Ridgewell's Case; (5) they needed additional maintenance tonnage.

(1) U.'s traffic had previously been consigned by rail; S. & Co. agreed to carry this at a rate cheaper than that by rail, & to furnish warehouse accommodation. The railway cos. objected to the application on the ground that their facilities were suitable:—Held: in considering whether objectors' facilities were suitable a licensing authority ought to take into consideration neither the fact that road rates were cheaper (unless they were uneconomic), nor the fact that warehouse accommodation would be provided; that on the facts the railway cos. had proved their objections; & that no additional tonnage should be granted for carrying U.'s traffic; (2) Held: on the facts as to the fruit traffic the objectors had proved their objections.

(3), (4) Held: since S. & Co. had proved (a) that there had been an increase in their business, (b) that there had been an increase in the business of their customers, (c) that some of their customers had been inconvenienced by their inability to provide transport facilities, they had made out a case for additional tonnage within Ridgewell's Case. As to quantum, the formula in Hawker's Case (No. 1) applied; but when applying this formula (i) the increased goods tonnage carried in respect of U.'s traffic & the fruit traffic must be disregarded, & (ii) the tonnage of maintenance vehicles must be deducted from fleet tonnage in order to arrive at "effective" vehicle tonnage.

(5) By applying the "Hawker formula" it was ascertained that two additional vehicles of 8 tons each should be authorised:—Held: this was a substantial addition to S. & Co.'s fleet & they should be authorised to use further tonnage for maintenance purposes.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. But where the traffic is undirectional the effect may be to produce uneconomic competition.—SHEPHERD v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 173.

(2) Where on an appeal by an objector against the grant of a licence it appeared to the Appeal Tribunal doubtful whether appcts. base or centre was in the traffic area of the Comr. who granted the licence, the appeal was formally allowed, & the case was sent back to the Comr. for a further hearing with the suggestion that a short-term licence should be issued to resp. pending the final disposal of the matter.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. 1547. —— —— ——.]—Held: (1) an established haulier who applies for a new A licence in continuation of his expiring licence should satisfy the licensing authority (a) that during the currency of his expiring licence the authorised vehicles have been regularly & fully employed; (b) as to his gross receipts & tonnage; (c) that there has been no material change in the circumstances relating to his business. If the licensing authority is satisfied as to these matters he should grant the application unless there are overriding circumstances to the contrary. This applies not only to trunk services but also to other facilities, although special considerations may arise in connection with collection & delivery services; (2) where an A licensee has on a prior application stated that he intended to provide facilities within certain districts or between certain places, & where it appears upon his application for a new licence in continuation of his existing licence that he has been providing, & intends to provide, facilities within other districts or between other places, then his application should be refused in the absence of evidence of need; (3) if during the currency period of an expiring A or B licence there has been a substantial break in the continuity of the licensee's haulage business, the licensee should not necessarily be treated as a newcomer when he applies for a new licence in continuation. But if the evidence proves the former business to have been abandoned, the new licence should not be granted in the absence of evidence of need. Aliter if the break was due to illness or fluctuation of business.—MODERN HAULAGE SERVICES, LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. 1548. —— To whom granted—Liquidator.]—A haulage co. holding two A licences went into liquidation. The liquidator applied for A licences in respect of the vehicles specified in the co.'s licence. Mr. Henderson granted the application, but only in respect of such vehicles as were in use at the date of liquidation & he expressed the licences to expire on the dates on which the co.'s licences would have expired:—Held: this was a proper course. There is no reason why a liquidator should not be granted a licence. Under sect. 3 (2) of the Act licences may be granted for less than the full currency period for "special reasons," & the appointment of a liquidator was a special reason. Insolvency does not by itself show that goods had been carried at uneconomic rates. The objectors had not proved that facilities would be in excess of requirements: their facilities differed materially from those of the co.

1549. —— Hiring allowance—When justified.]—A haulier applied for a new A licence in continuation of her existing A licence & in respect of the same tonnage, viz.: four vehicles in possession & one vehicle to be hired. During a fourteen weeks period the hiring allowance had been utilised three times when a vehicle was under repair & three times for work which could not be undertaken by the other four vehicles. The application was granted, & the objectors appealed against that part of the decision which authorised the hiring allowance:—Held: this was a case of the type in which the need for an additional vehicle should be dealt with by an application for temporary replacement under article 15 of the Goods Vehicles (Licences & Prohibitions) Regulations, 1936.

Urgent applications under this article are dealt with very rapidly by licensing authorities.—SOUTHERN RY. CO. v. WILKINSON (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 245.

1550. —— To what vehicles applicable.]—(1) Two railway cos. applied for the variation of a number of their A licences in respect of different bases by the addition of further vehicles. The majority of the applications were for vehicles to be used for the collection & delivery of rail-borne traffic; in some instances the ground of the application was that such traffic had increased, & in others it was that the vehicles were to be used in substitution for horse-drawn vehicles. The applications were granted. The objectors (applts.) contended, inter alia), that such vehicles should have been authorised under B licence:—Held: it was proper in such a case to authorise collection & delivery vehicles under A licence, & not under B licence subject to conditions restrictive as to radius, since it was necessary for the efficient working of a large transport organisation that vehicles could in an emergency be used from a base other than their normal base. If the right to unrestricted user under A licence were abused, the licensing authority could refuse a subsequent application.

(2) The ratio in which motor vehicles should be authorised in substitution for horse-drawn collection & delivery vehicles cannot be fixed & depends entirely upon the facts of each case.

(3) By reason of sects. 11 (2) & 15 of the Act objectors who are B licensees have no right of appeal against a decision to grant an A licence. Sanderson's Case explained & followed.—WATTS v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 187.

1551. "B" licence—When granted.]—A trader who carries his own goods long distances to deliver to his customers, & on the return journey carries goods for his customers for reward, competes with carriers who only carry for reward, & it is not desirable in the interests of transport that he should do so.—COX v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 161.

1552. —— ——.]—Held: (1) a B licence should not be granted to an appct. who failed to prove a need for further transport facilities in his district; (2) the principles laid down in Enston's Case do not apply to all applications for B licences any more than they apply to all applications for A licences.—THORNLEY & SON v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 249.

1553. —— ——.]—(1) A manufacturing co. using a fleet of vehicles to deliver their products made a practice of carrying goods for hire or reward on return journeys. They applied for a B licence to enable them to continue to do so:—Held: the carrying of return loads for hire or reward is not generally in the public interest provided that alternative transport is available. On such an application, therefore, a licensing authority has to consider whether a case for exceptional treatment is made out, & whether alternative transport is available. Letters from customers asserting a preference for road over rail transport do not assist such a case, & the existence of alternative road transport may be inferred from them. Here no case for exceptional treatment was shown, & the existence of alternative transport for the return loads was proved: the application was rightly dismissed.

Obiter, on an application for a B licence it may be material for the licensing authority to consider whether alternative transport is available for the carriage of appct.'s own goods.

(2) The licensing authority, in reaching his decision, had made use of knowledge of transport conditions acquired generally in the course of his duties:—Held: he was entitled so to do, but if during a public inquiry a licensing authority contemplates using knowledge of specific matters he should give the parties an opportunity of dealing with them.—BARRATT & CO., LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH, LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & GREAT WESTERN RY. 1554. —— ——.]—Held: the whole of the provisions of sect. 7 (3), apply only to applications for licences for the first currency period. On applications for licences for the second or subsequent currency periods the discretion to grant or refuse the licence is that given by sect. 6 of the Act.

An appct. proved that there was a need for his car to be used on a private estate where no licence was required to use a car for carriage of goods for hire or reward, & that there was a possibility that there might be a need for the car to be used on public roads where a licence would be required:—Held: no case for a licence had been made out.

1555. —— ——.]—(1) A haulier applied for the renewal of his B licence permitting him (inter alia) to carry strawboards for a certain co. A ry. co. objector gave general evidence as to ry. facilities & argued that these facilities were suitable & that therefore the application should have been dismissed :—Held : in this case whether or not the ry. facilities were suitable depended upon whether or not the strawboards had frequently to be carried for urgent delivery. The evidence as to this was unsatisfactory ; case remitted for further inquiry.

The fact that objectors have in the past carried large quantities of certain goods does not prove that their facilities are suitable ; it is a factor to be taken into consideration, but is not conclusive.

It had been stated as one ground for granting the application the fact that conveyance of strawboards by rail would involve a 50 per cent. increase in transport charges ; he described the rail charge as " on the high side " :—Held : this finding was not justified by the evidence ; the rail rate had been authorised by the lty. Rates Tribunal & was not on the high side.

(2) Evidence tendered by objectors should be as particularised as that given by appcts.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. INGLEBY (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 294.

1556. —— ——.]—A coal merchant who hawked coal from his motor vehicle during the winter months applied for a B licence :—Held : a coal merchant who is unable to discharge the ordinary burden of proof should nevertheless be granted a B licence if : (a) his business is genuine ; (b) he requires the vehicle for carrying goods in connection with his own business & these goods cannot satisfactorily be carried otherwise ; (c) taking the year as a whole the vehicle cannot be economically operated unless used during the off season for hire or reward ; & provided a special condition be attached preventing him carrying for hire save during the off season & preventing wasteful competition.

This principle only applies to genuine coal merchants' businesses, & it does not necessarily apply to other seasonal businesses.—SOUTHERN RY. CO. v. LAMBERT (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 24.

1557. —— ——.]—Furniture dealers applied for a B licence to enable them to carry out removals. They did business on the " easy payment " system, & proposed to apply this system to removals :—Held : they must raise a primâ facie case within the terms of Enston's Case ; their proposed method of collecting charges was not a matter which the licensing authority should take into consideration.—BRADSHAWS STORES, LTD. v. WALKER & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas.

1558. —— ——.]—A wholesale fruit merchant used motor vehicles to convey fruit from London to Nottingham & Ilkeston. He applied for a B licence to enable him to continue his practice of carrying for hire or reward on the return journeys to London :—Held : he was not entitled to a licence if there were already in existence suitable transport facilities for the conveyance of (a) his goods, & (b) those of his customers.

The evidence showed that railway facilities were suitable for the conveyance of appct.'s goods to Nottingham but not to Ilkeston. The Tribunal refused to assume in the absence of evidence that suitable facilities to Ilkeston were provided by A licence-holders. There was also insufficient evidence as to facilities available for conveyance of the customers' goods ; case therefore remitted to the licensing authority for further inquiry.

Barratt's Case followed ; decision of Mr. Gleeson Robinson therein approved, save that the Tribunal doubted whether a licensing authority was entitled to take into consideration the fact that a B licensee would obtain an advantage over his competitors not similarly licensed.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. v. SMALLEY (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 118.

1559. —— ——.]—Sect. 6 (2) (c) of the Act requires the licensing authority to have regard to the extent to which the vehicles to be authorised will be in substitution for horse-drawn vehicles previously used by the appct. for the purposes of his business as a carrier.

Resp. co-operative society applied for a B licence for one vehicle to enable them to effect furniture removals for their members. They had hitherto done this work locally by their own horse-drawn vans, for which they had hired horses from S. Mr. Nicholson granted the application subject to a radius of twenty-five miles. On appeal it was said that S. had now himself obtained a licence on the ground of substitution of motor for horse-drawn vehicles, & that if this decision were supported there would have been a dual grant :—Held : where a van belonging to one person had been drawn by a horse belonging to another, the fact that the owner of the horse has already successfully invoked sect. 6 (2) (c) does not preclude the owner of the van from relying on it as well.

Grant upheld, subject to a reduction of radius to fifteen miles.—REED & SONS v. BRISTOL CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, LTD. (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 241.

1560. —— ——.]—The owner of a furniture depository & a furniture removal business had been authorised under B licence to carry furniture & household effects within a 100-mile radius. He applied for a new licence in continuation of his expiring licence & asked that the restrictive radius be removed :—Held : (1) in the absence of evidence to the contrary it must be assumed that removals beyond the 100-mile radius had been satisfactorily effected by other carriers & therefore that the lifting of the restriction would create an excess of suitable facilities ; but (2) it is reasonable that the owner of a depository who is also a furniture remover should be permitted to carry without radius restriction furniture & household effects stored in his depository.—BROWN v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. (1937) 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 265.

-.]—(1) It is not by itself a ground for refusing a B licence that appct.'s own goods could be quite satisfactorily carried by existing transport & that there is no other valid & sufficient reason why he should carry them himself. But where there already exist suitable transport facilities for the carriage of the goods which appct. proposes to carry for reward the licence must be refused.

(2) In the absence of any explanation from the traders concerned it is not right to draw the inference that rail transport is unsuitable from the fact that many consignees order their goods forward by road.

(3) Where there is a finding that there are no A licensees in a certain area who are not fully employed, & this finding is based on knowledge acquired in the exercise of the duties of a licensing authority, the Appeal Tribunal have no alternative but to accept it.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. v. SMALLEY (1937), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 348.

1562. —— Additional vehicles—When granted.]—Wharfingers applied for a variation of their B licence by the addition of five vehicles that they might themselves do work hitherto done for them by sub-contractors. They complained of an increasing difficulty in hiring vehicles from such sub-contractors :—Held : by Mr. Gleeson Robinson, in the case of applications by wharfingers, forwarding agents & clearing houses who had hitherto done all or part of their haulage work by sub-contractors, & in the absence of special circumstances, a licensing authority should safeguard the transport industry generally by refusing to authorise vehicles for the purpose of doing such work as was hitherto done by sub-contractors. He refused the application. On appeal, the Appeal Tribunal were disposed to agree, obiter, with Mr. Gleeson Robinson as far as concerned forwarding agents, clearing houses, & some wharfingers. In the case of these appcts., however, they found special circumstances to exist, & held appcts.' road facilities were to be regarded as collection & delivery services ancillary to trunk routes by sea, & since an increasing difficulty in hiring had been proved, the extra vehicles should be authorised.—Re LOVELL (SHAW) & SONS, LTD. (2) In granting such a licence the licensing authority may, if he thinks fit, under sect. 8 (3) (a), attach to the licence a condition that it shall be used only in a specified district or between specified places; or he may grant the licence without imposing any restriction.

Hauliers with bases twelve & fifteen miles respectively from the newcomer's base objected, & appealed :—Held : on the evidence, the newcomer had made out a primâ facie case, but that it had been pro tanto rebutted by the two objectors, so far as their bases were concerned; condition amended to prevent the newcomer carrying for persons other than those residing within four miles of his base. 1572. —— Return loads.]—Traders had carried return loads within radii of sixty-five, forty & twenty miles under B licence, claimed tonnage. They now applied for a fresh B licence subject to the same conditions in continuation of the first licence. Objectors gave evidence of their facilities:—Held: by Mr. Farndale, in cases where appcts. had been carrying return loads since at least the commencement of the basic year, they should be permitted to continue so to do unless objectors proved beyond doubt that alternative transport facilities were commercially suitable as well as physically sufficient.

In the absence of evidence by objectors that they could deliver goods in the district in question early the morning next after dispatch, & that such delivery met the needs of consignees, Mr. Farndale found, & the Appeal Tribunal agreed, that objectors had not proved their facilities to be commercially suitable.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. MITCHELL & BROADBENT (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 78.

1573. —— Radius.]—Appcts. applied for a B licence in substitution for their existing B licence under which they were permitted to carry for hire or reward within a 70-mile radius. They had been carrying daily return loads from points 35 to 65 miles from their base:—Held: since the return loads were not carried for "long distances" & since they formed a regular service, the decision in Barratt's Case did not apply.

Sir William Hart granted the application subject to new radii of 15 & 35 miles. He considered these to be radii within which a B licensee might reasonably be expected to operate:—Held: by the Appeal Tribunal, in fixing a radius regard should be had to the evidence of past work & future need; Sir William's decision must be reversed.—SUTCLIFFE (EDWARD), LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 213.

1574. "C" licence—Condition prohibiting carriage for reward—Vehicle owned by mutual benefit societies.]—An incorporated society, whose members consisted exclusively of persons employed at a colliery, had as its object the business of delivering to its members coal supplied to them from the colliery by the colliery co. For the purposes of its business the society owned a motor goods vehicle in respect of which it held "a C licence" under the above sub-sect. The society used the vehicle for making a delivery of coal at the house of one of its members, the charge for the delivery being deducted from the wage of the member payable by the colliery co. & subsequently paid by that co. to the society. On an information against the society for having failed to comply with the condition, to which the licence was subject under the above sub-sect., by using the vehicle for the carriage of goods for hire or reward:—Held: as the society was incorporated, it was a legal entity separate & distinct from its individual members; & consequently in using the vehicle for the carriage of coal to one of the members at a charge, it used the vehicle for "the carriage of goods for hire or reward" within the Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (c. 53), s. 2 (4), & was guilty of the offence with which it was charged.

In another case in which the material circumstances were in all respects similar to those above mentioned, except that the society which carried on the business & owned the vehicle & against which the information was laid, was an unincorporated society:—Held: as the society was unincorporated, it had no separate existence apart from its individual members who were themselves the owners of the vehicle & the recipients of the payments made for the use of it; & consequently when the vehicle was used for the carriage of coal to the member it was not used for "the carriage of goods for hire or reward" within the sub-sect., & the society was not guilty of the offence charged against it.—WURZEL v. HOUGHTON MAIN HOME DELIVERY SERVICE, LTD., WURZEL v. ATKINSON, [1937] 1 K. 1574a. —— Breach of condition.]—Resps., as holders of a private "C" carrier's licence, were charged with having failed to comply with a condition attached to the licence, namely, that "the holder of this licence is entitled to use the authorised vehicles for the carriage of goods for or in connection with any trade or business carried on by him, but no vehicle which is for the time being an authorised vehicle shall be used for the carriage of goods for hire or reward," contrary to Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 9 (1). The vehicles in question were used for the removal & disposal of the whole of the surplus excavations from the site of a new railway station, for the sum of 1*s.* 10*d.* per cubic yard of excavation, & it was alleged that the consideration paid, or some part of it, was paid for the carriage of the rubbish. The justices dismissed the charge, holding that the property in the rubbish passed to the respondents the moment it was loaded on to the vehicle, & that it could not be said that a person had carried his own goods for hire or reward:—Held: (1) a large part of the payment recovered by resps was paid for the carriage of the rubbish from the premises of the railway, & the offence charged was proved; (2) this was not a case of "delivery or collection by a person of goods sold, used or let on hire or hire purchase in the course of a trade or business carried on by him" within sect. 1 (5) (a) of the Act of 1933.—SPITTLE v. THAMES GRIT & AGGREGATES, LTD., [1937] 4 All E. 1579. —— Application before licence granted.]—A carrier applied for a licence. Before his application could be heard he applied for a variation of the licence which he hoped would be granted. On hearing of the original application Mr. Chamberlain refused to entertain the application for the variation because it had not been published, & he granted the original application in part only. On the application for a variation coming before Sir William Hart he refused to authorise additional vehicles because the evidence in support of the application for a variation was the same as the evidence on the original application, but he did authorise heavier vehicles. On the matter coming before the Appeal Tribunal they approved of what had been done both by Mr. Chamberlain & by Sir William Hart.—BARLOW v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. 1580. —— Purchase of haulier's business—Application of 1933 Act, s. 11.]—A haulier using ten vehicles under an A licence contracted to purchase the business of another haulier, operating five vehicles under an A licence. The first haulier applied to vary his licence by the inclusion of the additional five vehicles :—Held : the case did not fall within sect. 11 (3) (b) of the Act. Para. (b) of subsect. (3) applies only to applications for licences, & not to applications for variations of licences.

A haulier purchasing another haulier's business & applying to vary his own A licence by the inclusion of the purchased vehicles must prove (1) that the vendor had a business as a public carrier ; (2) that the vendor's customers are ready & willing to give their work to the purchaser ; (3) that this work should be done under an A licence ; (4) that to do this work it is reasonably necessary for the purchaser to use the vendor's vehicles in addition to his own vehicles. 1581. —— —— ——.]—A haulier contracted to purchase the business of another haulier, including two vehicles. The vendor at that time owned no vehicles. The purchaser applied for an A licence for two vehicles to be acquired. After the application but before the public inquiry the vendor bought the two vehicles, obtained A licences for them, & transferred them to the purchaser :—Held : sect. 11 (3) (b) did not apply ; therefore the licensing authority was under a duty to hear an objector & the objector had a right of appeal under sect. 15 (1) (b). For sect. 11 (3) (b) to apply the vendor's licence must be in existence at the date of the purchaser's application.

For three months prior to the contract the vendor had owned no vehicles, & evidence as to hiring was vague. The licensing authority did not investigate the vendor's books & records, but granted the application : —Held : the principles of Boston Haulage Co., Ltd. & Sanderson, must be applied. The question whether the vendor had any business to dispose of, or whether the purchase was a device intended to prevent a public inquiry, had been insufficiently investigated. Application referred back to the licensing authority for the holding of a further public inquiry.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. v. BUTLER & MARSHALL (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 144.

1583. —— What may be considered.]—FORRESTER v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., No. 1508, ante.

1584. —— Additional vehicles—When granted.]—Appcts. for B licences or variations who rely on an increase in gross receipts should present figures showing separately the gross receipts earned in carrying goods for hire or reward.

A ballast merchant & road haulier held a B licence for twenty-five vehicles for the first currency period. At its expiry he obtained a second licence for nineteen vehicles, the other six being at that time unfit for use. He now applied for the addition of six vehicles to his licence. He gave evidence of an increase in the gross receipts of his business & of an increase in hiring :—Held : on the facts, it was impossible to tell what portion of the gross receipts related to carrying for hire or reward & what related to the ballast business ; & the hiring figures could not properly be assessed since they must have been affected by the fact that six vehicles were at one time laid up although authorised.

Per Mr. Gleeson Robinson: A false statement made by appct.'s assistant manager to objectors, with a view to having objections withdrawn, is "previous conduct of appct. in the capacity of a carrier of goods," within sect. 6 (2) (b) of the Act.—DRINKWATER v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN, LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & GREAT WESTERN RY. 1589. —— —— ——.]—A co. applied for an A licence in continuation of an existing licence issued to a carrier whose business they had acquired. Mr. Nicholson gave notice of the application in Applications & Decisions, held a public inquiry, & heard objectors. On the evidence he held that the co. had not shown a need that justified their application, & he dismissed it:—Held: on appeal, although sect. 11 (3) (b) of the Act applied to the application, the licensing authority had power to notify it. He had power to hold a public inquiry, both under sect. 11 (5) & under the principles laid down in Board of Education v. Rice, [1907] A. C. 179, & Local Government Board v. Arlidge, [1915] A. C. 120. He had power to hear objectors, not as statutory objectors, but as persons making representations to assist him. In deciding such an application he was bound to have regard to all the matters set out in sect. 6 (2) of the Act. In this case the evidence justified the finding: appeal dismissed.

It is incorrect to refer to such an application as one "made under sect. 11 (3) (b) of the Act" or as one for "transfer of licence."—EX-ARMY TRANSPORT, LTD. v. DIAMOND & CO., LTD. (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 303.

Although under sect. 11 (2) of the Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933, a statutory objector may object to the grant of a licence on the ground that any of the conditions of a licence held by appct. have not been complied with, it can only be in rare cases that an objector has knowledge whether or not breaches of conditions have taken place, & in the great majority of cases this knowledge will be that of the licensing authority only acquired by him in the course of his administrative duties under the Act. Consequently any such non-compliance may be properly considered by the licensing authority ex proprio motu suo. In such a case the licensing authority is not bound to hear direct evidence of non-compliance with the conditions. Where it is intended to take such matters into consideration it is better that written notice should be given to appct., but if sufficient oral notice has been given the fact that there was no written notice will not be a ground of appeal.—MOORE v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. 1593. —— Material time.]—A licensing authority dismissed an application for an A licence in substitution for an expiring licence upon the ground, inter alia, that appct.'s previous conduct in the capacity of a carrier of goods was such as to disentitle him to a licence. This previous conduct comprised the transaction under which appct. had obtained the vehicles with which he began business as a road haulier. On appeal:—Held: since at the time of the transaction in question appct. had not yet begun to be a carrier of goods, the conduct was not such as fell to be considered by a licensing authority under sect. 6 (2) (b) of the Act. Appeal allowed.

1596. Newcomer—Who is.]—(1) An appct. is a newcomer to the carrying business notwithstanding he was a partner in a firm of carriers before the basic year.

(2) Where a newcomer applies for a carrier's licence the burden of proof is on him to meet the objection under sect. 11 (2) of Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (c. 53), that, if the application is granted, transport facilities will be in excess of requirements; & he must discharge that burden even if there are no objectors.—TICKLE v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH, GREAT WESTERN, & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. COS. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 88.

1597. —— ——.]—(1) Held: (1) by the Appeal Tribunal, an appct. who had been a partner in a firm of carriers from 1918 till May, 1933, & thereafter a carrier on his own account, was a newcomer to the carrier's business for the purpose of an application for a licence which he proposed to use for a carrying business of an entirely different character; (2) the evidence of the managing director of a co. of haulage contractors that there was a shortage of goods vehicles in the district proposed to be served by appct. did not make a primâ facie case that the work proposed to be done by the appct. could not for some reason or reasons be done by other existing carriers.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. COS. v. WILLIAMS (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 159.

1598. —— ——.]—On an application for an A licence for a vehicle to be normally used in R. & 100 miles around an objection was lodged on the ground that transport facilities were in excess of requirements. It was admitted on behalf of the objectors that if appct. would restrict himself within the limits of a B licence the objection could not possibly be sustained. Nevertheless the objection was allowed:—Held: by the Appeal Tribunal, an appct. who had been a carrier & haulage contractor except for the period from 1929 to 1933, when he went out of business for family reasons, was a newcomer to the carrying business.—CROMPTON v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. 1600. —— ——.]—An appct. for an A licence had been a carrier during the basic year. He had also had a coal business which, as the Comr. found, was always a very small part of his general business:—Held: in these circumstances appct. was a newcomer to the carrying business, because it appeared from his books that over the whole period of the basic year his vehicle was not used mainly for carriage for reward; the burden of proof was on appct. to establish that no other carrier could do the work which he proposed to continue to do; &, that burden not having been discharged, the licence should have been refused, notwithstanding there was no evidence to show that transport facilities in the district were in excess of requirements.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. v. HAGAN (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 31.

1601. —— ——.]—(1) Sect. 5 (3) requires that, in the case of A & B licences, a separate application must be made in respect of each permanent base or centre from which the vehicles will be normally used, but permits the Comr. to grant a single licence in respect of such applications. A single application having been made for a B licence for two vehicles "for goods to be conveyed within a twenty-five miles radius of Ayr & Kilmarnock, from Bus Station, Ayr, & Bus Station, Kilmarnock":—Held: by Mr. Henderson, since Ayr & Kilmarnock are only ten miles apart one application was sufficient, but two licences ought to be granted. On the matter coming to the notice of the Appeal Tribunal they gave no decision on this point because no objection was taken to the form of the application.

(2) On an application for a B licence to carry parcels an objection that suitable transport facilities in the district intended to be served were already in excess of requirements was disallowed by Mr. Henderson because it was not supported by evidence:—Held: by the Appeal Tribunal, a co. which has been engaged in carrying parcels & passengers for many years is a newcomer to the carrying business & ought not to be granted a licence except upon proof of a primâ facie case that no other carrier could carry the parcels.—FERGUSON v. WESTERN S. M. T. CO., LTD. (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 72.

1602. —— ——.]—(1) A haulier who had operated during the basic year applied for an A licence. He claimed to have an equitable right to a licence because his delay had been due to inadvertence & ignorance:—Held: at this late stage an appct. claiming to have operated during the basic year must produce conclusive & fully corroborated evidence. Appct. must be treated as a newcomer.

(2) Evidence of work done by vehicles operating illegally is probably not receivable in support of an application—obiter.—BARKER v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 161.

-.]—(1) A limited co. had two separate departments, one carrying on the business of building contractor, & the other carrying on that of haulage contractor. During the basic year the haulage department carried 21 per cent. of their tonnage for the building department, & the balance for outside customers. The co. applied for an A licence (partly claimed tonnage). This application was adjourned, & in the interval a new limited co. was formed which took over the haulage business of the older or parent co. The new co. applied for an A licence:—Held: in these special circumstances the new co. was to be regarded not as a newcomer & subject to the requirements of Enston's Case, but as successor to the haulage department of the parent co., & should be granted an A licence for such vehicles as were engaged during the basic year in carrying for customers other than the building depart-

In the meanwhile he had maintained a business as carrier by means of hiring & sub-contracting:—Held: the applicant was a newcomer, & as such had to fulfil the requirements laid down in Enston's Case. On the evidence he had done so.

1606. —— ——.]—An operator under B licence ceased to carry on any business other than that of haulier. During the currency of his first B licence he applied for an A licence :—Held : the grant of the B licence exhausted his rights to claimed tonnage : there is no continuing right. 1608. —— ——.]—Held : (1) the burden of proving an objection under sect. 11 (2) does not lie on the objector, but the burden of disproving the objection lies on appct. ; (2) the fact that a carrier has been compelled to hire vehicles to carry his customers' goods is no evidence that either his business or theirs has increased ; (3) in determining the number of vehicles to be authorised for a seasonal business of a carrier in a small way, the comr. should not have regard to the need for providing for occasions when vehicles are withdrawn from service for overhaul or repair, as appears to be required by sect. 6 (2) (d) of Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. (2) The absence of evidence as to alternative facilities is not a ground for granting an application.—GREAT WESTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. v. BUTLER (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 301.

1615. —— Of goods & receipts during illegal user.]—(1) Hauliers operating a service from their Devon base to London applied for authorisation of two extra vehicles. These vehicles had been operated illegally without licence for four & five months respectively. Their case was based upon an increase in the business both of their Devon customers & of a London co. for whom they carried on return journeys :—Held : evidence of customers obtained, of goods carried, & of receipts earned during a period of illegal running must be ignored ; (2) if the holder of an A licence applies for the authorisation of extra vehicles to be normally used for carrying from a particular base, he must first prove a need for these vehicles to carry goods outward from that base. If he proves that need, evidence as to return loads may be helpful, though not, strictly speaking, necessary. If he does not prove that need, evidence as to return loads will not support his application. In this case appcts. had not been able to prove sufficient increase in business outward from their base ; evidence as to return loads did not therefore need to be considered.—MOSS BROS. v. SOUTHERN RY. 1619. —— Rights of objectors.]—An appct. for additional tonnage put in letters from his customers. The texts of these were read at the public inquiry but the names of the writers were not read or disclosed to the objectors. Appct. could not give evidence as to his tonnage at the inquiry, but subsequently submitted a written statement of tonnage to Mr. Chamberlain, who then granted the application :—Held : (1) where a party relies on the contents of documents, the opposing parties are entitled to see those documents ; (2) objectors should have been given the opportunity of commenting upon the statement of tonnage. The proceedings were unsatisfactory : appeal allowed.

If important information is promised to a licensing authority, he should adjourn the public inquiry for its reception at a later hearing.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH & LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. COS. v. (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 37.

1620. —— Of refusal of traffic—Necessity for strict proof.]—An allegation that an objector has refused traffic should be strictly proved.

Hauliers applied for an extension of the radius prescribed in their B licence. They were employed as sub-contractors by C., a road haulier, to carry bricks for the M. Co. C. gave evidence of the M. Co.'s need, & stated that railway co. objectors were not meeting that need, as a result of which the M. Co. had had to acquire vehicles of their own under C. licence :—Held : on the facts, that need had not been proved. The relations between the M. Co. & the objectors should have been proved by some official of the M. Co. & not by C.'s evidence, which was hearsay.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. BOTTERILL & SONS (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 72.

1622. —— Wrongful possession during basic year.]—(1) Wrongful possession of a vehicle during the basic year cannot confer a right to claimed tonnage. But where such a vehicle was handed over in part payment for another vehicle under a hire-purchase agreement, possession of the second vehicle during the basic year could confer the right to claimed tonnage.

(2) A licensing authority granted an application for an A licence in respect of two vehicles, claimed tonnage, but doubted whether the appct. was the owner of the vehicles :—Held : the objector had a right to appeal.—SOUTHERN COUNTIES ROAD TRANSPORT CO., LTD. v. HAZELL (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 312.

1623. Motor vehicle substituted for horse-drawn—What amounts to.]—Held : (1) where a carrier sold a barge which was towed by a horse, & bought a motor car, this was a case of a motor vehicle being substituted for a horse-drawn vehicle within sect. 6 (2) (e).

(2) Objectors who had called no evidence in support of their objection were permitted to appeal to the Appeal Tribunal under the provisions of sect. 15 (1) (b) on the grounds that the evidence given by appct. in support of his application was untrue, that the objectors had not been in a position to refute such evidence, & that appct. had made no primâ facie case that the work he proposed to do could not be done by other carriers. The Appeal Tribunal, being satisfied that the evidence of appct. had been untrue, allowed the appeal.—LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. v. ABRAM (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 153.

(2) Mr. Henderson published the application, held a public inquiry, & heard objectors : —Held : the licensing authority was justified in taking these steps in order to ascertain whether sect. 11 (3) (b) applied. He was entitled to hear any representations made to him on that subject. "Statutory objectors" distinguished from other persons entitled to make representations.—LESLIE v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. (1936), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 182.

1629. Agreement to permit operation of vehicles in name of licensee—Validity.]—Pltf. who was entitled by virtue of sect. 7 (2) to obtain as of right A licences in respect of goods vehicles up to a certain tonnage, did not wish to use those vehicles himself. He entered into an agreement with defts., whereby, in consideration of a money payment by defts., defts. were to be entitled to operate the vehicles in pltf.'s name, under pltf.'s licences, which could not, by sect. 21 of the Act, be transferred or assigned by him to defts. The present action was brought by pltf. to recover the sum payable under the agreement :—Held : although the agreement did not purport to transfer or assign pltf.'s licences, it could not be carried into effect without the commission by defts. of a criminal offence under sect. 1, since defts. would be using vehicles in respect of which they had no licence. Nor could pltf., who had licences, but was not the person using the vehicles within sect. 1, comply with the requirements of sect. 16 by keeping, or causing to be kept, the records therein mentioned. If an objector does not follow that form his objection is invalid.

Objectors who were road hauliers gave no particulars of their transport facilities in the notices of objection, nor did they state what licences they held:—Held: the notices of objection were invalid, consequently the licensing authority was not bound to take them into consideration & the objectors had no right of appeal.

SECT. 2.—APPEALS.

1639. When appeal lies—Appeal from agreed condition.]—(1) The Appeal Tribunal will not entertain an appeal from a condition to which the applt. himself has agreed.

Consequently, that time having elapsed, an amendment of the notice of appeal will not be allowed.—Re EDWARDS' APPEAL (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 1.

1640. —— Effect of right to apply to licensing authority for variation.]—(1) An applt. who did not realise the importance of proving his case before the comr. was allowed to call new evidence on appeal.

(2) The fact that an appct. who is dissatisfied with the conditions attached to his licence may be entitled to apply to the licensing authority to vary the conditions does not affect his right of appeal to the Appeal Tribunal.—Re TAYLOR'S APPEAL (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 32.

1641. —— Application for variation of licence—What amounts to.]—An application to a licensing authority for a dispensation from the requirements of sect. 16 & regulations made thereunder is not an application for a variation of a licence within sect. 15 (1) (a), & the Appeal Tribunal have no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from the refusal of a licensing authority to grant such a dispensation.—Re COLES' APPEAL (1934), 22 Ry. & Can. 1650. Right of audience—Officer of association—Meaning of "association."]—The Appeal Tribunal certified an assocn. to be "an assocn. representing a substantial number of persons interested in or likely to be affected by the decisions of the Tribunal," & accordingly granted right of audience to an officer of the assocn. under Road & Rail Traffic Act, 1933

(Appeal Tribunal) Rules, 1934, r. 11 (2) (a). It was subsequently ascertained that the name of the assocn. had been registered under Registration of Business Names Act, 1916 (c. 58), as the business name of the secretary of the assocn.; that the assocn. had no banking account separate from the private banking account of the secretary; & that although by the rules of the assocn. its government was vested in an executive committee of whom a president was to be a member, no president had in fact been elected. The assocn. had 182 members:—Held: the assocn. was not an assocn. in the ordinary meaning of the word. The body of persons whom the secretary represented was not an assocn. or body of persons within rule 11 (2) (a).—Re SUSSEX CARRIERS' ASSOCN. (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 64.

1659. —— —— ——.]—Mr. Chamberlain allowed an objection that traffic facilities in the district were in excess of requirements upon proof that the objector had four cars of which only one was in use because there was no work for the other three. On appeal, the Appeal Tribunal admitted new evidence to show that these three cars were out of use because they were mechanically unfit, but refused to admit new evidence to show that since the decision of the Comr. the traffic needs of the district had been increased by the reopening of certain quarries & the decision of the county council to proceed with a large scheme of road reconstruction. The matter was referred back to the Comr. for further inquiry.—JONES v. ROBERTS & OWEN (1935), 24 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 205.

1661. —— —— Reference back for re-hearing.]—Applt. applied for & was refused a B licence to carry milk within fifty miles of Nantwich. On appeal to the Appeal Tribunal he endeavoured to show that he was entitled to a B licence to carry milk from places within ten miles of Wrenbury to Manchester & other goods back from Manchester to those places. The Appeal Tribunal referred the case back to the licensing authority for re-hearing.—HARDEN v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. (1935), 23 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 71.

1662. —— —— Evidence of applicant.]—An appct. carrying on a hardware & scrap business applied for a B licence to enable him to carry return loads from Leeds to Glasgow for hire or reward. At the inquiry his solr. stated that the return loads were provided by appct.'s own customers, but appct. himself stated in cross-examination that he obtained these loads from clearing-houses. Mr. Henderson accepted the solr.'s statement & granted the application. In these circumstances the Appeal Tribunal called appct. to give evidence before them. It then appeared that the return loads were carried only for one or other of two clearing-houses:—Held: the case was governed by the decision in Barratt's Case, & since no exceptional circumstances existed the application must be refused. Appeal allowed.—LONDON & NORTH EASTERN & LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. COS. v. SHEVILLE (1936), 25 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 45.

1670. ——.]—(1) Held: on an application by resps. to strike out applts.' grounds of appeal, on an appeal by an objector, (1) the Appeal Tribunal has jurisdiction to review a licensing authority's findings of fact; (2) an applt. may raise any point relevant to the issues as to whether suitable transport facilities exist or are in excess of requirements; (3) an applt. may argue that a licensing authority wrongly exercised his discretion because it had been established before him that suitable transport facilities existed or were in excess of requirements. In this case the grounds of appeal sufficiently indicated a case which applts. were entitled to make; (4) it is doubtful whether the Appeal Tribunal has power to strike out a ground of appeal.

(5) A haulage co. operating twenty-four vehicles under an A licence, claimed tonnage, applied for the authorisation of extra vehicles:—Held: having regard to the size of the fleet, one extra vehicle should be authorised for maintenance purposes. As to other extra vehicles, the evidence was insufficient. The failure of a pooling scheme is not evidence of need for additional vehicles. —FOUR AMALGAMATED RY. COS. v. FOSTER & CO., LTD. The German Govt. had notified its willingness to accept the legacy if it should be held to be valid; General Smuts had also expressed his willingness to accept the alternative trust should it become effective. Upon a summons asking the ct. to determine whether the devise & bequest to the German Govt. was void for uncertainty or otherwise: wise:—Held: (1) the gift did not fail for uncertainty; (2) there was no objection to the gift from the point of view of public policy; (3) the trustee being abroad, the ct. had no power to direct a scheme, & in such cases the practice was to hand over the fund to be applied according to the trusts of the will.

No loan was to exceed £100, repayable within nine years at longest. No interest was to be charged & no borrower to have more than one loan. Only one-sixth part of the fund

(All parties agreed that the latter was a good charitable gift):—Held: as the gift to "the Wounded & Disabled Soldiers of New Zealand" was not to individuals but to a section of the public, it was a charitable gift; &, although it was a gift direct, the absence of anything directly constituting a trust was immaterial as the ct. could constitute the trust; the gifts to "a home for Wounded Sailors of the British Empire" disclosed a general intention in favour of charity, & did not fail because the object of such gift might be uncertain.—Re SIMMONDS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. STONE, [1933] N. was to be lent in any one year, & the borrowers were to be inhabitants or residents of F. not above the age of thirty-five years. Testator directed that " all surplus money forming part of or arising from the ' Loans Fund ' over & above £500 & not required for loans shall be invested by the trustees under the direction of the committee, but all investments purchased shall be from time to time sold for the purpose of advancing the produce thereof in loans if & when required " :—Held : (1) the will displayed a general charitable intention & contained an immediate & effective gift of the whole of the residue to charity, displacing the claim of the next of kin ; (2) the question of accumulation beyond the period allowed by law did not arise, the possibility of a surplus hereafter not impairing the validity of the immediate gift to charity ; (3) the doctrine of cy-près could be at once applied, if necessary, to any surplus income after the period allowed by law for accumulation had expired. — Re MONK, GIFFEN v. WEDD, [1927] 2 Ch. 197 ; 96 L. 47a. Nursing home—Persons of moderate means—Gift charitable.]—Testator made the following gift in his will : " I give & bequeath all the residue & remainder of my estate not otherwise disposed of by this my will to : (a) such institution, society or nursing home, or nursing homes, or similar institutions as assist or provide for persons of moderate means such as clerks, governesses & others who may not be able or eligible to benefit under the National Health Insurance Act, Old Age Pensions, or other Act of a like character to have either surgical operations performed together with medical treatment or medical treatment alone on payment of some moderate contribution ; (b) the Royal National Lifeboat Institution ; (c) the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine ; (d) & such other funds, charities & institutions as the exors. in their absolute discretion shall think fit ; & I direct that such residue shall by divided amongst the legatees named in the paragraphs (a), (b), (c), & (d) lastly hereinbefore contained in such shares & proportions as my trustees shall determine." It was admitted that the objects under (b) & (c) were charitable. On the question whether the residue was validly disposed of by the will or failed in whole or in part for uncertainty :—Held : (1) the objects included under paragraph (a) were charitable since the means of the recipients would necessitate their being unable without the bounty of testator to procure the treatment of which they might stand in need ; (2) the objects specified under heading (d) being for such indefinite charitable & non-charitable objects as the exors. should think fit were not exclusively charitable, & therefore though a trust for charitable & non-charitable indefinite purposes indiscriminately failed by reason of uncertainty, this trust being of a part of a fund for charitable purposes & another part for non-charitable indefinite purposes the ct. could ascertain what the parts were.—Re CLARKE, BRACEY v. ROYAL NATIONAL LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION, [1923] 2 Ch. 407 ; 92 L. The Sisters of the Community were engaged on charitable work & their individual incomes were pooled. It was doubtful whether it was practicable to carry on the Home of Rest with the resources available :—Held : (1) the devise & bequest were a good charitable trust ; (2) the Sisters & the Clergy were good objects of a charity ; (3) the Mother Superior should only appoint persons who were suitable objects of a charity, & to do otherwise would be a breach of trust ; (4) there should be an inquiry in Chambers whether it would be practicable now or at any future time to establish the Home of Rest, & if so to settle a scheme ; (5) & if it was found not practicable the question must be determined whether the trust failed or should be applied cy-près.—Re JAMES, GRENFELL v. HAMILTON, [1932] 2 Ch. 25 ; 101 L. 47d. —— For means of physical & mental recuperation—Valid.]—Testator devised & bequeathed to his trustees a freehold house, its contents, & funds representing the net residue of his estate upon trust to establish & found a charity " to provide a Home of Rest that shall afford the means of physical &/or mental recuperation to persons in need of rest by reason of the stress & strain caused or partly caused by the conditions in which they ordinarily live &/or work." The same clause provided that the trustees should apply to the ct. or the Charity Comrs. for a scheme in respect of the charity & also specified testator's further wishes with regard to the charity, but provided that if the ct., the Charity Comrs., or the trustees considered those wishes in any respects impracticable or difficult to realise, in those respects they were not to be regarded as binding on or fettering the discretion of the ct. the Charity Comrs., or the trustees in the provision or alteration of a scheme. One of those wishes, expressed also in the same clause, was that in considering the suitability of a candidate for admission to the home the candidate's financial position should not be taken into account; another was that persons admitted might be required to pay according to their means for board, lodging & other benefits &, where reasonably possible, for medical attendance & treatment, for which, however, the funds of the home might be drawn upon at the trustees' discretion:—Held: these were valid charitable trusts.—Re CHAPLIN, NEAME v. A.-G., [1933] Ch. 115; 102 L. 68a. Advancement of Christian principles.]—H. died on July 12, 1922, having made his will on May 24, 1921, in which he directed that the residue of his estate, about £13,000, should be paid to certain persons to be held by them upon certain trusts as follows: "Whereas I believe in the universality of the Christian religion & that the remedy for the unrest & disorders of the body politic will be found in the application of Christian principles to all human relationships. & whereas I believe the drink traffic to be one of the most subtle & effective forces in preventing the successful application of these principles & I therefore hope & trust that active steps will be taken to minimise & ultimately extinguish this enemy of my country's welfare. Now therefore I declare it to be my wish that my general beneficiaries shall hold the whole of my residuary trust estate together with the income thereof in spreading the Christian principles before mentioned & in aiding all active steps to minimise & extinguish the drink traffic." The public trustee issued a summons to have it determined whether that gift in the will constituted a valid charitable trust or whether the gift so far as given for the minimising of the drink traffic was not charitable & therefore the whole gift was invalid & the next of kin became entitled. The judge held that the gift was a good charitable gift. On appeal by the next of kin:—Held: the first recital in the gift was the dominant clause showing that the main object was the advancement of Christian principles with a suggestion as to a particular method by which the advancement could be furthered & that method was subsidiary & ancillary, therefore the whole gift was a good charitable gift, being one for the advancement of Christian principles.

70a. Zoology—Zoological Society of London—Valid.]—The objects of the Zoological Society of London as defined by its Charter are "the advancement of zoology & animal physiology & the introduction of new & curious subjects of the animal kingdom":—Held: the first object was clearly educational & the second object, being on construction merely in aid of the first, was also educational &, semble, it was educational in itself. The Society was therefore an educational charity, although in carrying out its objects it was found necessary to provide its pupils with food & amusement. The second object necessitated & involved the upkeep & improvement of Zoological Gardens. Consequently a bequest of money to the Society upon trust to apply the income for "the upkeep & improvement of the Zoological Gardens, & for the objects of the said Society," was a good charitable gift & not void for perpetuity.—Re LOPES, BENCE, JONES v. ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON-[1931] 2 Ch. 130; 100 L. 73a. —— Trust to erect national theatre—& revive English classical drama—Valid.]—(1) The Shakespeare Memorial Trust was established to erect & endow a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre, with the object of performing Shakespeare's plays, reviving English classical drama, & stimulating the art of acting:—Held: the trust was a good charitable trust, on the ground either that the objects were for the advancement of education or that they came within the class of purposes beneficial to the community other than by way of the relief of poverty or the advancement of education or religion referred to by LORD MACNAGHTEN in Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. C. 531.

(2) At the time when a donation of £70,000 was made to the charity, part of which was applied by the charity in the purchase of a site for the theatre, no annual subscription had been received, but within only nine days of that time the first annual subscription was received. On the subsequent sale of the site, the question arose whether, in those circumstances, the consent of the Charity Comrs. was required to the sale by the charity:—Held: notwithstanding that in the inception of its formation it was contemplated that the charity should be supported by annual subscriptions as well as by income from endowment, & notwithstanding that there was an interval of nine days only between the donation & the first of the annual subscriptions, the charity was not at the time when the donation was received a mixed charity within 1853 Act, s. 62; & as it was, therefore, not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs., their consent to the sale by the charity was required.—Re SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL TRUST, LYTTON (EARL) v. A.-G., [1923] 2 Ch. 389; 92 L. He then directed that the income should be paid to the Bishops of the dioceses of St. D. & B., the rector of L. & the vicars of two other parishes & their successors, together with a layman appointed by the conference of each of those dioceses, whom he nominated administrative trustees. After stating that his wife left her interest in certain property to him to be used as he wished, but for preference for Church purposes, testator, in expressed accordance with her wish, by clause 3, devised all he should die possessed of as a fund for assisting the education of candidates for Holy Orders in the Church of England, to be administered by the trustees. Clause 12 contained the following proviso: "If for any sufficient reason, whether disendowment may or may not have taken place, the trustees decide that the interests of the Church could be better served by any changes in the method of administering, or even in the object to which the fund is applied under my will, such change or changes may be made with the several consents expressed by a majority of the Diocesan Conferences of B. & St. D.":—Held: the objects to which the trustees were, by clause 12, empowered to change the application of the fund were not other than charitable objects & were religious objects in the interests of the Church as an organisation existing for the instruction & edification of the public, & the gift in clause 3 was a valid charitable gift.—Re WILLIAMS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. WILLIAMS, [1927] 2 Ch. 283; 96 L. Testatrix by her will dated Sept. 7, 1903, gave the residue of all her property, after the death of G., to whom she had given a life interest, in the following terms: "To the Superior of the Jesuit Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm Street, London, to the Superior of that Church at the moment of the legacy falling due, & failing him to any other representative Father of the Order of the Society of Jesus . . . 81a. Upkeep of chapel & school—Includes maintenance of services & Sunday school.]—A testator by his will, after giving certain specific legacies including one of £50 to the K. H. Baptist Chapel, directed that a trust be created with the remainder of his personal & real estate "for the payment from the income thereof of the following legacies, viz., £25 per annum to M. L., £100 per annum to J. L., & the balance of the income to be divided equally between my two sisters C. P. & M. H. . . . On the death of the last surviving legatee under the trust I direct that the income be devoted to the upkeep of the K. H. Baptist Chapel & school & for the provision of prizes for the scholars of both sexes." A summons was taken out to determine (i) whether the gift was a good & valid bequest of the whole of the residuary estate or whether it failed to any & what extent. The only school attached to the K. H. Baptist church was a Sunday school in connection with which book prizes were awarded. It was contended that such a school was not what testator had in mind, & that, even if it was, the upkeep of the chapel & school would not exhaust the income of the residuary estate the capital of which amounted to some £29,500, with the result that the balance of the income which was not used for that purpose must be held to be undisposed of by the will; (ii) how, in view of the fact that, at the date of the summons, the testator's two sisters, both of whom had survived the testator, had both died, the income of the testator's estate thereby set free should be disposed of until the death of the survivor of the other annuitants, M. L. & J. L.:—Held: (1) there was a good charitable bequest of the whole of the testator's residuary estate in favour of the K. H. Baptist Chapel & school & the word school included Sunday school; (2) the personal representatives of testator's two sisters were entitled to the surplus of the income, after providing for the annuities to M. L. & J. L., until the survivor of M. L. & J. L. had died; (3) "upkeep" of the chapel did not mean merely keeping the premises in repair, but included all the expenses necessarily incurred in providing the chapel services & maintaining, in a broad sense, the Sunday school.—Re STRICKLAND'S WILL TRUSTS, NATIONAL GUARANTEE & SURETYSHIP ASSOCN., LTD. v. MAIDMENT, [1936] 3 All E. 106 xi. —— ——.]—A bequest for the saying of masses for the repose of souls is not in this Province void as superstitious. A bequest of the residue of testator's estate (consisting of both realty & personalty) to a church, "to be invested & kept invested . . . for ever & the interest . . . to be applied & expended . . . for the saying of holy masses . . . for the repose of the soul of testator & his descendants for ever": —Held: ineffective as creating or tending to create a perpetuity, & not a charitable use. Semble: in any case the personalty alone would have been applicable to the trust declared.—Re ZEAGMAN (1916), 37 O. 106a. —— ——.]—A Roman Catholic testator by his will bequeathed "£1,000 for Masses, foundation & others" & also devoted four houses "for one foundation Mass to be said for my soul & the souls of my parents & relatives during the space of twenty-five years," & directed that the property should revert to a named church. Evidence was given that by a "foundation Mass" was intended a Mass the saying of which was to be paid for out of the interest of an invested fund, so that unless the gift was charitable it would be void for perpetuity:—Held: a gift for the saying of Masses is charitable as being for the advancement of religion (a) because it enables a ritual act to be performed which is the central act of the religion of a large proportion of Christian people, & (b) because it assists in the endowment of priests whose duty it is to perform the act.—Re CAUS, LINDEBOOM v. CAMILLE, [1934] Ch. 162; 103 L. Roman Catholic Church to be invested by them; the principal to remain invested for all time in the names of the successive parish priests & curates of C., the interest thereof to be applied in saying masses for the repose of testator's soul. After bequeathing a pecuniary legacy, testator gave the rest, residue & remainder of his property to the Abbot of M., & the Franciscan Friars in C. in equal shares for the purposes of having masses said for the repose of his soul in M. & C. At the dates of the execution of the will & of the death of testator the same person was Abbot of M. & the three Franciscan Friars were resident in C.:—Held: (1) the legacy of £200 was void as a charge upon lands under Charitable Donations & Bequests Act, 7 & 8 Vict. c. 97; (2) in reference to the gift of residue so far as it consisted of pure personalty, there was a gift of one-half to the person who filled the office of Abbot of M. at the date of testator's death in his individual capacity for the offering up of masses & same was valid; there was a gift of the other half for the offering of masses to a specified body, because they were members of the Order of Franciscan Friars bound by monastic vows, which was void as contrary to the policy of Catholic Relief Act, 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.—BURKE v. POWER, [1906] 1 I. 213b. Provision of public recreation for working-class people—Valid.]—Testator by his will dated Apr. 30, 1929, gave the residue of his estate to trustees upon trust to make certain payments thereout &, by clause 14 of his will, directed that they should hold the ultimate residue "to be expended in some scheme or schemes to be approved by my trustees for the benefit in the cities of Vancouver, & if in the opinion of my trustees there is some equally deserving object of the nature hereinafter indicated of Nottingham or other places of the working people such as playing fields parks gymnasiums or other plans which will give recreation to as many people as possible but as regards Vancouver I would not exclude some educational purpose being considered by my trustees." By a preceding clause, clause 13, testator had made a disposition of certain moneys, in certain events, in the following terms: "Upon trust for any scheme to be approved by my trustees of a national character excluding hospitals & works of an educational character. Without binding my trusiees I would prefer a scheme which would give open-air recreation to as large a number of ople as possible." Testator died on Feb. 14, 1931, leaving ultimate residue of the value of about £35,000:—Held: (1) upon the true construction of the will, the dominant object of testator was the health & welfare of the working classes, & the benefits authorised by clause 14 were the supply of healthy recreation, mainly in the open air & in particular by providing playing fields, parks & gymnasiums; & (2) through legislative recognition indicated by Mortmain & Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (c. 42), s. 6, of the dedication of land to the public for recreation as a charitable object, the provision of means for public recreation was a charitable object within "the meaning, purview & interpretation" of the preamble to the 43 Eliz. c. 4. Accordingly, the trusts expressed in clause 14 of the will were valid charitable trusts.—Re HADDEN, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. MORE, [1932] 1 Ch. 133; 146 L. T. 190; 48 T. L. R. 9; 75 Sol. 218 iv.—A direction in a will to the exors. to deposit a sum in a bank or invest it, " the yearly interest to be devoted to the care of my grave," creates, leaving statutory provisions out of consideration, a perpetual trust ; &, as the purpose is not charitable, is void ; but legislative sanction is given to this particular form of perpetual trust, by above sect. — Re JONES (1918), 42 O. 232 i. Erection of monument—To testator's memory—Not charitable use.]—A will provided that one-half of the residue of the estate be used by the exors. " towards the erection of a monument or some suitable memorial to me." Testator's husband died after the making of the will, & she caused to be erected between his grave & the space reserved for hers a monument to him on which was left a blank space apparently intended to be filled in with an inscription for herself after her death :—Held : the provision for the monument was not an enforceable trust nor a charitable bequest which could be worked out cy-près.—Re JEFFERSON ESTATE (Man.), [1930] 3 D. sk. Superannuation fund for employees.]—An incorporated trading co. had set aside certain moneys to be held by trustees with the object of providing individual personal benefits, allowances & provisions to persons who had been, were, or might become its employees. It was contemplated by the trust instrument that employees might make contributions to the fund available for these purposes. No period was fixed for the duration of the trusts, nor was any distinction drawn in the instrument between employees who were in needy or affluent circumstances. Voting power was given to members subject to the votes varying according to the amount of salary received. The deed also provided that the fund was not to be regarded as relieving members from the duty of making provision for those dependent on them : —Held : the trust was in favour of a fluctuating body of individuals & not an appreciably important class of the community, & the trust was not a valid charitable gift.—Re HARRIS SCARFE, LTD., [1935] S. (2) The general rule is clear that if you are making a will you must declare your wishes, & not leave it in wide & uncertain terms to some one else to make a will for you. Special treatment is meted out to a gift for charitable purposes, & in that case the cts. have recognised that it is open to a testator who declares a charitable purpose to leave it to his trustees to select the particular charities for whose benefit his fund is to be applied. 769b. Gift for maintenance & upkeep of masonic temple—Residue to masonic charities—Whole gift void.]—By a codicil to his will testator directed his exors., on the death of his wife, to pay from his estate to the trustees of a masonic temple, erected by him to the memory of his son, £10,000, to be invested & the interest applied by the trustees, in their full & sole discretion, to the maintenance & upkeep of the masonic temple, & the balance, if any, to be applied in favour of any masonic charities which the trustees might select. The masonic temple was to be used for masonic ceremonies, & smaller rooms for lodge meetings, business & meetings of a social but not political character. Upon a summons to ascertain whether the legacy was valid or not :—Held : (1) the decisions in the "tomb cases" were inapplicable; (2) the whole income of the fund being charged with a trust, at the discretion of the trustees, for a primary object which was invalid, the ct. was not entitled to control this discretion, & institute an inquiry at chambers as to the amount of income necessary to be applied for maintenance & upkeep of the temple, so that the gift of the balance would be valid; (3) as the primary gift was not sufficiently defined, the whole legacy was void for uncertainty.—Re PORTER, PORTER v. PORTER, [1925] Ch. 746; 95 L. 823a. —— Description not confined to charitable purposes — Description having particular meaning in religious denomination to which testator belonged.]—In construing gifts of recent date, evidence is not admissible to show that words having a clear ordinary meaning were used in a special narrower sense.

Testator, a member of the "Brethren," or "Plymouth Brethren," by his will left all his property, subject to a life interest, to his widow, to be divided into two equal parts, one for his sons, & the other for his trustees "to distribute between the various good works which I & my wife have been in the habit of assisting. . . ." After the widow's death this summons was taken out to determine whether that direction created a good charitable trust. Affidavits were tendered to the effect that among the "Brethren" "good works" was a phrase in common use to indicate works distinctly religious, i.e. Christian, & suggesting that testator had used it in that sense :—Held : there was no evidence of the significance with which the testator had used the words, & the statement as to their use among the "Brethren" was not evidence of constant use in such a sense as would exclude non-religious charitable objects.—Re How, How v. How, [1930] 1 Ch. 66; 99 L. After certain other directions the will continued, "I direct that any money left unexpended after the erection & completion of the said monument to be paid to the treasurer of the Children's Hospital, Camperdown . . ." :—Held : the special rule in the class of cases known as the "tomb cases" applied, &, therefore, the primary gifts for the erection of the monument & for the perpetual care of the ground having failed, the whole of the residuary fund was applicable to deft. charity.—POOLEY v. ROYAL ALEXANDRA HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN (1932), 32 S. sz. " Orphanages."]—After certain gifts testator directed that " the balance of my estate shall be equally divided : Salvation Army Rescue Home ; Home for Incurables, Fullerton ; South Australian Protestant Orphanages ; Minda Home." There was one institution in South Australia whose rules provided for the care of orphans of a particular denomination ; there were also other institutions whose rules enabled them to receive not only orphans but other children whose condition needed relief. All these institutions, including the first-named, as a practice received children other than orphans :—Held : whether an institution was or was not an orphanage was a question of fact, & both the rules & practice of the institution were to be considered. An orphanage is an institution where the main or primary purpose which it is actually fulfilling is to provide & care for orphaned children. The orphanages took one-fourth of the residue of the estate, to be divided equally between them.—Re DODSON, [1931] S. A. S. R. 387.—AUS.

As to the bequest to "the Trustees of the T. 912a. —— —— —— ——.]—Testatrix by her will dated Sept. 22, 1924, directed her exors. to sell the residue of her property & to pay the proceeds to the Margate Cottage Hospital. At the time she made her will there was a hospital of that name, an unincorporated body, to the funds of which testatrix was a subscriber. About the year 1926, a fund was opened for the purpose of purchasing a new site & building a larger hospital, to which testatrix was also a contributor. At the time of testatrix's death on Oct. 19, 1930, the work formerly carried on at the Margate Cottage Hospital, including the medical & nursing staff & the patients, had been transferred to & was carried on at the new hospital, called the " Margate & District General Hospital," which had been opened on July 3, 1930. The invested funds held by trustees for the Margate Cottage Hospital & the income thereof were dealt with by the same trustees for the purposes of the new hospital:—Held: the real intention of testatrix was to add the proceeds of sale of her residuary estate to the funds dedicated to the purposes of the Margate Cottage Hospital, &, accordingly, there was a valid charitable bequest of those moneys to which the next of kin of testatrix had no title.

980a. Charity for orphans of Established Church—Effect of Welsh Disestablishment—Children of Welsh clergy entitled.]—A charity formed in 1749 was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1809. Its object was to maintain & educate poor orphans of clergymen of the Church of England. Owing to the disestablishment of the Church in Wales doubts arose whether the corpn. had power to continue its work among the poor orphans of clergymen in Wales & Monmouthshire, & a summons was issued to obtain a decision of the ct. on the point:—Held: there was nothing in Welsh Church Act, 1914 (c. 91), or the Welsh Church (Temporalities) Act, 1919 (c. 65), that interfered with the power of the corpn. to maintain & educate poor orphans of clergymen in Wales & Monmouthshire.—Re CLERGY ORPHAN CORPN. 981d. Trust for Bishoprics in connection with Church of England—Bishopric at Cape Town.] —In 1841 certain resolutions were agreed to by the clergy & laity in this country at a meeting convened by the Archbishop of Canterbury to raise a fund for the endowment of Bishoprics in the Colonies, the fundamental object being to found & endow Bishoprics in connection with the Church of England. Among the Colonies selected was the Cape of Good Hope. In 1847 a large sum was given to the fund, & amongst the specific purposes mentioned for its application was the endowment of a Bishopric at Cape Town. In June, 1847, a Bishop's Diocese was created for the Cape of Good Hope by Letters Patent, & Cape Town was constituted a Bishop's See. The Bishop appointed was to be under the Metropolitical See of Canterbury. In 1849 part of the fund was invested on mtge. in the Colony & part laid out in the purchase of an estate in Cape Town for the use of the Bishop. In the year 1850, a representative Legislature was granted to Cape Colony, & in 1853 by fresh Letters Patent a separate See of Cape Town was created. In 1864, as the result of disputes concerning the effect of the Letters Patent of 1853, it was decided by the Privy Council in Re the Lord Bishop of Natal (1864), 3 Moo. P. C. (N. S.) 115, that as there was an independent legisative assembly in the Colony at the date when the Letters Patent of 1853 were granted, there was no power in the Crown by virtue of its prerogative to establish a Metropolitan See or Province whose status the Colony could be required to recognise. As a result in Feb. 1870, the Church of the Province of South Africa was constituted on a consensual basis. In 1882, following further disputes, the Privy Council decided in Merriman v. Williams (1882), 7 App. Cas. 484, that the Church of the Province of South Africa was not a Church in connection with the Church of England as by law established. Having regard to the fact that the present Archbishop of Cape Town was not a Bishop of the Church of England or of a Church in connection with the Church of England but was a Bishop of the Church of the Province of South Africa; & the doubt felt how the income of the fund should be dealt with, an originating summons was taken out by the present trustees of the fund raised in 1841 for the determination of the question how the income of the fund allocated to the endowment of a Bishopric at Cape Town should be applied, & whether the present Archbishop of Cape Town would be beneficially entitled to the income of the investments in this country held by the fund & set apart for the endowment of a Bishopric of Cape Town :—Held : (1) as it had been established that the present Archbishop of Cape Town was not a Bishop of the Church of England as by law established but a Bishop of the consensual Church of the Province of South Africa, which was, however, in communion with the Church of England, he was not a beneficiary of the funds in this country set apart for the endowment of the Bishopric of Cape Town. The question of a cy-près application of the fund thereupon arose; (2) therefore, as the fund in question & the trustees were in this country, & the trusts relating to it established here, the ct. had jurisdiction to order a scheme cy-près : & the proper order was first to declare that on the true construction of the resolutions, the original trusts which affected the property were for the endowment of a Bishopric of Cape Town in connection with the Church of England, & those trusts had become impracticable; & then to direct the trustees in this country to pay the income in question now in their hands to the Archbishop of Cape Town for the time being appointed & recognized by the Church of the Province of South Africa, but only so long as that Church remained, in the Archbishop of Canterbury's opinion, in communion with the Church of England.—Re COLONIAL BISHOPRICS FUND, 1841, [1935] Ch. 148; 104 L. 1041a. —— Condition subsidiary to main charitable object—Performance of condition likely to defeat main charitable object—Condition dispensed with.]—Testatrix, who died in 1889, bequeathed £1,500 towards an endowment for a proposed evangelical church at B., provided certain conditions were carried out. An action was commenced for the administration of her estate, & on the further consideration thereof on Nov. 3, 1891, it appeared that amongst other conditions, which mainly related to the conduct of the services, it was made an " abiding condition " that the black gown should be worn in the pulpit, unless there should be an alteration in the law rendering it illegal. It further appeared that in compliance with the conditions a church had been erected at B. & the other conditions laid down by testatrix fulfilled, except the condition as to wearing a black gown, which condition was held by the judge to be a continuing condition, but not an illegal one ; & accordingly, the fund was carried over to the credit of the action, the separate account of " the £1,500 endowment fund for the proposed B. church," with liberty for the incumbent & all persons interested to apply as to the capital or income thereof. This petition was presented by the present incumbent asking that under a scheme or otherwise the fund in ct. might be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. Evidence was adduced that the use of the black gown in the pulpit was practically unknown in the diocese of the new church, & that its use was calculated to alienate the congregation & to defeat the main objects of testatrix, namely, the teaching & practice of evangelical doctrine & services :—Held : the condition requiring the wearing of a black gown in the pulpit was subsidiary to the main charitable object, namely, the endowment of an evangelical church at B., & as the performance thereof had been shown to be impracticable the condition might be dispensed with & the fund be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as part of the endowment of the church so erected as aforesaid.—Re ROBINSON, WRIGHT v. TUGWELL, [1923] 2 Ch. 332 ; 92 L. Direction for accumulation—Discretion of trustees.]—The expression in a will of a wish that " the interest upon my investments may be allowed to accumulate . . ." followed by an indication of the charitable objects to which the accumulations are to be devoted does not bind the trustees of the will. But it is a directory provision ; & the trustees ought to bear it in mind & generally to use their discretion so as to give effect to it.

A will, after certain bequests, including a bequest of residue in trust for " the Trustees of the S.M. Charities," expressed a wish of testator that " the income upon my investments may be allowed to accumulate for a period of twenty-one years or so long as the law will allow," & then set out various charitable objects in the town of S. which testator desired should thereafter benefit by such income only :—Held : the wish as to accumulation was not binding, but was in the circumstances a directory provision to which regard should be had in settling a scheme.—Re KNAPP, SPRECKLEY v. A.-G., [1929] 1 Ch. 341 ; 98 L. 1395b. Non-existence of object—Reference to "treasurer."—By her will a testatrix gave her residuary personal estate to the Berwick-upon-Tweed Infirmary, the Newcastle-upon-Tyne Infirmary, the Newcastle-upon-Tyne Nursing Home, & Doctor Barnardo's Homes London, in equal shares; & she directed that the receipt of the treasurer for the time being of the aforesaid institutions should be a sufficient discharge to her executor for payment of the aforesaid legacies.

No institution having been found which correctly answered the description of the "Newcastle-upon-Tyne Nursing Home," & doubts having arisen as to how the gift of this one-quarter share of residue should be disposed of, an originating summons was taken out by the exor. of the will for the purpose of determining (inter alia) the question whether certain of defts. (being institutions which seemed most nearly to correspond to the particular institution referred to in the will), namely, the Northumberland County Nursing Assocn., the Newcastle Private Hospital & Nurses' Home (a private nurses' home whereof two of defts., A. M. F. & S. L. P., were proprietors), the Cathedral Nursing Society for the Sick Poor of Newcastle-upon-Tyne (of which another deft., F. C. C., was treasurer) or any other body, society or institution was entitled to the particular one-fourth share in the residuary personal estate of the testatrix in question, or whether such share devolved as upon an intestacy:—Held: (1) no society or body existed which satisfied the ct. that it was the society or body meant & intended by the description "The Newcastle-upon-Tyne Nursing Home," but (2) although the objects of a nursing home are not necessarily charitable, the fact that the testatrix was dealing with the residue of her estate in equal shares, the other three named residuary legatees were charities having kindred objects, & there was a direction in the will that the receipt of the treasurer for the time being of each institution was to be a sufficient discharge showed a general charitable intention in the will, there was sufficient context to prevent a lapse of the particular share in question & therefore no intestacy. A scheme for administering the one-quarter share cy-près could therefore be properly carried out.—Re KNOX, FLEMING v. CARMICHAEL, [1937] Ch. 109; [1936] 3 All E. R. 623; 106 Ch. 97; 156 L. si. ——— ———.]—A will directed that the residuary estate be invested by the exor. & trustee & the income thereof be paid to the Winnipeg Foundation to be used by it in the support & maintenance & for the purpose of the following charities "carrying on work for the sick & poor in the City of Winnipeg & the vicinity thereof & being the . . & the Home for Fallen Girls." No question arose with respect to any of the institutions named except the "Home for Fallen Girls." There was neither when the will was made nor at the testator's death any institution in Winnipeg or its vicinity of that name. But four institutions in Winnipeg did charitable work in caring for girls who came within the ordinary meaning of the term "fallen":—Held: testatrix appeared to have been thinking of the special & particular charitable work which in fact was being carried on by each of the various institutions named in the will, & that view negatived a suggestion that she intended to assist the church of which, on the evidence, she was an active member in meeting its contributions or liabilities to the joint work carried on by it (the Church of England) & the United Church of Canada in maintaining an institution known at the time of the making of the will as the Church Home for Girls but which had later changed its name. The cy-près doctrine should be applied & the gift in question should be held intended for the benefit of the charitable work for fallen girls carried on by four institutions.—Re GILROY ESTATE, [1936] 3 W. 2330a. ——.]—An information was filed in the year 1821 against the trustee of a grammar school founded in the reign of Edward VI., praying that a new scheme might be approved of for the management of the school. Pending these proceedings, the trustees, in the year 1838, themselves made new regulations for the school, to which the usher, who was appointed previously to the filing of the information, was ordered to conform. The usher refused to be bound by such new regulations, & was consequently dismissed, & now presented a petition under Charities Procedure Act, 1812 (c. 101), alleging that the trustees of the school had no power to alter the rules, & praying that he might be reinstated :—Held : the ct. had no power, except under an information, to decide whether the trustees had power to alter the regulations of the school. Petition dismissed, with costs.—A.-G. v. EAST RETFORD GRAMMAR SCHOOL (1848), 17 L. J. Ch. 450.

2346a. —— —— After decree.]—After a decree had been made, in a suit by information & bill, for the general administration of a charity, one of the objects of which was a free grammar school, the master of the school, who was not a party to the suit, presented a petition in it, with the sanction of the A.-G., stating that, in 1832, which was five years before the decree was made, defts., the trustees of the charity, unlawfully removed him from his office, & praying to be paid the arrears of his salary :—Held : (1) the petition could not be entertained, because it was presented by a person who was not a party to the suit, & involved an important question between the petitioner & the trustees, which was not raised at the hearing of the suit ; (2) the ct. would not have had jurisdiction to determine the question, if the petition had been presented under Charities Procedure Act, 1812 (c. 101), but that a new suit must be instituted.

(3) Where the rule laid down for the management of a charity is clear, & the only question is whether the parties have acted according to that rule or not, that is a question which may be determined on petition. But, where the question has reference to the original constitution of the charity, as, for instance, whether certain persons called governors or trustees, have a certain authority, that is a question touching the original constitution of the charity, which can be decided only on information (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—A.-G. v. BRISTOL CORPN., Ex p. GOODENOUGH (1845), 14 Sim. 648 ; 14 L. 21a. —— ——.]—In Feb. 1912, three parcels of goods were shipped in a British steamship from Baltimore for Hamburg. The ship sailed & was never heard of again. The goods were insured with M., who were German nationals carrying on business in New York. The assured claimed against M., & some time before Nov. 1918, were paid by M. for a total loss; whereupon the bills of lading were handed over to M. by the assured. Actions on the contract of carriage against the ship-owners were commenced in England for the benefit of M. & other insurers by the owners of the goods & damages were recovered, of which the sum of £4,538, being that portion which corresponded with M.'s share in the insurance, was claimed by deft. to be subject in his hands to the charge created by the Treaty of Peace Order, 1919. On Nov. 18, 1918, after the outbreak of war between the United States & Germany & after proceedings had been commenced in England, pltf., in pursuance of the American Trading with the Enemy Act, 1917, & executive Orders made thereunder, made a demand upon M., the effect of which was to vest in him as Alien Property Custodian all the property, rights, claims & assets of M. within the United States. In an action by pltf. claiming payment by deft. of the said sum of £4,538, so recovered by M. & in the hands of deft. as Administrator of German Property :—Held : (1) on the crucial date, Nov. 18, 1918, M. had by subrogation anequitable interest as against the owners of the goods in the right of action which those owners had for the loss of their goods to the extent that was necessary to recoup to M. the amount paid on the policies of insurance; (2) that right of action came within the general rule that choses in action must be taken to be situate in the country where they are properly enforceable; (3) notwithstanding the fact that the bills of lading & other documents relating to the claim against the shipowners were at the material time in the hands of pltf. in the United States as Alien Property Custodian, the situs of the right of action was in England, & therefore the sum recovered for M. therein passed to deft. & not to pltf.—SUTHERLAND v. GERMAN PROPERTY ADMINISTRATOR, [1934] 1 K. Resp. carried on business as a commission agent at Indore, also at Bombay, his head office being at Indore. S. had dealings with resp. through both offices, a separate account being kept at each. On Apr. 17, 1924, a sum of nearly two lakhs was owing by resp. to S. on the Bombay account; the Indore account was about even. On that date a notice was served on resp. by order of the Indore Govt. requiring him to pay to it the sum owing to S. on the Bombay account. The debt was accordingly transferred to the Indore account without the consent of S., & on May 15, 1924, was credited to the ruler of Indore. On May 16, 1924, applts.

27a. Assignment executed abroad—Of debt payable in England.]—C., being domiciled in Guatemala, deposited a sum of money with a bank in London. Subsequently he, being then in Guatemala, assigned in writing by way of gift the money so lying to his credit at the bank to N., who was also domiciled in Guatemala, & written notice of that assignment was given to the bank. It was not disputed that if the effect of that assignment had had to be decided by English law it would have been held good. By the law of Guatemala an assignment of money made without consideration is void, unless made by a document executed before a notary on stamped paper, & signed by both parties; & by the same law an infant cannot accept a voluntary assignment himself, it must be made to & accepted by a legal representative appointed by a judge on the infant's behalf. The assignment was on unstamped paper, was not executed before a notary, & was not signed by N. At the time of the assignment N. was an infant & no legal representative had been appointed. The money lying in the bank having been claimed both by the republic of Guatemala & by N. the bankers interpleaded. In an action to determine the issue between the two claimants:—Held: the validity of the assignment to N. must be determined by the law of Guatemala, & was therefore bad:

(Per BANKES, L.J.) upon the ground that, as the republic & N. were both domiciled & resident in Guatemala at the date of their respective assignments, & as the English depositary claimed no interest in the fund, the question which, if either, of the two claimants was entitled to it must be determined by the law of their domicil & residence, & not by that of this country;

(Per SCRUTTON & LAWRENCE, L.JJ.) upon the ground that the question of a person's capacity to take an assignment of personal property is to be governed either by the law of his domicil, or by that of the country where the assignment takes place, & that, as in this case the country of N.'s domicil & that of the assignment to him were the same, it was immaterial to inquire which, had they been different, ought to prevail; but from either point of view N. was incapable, by reason of his infancy, of receiving the donation;

(Per SCRUTTON, L.J.) on the further ground that by reason of non-compliance with the formalities relating to stamp, notary, etc., the assignment was, both by the law of the place where it was made, & by that of the domicil of the parties to it, not merely inadmissible in evidence but void;

(Per LAWRENCE, L.J.). As the contract of deposit was made in England, & the money was repayable in England where the bank was domiciled, & was recoverable in England, it was an English debt having a local situation in this country, & accordingly the validity of the assignment, as distinguished from that of a contract to assign, must be governed by the lex loci rei sitæ, & not by the law of the country where the assignor & assignee were domiciled, or where the assignment took place. Consequently if non-compliance with the required formalities had been the only objection he would have held the assignment good.—REPUBLICA DE GUATEMALA v. NUNEZ, [1927] 1 K. B. 669; 96 L. J. K. 27b. —— Exercise of power of appointment over sum in England.]—An assignment, executed in a foreign jurisdiction by a person there domiciled, of a chose in action locally situate (so far as a chose in action can be) in England, is void if the assignment is void on grounds of substance according to the local law.

A document executed abroad in exercise of powers of appointment conferred by settlements executed in accordance with English law, & expressed to be intended to operate both as an assignment & as a will, may take effect as a conveyance inter vivos of the property of the person executing it.

Upon the marriage of testatrix, who was born in Italy, to an Italian, two settlements of property belonging to her, hereinafter respectively called the "A" settlement & the "B" settlement, were executed. The "A" settlement comprised proceeds of sale of English freeholds conveyed to the settlement trustees on trust for sale, & investments & other moneys, the whole fund being settled on trust to pay to the husband during the joint lives of himself & testatrix, £500 a year, & subject thereto to pay the annual income to testatrix for life without power of anticipation, &, after her death, to raise £50,000, as she should by deed or will appoint & pay the sum so raised to such persons as she should appoint. The "B" settlement comprised certain freeholds & certain moneys which were settled on trust to pay the income to testatrix for life, & after her death as she should appoint. Both were English in language & form, & the trustees were resident in the United Kingdom. By a deed of Dec. 10, 1906, to which her husband & the trustees of the "A" settlement were parties, testatrix appointed that the residue of the £50,000, which she then had power to appoint under the "A" settlement should be charged upon & raised out of the property subject to that settlement, &, after her death, should be held in trust for her absolutely as her separate estate. By a deed of May 23, 1912, between herself, her husband, & the "B" settlement trustees, testatrix appointed that, after her death, &, until then, subject to her life interest, the property comprised in the "B" settlement should be held by the trustees upon trust to pay sums which she or her husband should become liable to pay to them under certain covenants of indemnity in the deed, &, subject thereto in served on resp. an order of the High Ct., made in a suit which they had brought against S., attaching before judgment the debt in question. Applts. ha[d] obtained later a decree in their [suit] against S. sued resp. claiming to enforce the attachment:—Held: as the contract between resp. & S. did not provide expressly or impliedly that payment [was] to be solely, or primarily, at Bombay, or make the debt enforceable only there, the situs of the debt was Indore; & it had been effectively seized by the Indore Govt. before attachment by applts. It was not for the ct. to inquire whether the Indore Govt. in seizing property situate in its own territory had acted within the law of that State.—CHATURBHUJ PIRAMAL v. CHUNILAL GOMKARMAL (1933), 60 L. trust for testatrix, her heirs, administrators & assigns. Testatrix & her husband lived in Italy, & she was domiciled there at the date of her death. On July 28, 1927, being then domiciled in Italy, she executed an "appointment & assignment," expressed to be supplemental to the "A" settlement, the "B" settlement, & the deed of Dec. 10, 1906, & expressed also to be intended to operate as an assignment inter vivos & as a will. By it, she appointed & assigned the property comprised in those documents, subject to certain subsisting trusts, to the trustees of the appointment & assignment whom she appointed exors. upon trust for the payment of certain debts & legacies, & she gave the final residue to one of the trustees absolutely. After the death of testatrix leaving no other testamentary disposition, the deed of appointment & assignment was admitted to probate in the United Kingdom:—Held: (1) the deed of appointment & assignment so far as it purported to assign movable property was subject to the law of the country in which it had been executed & in which the testatrix was domiciled, i.e. to Italian law, & that, being null & void in Italian law, it did not effectually assign the remainder of the £50,000, appointed by the deed of Dec. 10, 1906; (2) the appointees of the sum of £50,000, were not persons entitled to immovable property. Their right, which was to require the trustees to pay the amount, was a chose in action in the nature of a movable; (3) the deed of appointment & assignment, as it was expressed to be intended to operate as an assignment as well as a will, could take effect as a conveyance inter vivos of the immovable property of testatrix situate in England.—Re ANZIANI, HERBERT v. CHRISTOPHERSON, [1930] 1 Ch. 407; 99 L. 67a. Assignment of part of debt—Not operative to pass legal right to part assigned.]—A firm of C., V. & Co., being owners or pledgees of certain cotton goods, which had been transferred or pledged to them by one member of the firm, insured them for £8,000 upon an open policy of marine insurance. The goods were lost at sea. The firm incurred a liability of £7,000 to one W., & in settlement of his claim it was agreed that they should assign the policy to him & that he should pay them a certain sum unconditionally & a further sum of £1,000 if, but only if, the should receive that amount or more from the insurers. W. then in his own name brought an action against the insurers to recover the value of the insured goods:—Held: an assignment of part of a debt or legal chose in action is merely an equitable assignment & is not effectual to transfer the legal right to the debt or "thing in action" under Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136, & therefore pltf. suing in his own name could not recover; by SLESSER, L.J., also on the additional ground that no express notice had been given to the insurers after execution of the assignment; SCRUTTON, L.J., contra on this point, inclining to the view that, if there was an assignment valid in other respects, the pleadings gave sufficient notice of it pendente lite so as to bring the case within R. Afterwards certain payments were made by defts. to sub-contractors on M.'s direction, certain costs in the action were paid to solrs. & execution creditors of M. attached moneys in defts.' hands payable upon the contract, whereupon an interpleader issue was directed & tried :—Held : the order under which pltfs. claimed was not a legal assignment of an existing chose in action nor an assignment of the contract : it was nothing more than an equitable assignment of a fund not yet in existence.—INTERIOR TRUST CO. v. ESSEX BORDER UTILITIES COMMISSION (1928), 62 O. 204b. —— ——.]—Pltf., who had obtained judgment as first mtgee. against the proceeds of sale of a Latvian steamship, further claimed legal assignment to himself of the freight earned on the ship's last voyage. It was argued that by an agreement supplementary to the mtge. the mtgee. was given an equitable assignment, which by reason of notice to or knowledge possessed by the consignee or receiver of the cargo was converted into a legal assignment. The alleged notice consisted in the intervention by the mtgee. in an action by necessaries claimants who had arrested the ship, &/or in the terms of the mtgee.'s affidavit of interest filed in that action. The knowledge of the mtgee.'s claim was said to be proved by a letter written by the solrs. for the consignees or receivers of cargo. The material paragraphs of the supplementary agreement were as follows: "The mtgee. shall be at liberty so long as any moneys may be due under the said first mtge. & this agreement & he is hereby empowered in his own name or in the name of the shipowners . . . to demand, sue for, & receive & give receipt for all moneys due to the shipowners in connection with the said steamship & to institute such legal proceedings as he may think proper. . . ." "In relation to the matters dealt with herein, where they apply, the shipowners hereby appoint the mtgee. their attorney for them & in their name at any time during the currency of this security to collect, sue for, receive & give effective receipts for all freights . . . which may be or become due & owing to the shipowners. . . .":—Held : (1) by Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136, a legal assignment must be absolute & express notice thereof must be given to the debtor; the constructive notice upon which the mtgee. relied was not sufficient to comply with the statute & the claim to a legal assignment of the freight failed; but there was in the supplementary agreement clear evidence of an equitable assignment of the freight to the mtgee.; (2) in a case where the mtgor. was a shipowner through whose default in business the whole trouble had been occasioned, & against whom judgments had been recovered, in default of appearance, by (inter alios) the interveners, it was not a necessary condition that the mtgor. should be joined in the mtgee.'s action.—THE ZIGURDS (No. 2), [1932] P. 113; 101 L. 204c. —— ——.]—Pltfs., while acting as agents for a foreign steamship in an English port, were asked to make disbursements & incur expenses on behalf of the vessel. Before doing so they obtained the following document, addressed to the receivers of cargo, which was signed by the master with the approval & consent of the managing owner of the ship: "Please pay the freight for my vessel, the Z., & all demurrage which may be payable under the charter, to my agents, E. A. Casper, Edgar & Co., Ltd., & oblige." On June 15, 1931, on an ex parte motion, LANGTON, J., gave judgment for pltfs.' claim for necessaries, & pronounced for the validity of an assignment to them of the freight & demurrage. At the reference to assess the amount of the claim the registrar, however, reported that the document was no more than an order to pay the freight & demurrage to pltfs., who, he said, had under it nothing in the nature of a right in rem against the freight. He, therefore, disallowed several items on the ground that they were not necessaries. Interveners, who as necessaries men were interested in the fund represented by the freight, moved to set aside the judgment of June 15, 1931, on the ground that the document was merely an ordinary agent's authority to collect the freight, & that even if it amounted to an equitable assignment the action must fail because the assignor was not joined as a pltf.:—Held: on the evidence of pltfs., combined with the document itself, there was an equitable assignment of the freight & demurrage to pltfs.; where the ct. was satisfied that there was no danger of fraud or harsh treatment of the assignor it could dispense with the presence of the assignor as a joint pltf.; & pltfs. could maintain their action in rem.—THE ZIGURDS (No. 3), [1932] P. 113; 101 L. 204d. Amount recoverable by assignee limited.]—Deft. owed £285 to W., who owed money to pltf. bank, & W. assigned to the bank the debt owed to him by deft. The assignment, which was in writing, provided that "the amount recoverable under these presents shall not at any time exceed £150." Due notice of the assignment was given to deft. In an action upon the assignment:—Held: (1) the assignment was not an assignment of part only of the debt, but an absolute assignment of the whole debt with a proviso that if the bank recovered more than £150 they must hold the balance as trustees for the assignor, & it was a good legal assignment; (2) even if it was an assignment of part only of the debt it would still be a good equitable assignment, & pltfs. were entitled to recover.—BANK OF LIVERPOOL & MARTINS, LTD. v. HOLLAND (1926), 43 T. 322a. Assignment of covenant of indemnity on assignment of lease—Notice to one of two covenantors—One covenantor bankrupt.]—In 1923 a lease was granted to deft. & his brother, B. B., who were in partnership. In 1927 the partnership was dissolved, & the lease, as part of the terms of the dissolution, was allotted to B. B., who formed a limited co., B. B., Ltd., to which the lease was duly assigned. In 1930 B. B., Ltd., went into liquidation. In 1931 the liquidators sold the lease to G., the third party in these proceedings, but the assignment was made, by the direction of the third party, to R. B. B., the son of B. B. The covenant of indemnity in this assignment was given by R. B. B. & the third party to the co. & the liquidators. Both B. B. & R. B. B. were adjudicated bkpt. before 1936. In 1936 the co. acting by the liquidators assigned the benefit of the covenant of indemnity to deft., & deft. released the co. & the liquidators from the covenant "except in so far as is necessary to enable" deft. to enforce the assigned covenants. Notice of this assignment was given to the third party only & not to R. B. B. The rent under the lease falling into arrear, the lessor sued deft., as an original lessee, & deft. brought in the third party alleging a right to indemnity under the assignment of the benefit of the covenant in 1936. For the third party it was contended that (a) the assignment of 1936 was an assignment by one only of joint covenantees & could not operate to assign the benefit of the covenants, (b) notice of the assignment had only been given to one of the joint covenantors & the requirements of Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 136, had not been complied with, (c) the assignment of 1936 purported to be an assignment of a right of action sounding in damages & not of a debt, (d) on the construction of the assignment, the third party was under no liability by reason of the release of the covenant therein contained :—Held : (1) by virtue of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 81, the claim for indemnity must be treated as a joint & several claim, not as merely a joint claim ; (2) by virtue of Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 118, it was not necessary to join or to give notice to a covenantee who had since become bkpt. ; (3) the claim was for a debt, not for liquidated damages ; (4) the assignment properly construed was effective to assign the benefit of the covenants.

437a. Assignment of freight.]—Among the claimants to a fund in ct., representing the proceeds of a sale of a foreign vessel & her freight, were a mtgee. of the ship & a firm of ship brokers who acted as the ship's agents & made advances on behalf of the ship. Both claimants relied upon documents which were admitted to be good equitable assignments of the freight. The mtgee.'s assignment was prior in time. The ship's agents relied upon a letter dated Mar. 2, 1931, & signed by the master of the ship with the consent & approval of her managing owner. Having received this letter, the ship's agents on Mar. 5, 1931, wrote to the receivers of cargo: "S.S. Z. We beg to give you notice that we hold captain's authority to collect the freight per this steamer's cargo, against which we have made payments." The mtgee. had given no notice of his assignment. In an action brought by the mtgee. against the owners claiming possession of the ship & her freight under his mtge., the ship's agents intervened to claim against the freight as assignees relying on their assignment, & on the letter of Mar. 5, 1931, as being notice thereof:—Held: in the circumstances the letter was a good & sufficient notice of the assignment.—SMITH v. ZIGURDS S.S. 601a. —— Assignment of debt payable in futuro.]—In 1918, C., a creditor of a firm, agreed to leave the sum constituting her debt on deposit with the firm for fifteen years from Jan. 1, 1917, upon the terms (inter alia) that interest & commission thereon should be paid to V. for his own use, & that in certain events, which subsequently happened, V. should receive a share of the firm's profits, which he in fact received during the years 1918–1921. In 1920, by C.'s direction, the debtor firm transferred C.'s debt by a book entry into the name of F., V. continuing to receive interest & commission as before, & on Feb. 24, 1926, F. made an equitable assignment of the debt to V. Notice of the assignment was given to the debtor firm on Mar. 2, 1926, whereupon the firm transferred the debt by a book entry into the name of V. At the date of the said equitable assignment by F., F. was under a liability to the debtor firm in respect of certain accommodation bills for which, as between F. & the firm, F. was liable, but such liability did not accrue due as a debt until after notice of assignment had been given, namely, when the debtor firm expended £15,000 in taking up the acceptances. On Mar. 15, 1926, the debtor firm presented their petition for a receiving order & were subsequently adjudicated bkpt. In a claim by V. to prove in the firm's bkpcy. :—Held : the assignment by F. to V. was subject to all rights of set-off which had accrued due on the part of the firm against F. at the date of the notice of assignment but was not subject to any right of set-off in respect of the £15,000 which had not accrued due at that date ; nor did the fact that the debt assigned was a debt payable in futuro, for which the assignor was not at the date of the notice of assignment in a position to sue, affect the general rule governing the assignment of a chose in action.—Re PINTO LEITE & NEPHEWS, Ex p. DES OLIVAES, [1929] 1 Ch. 221 ; 98 L. Before notice of assignment was given to deft., the latter obtained judgment against the assignor for damages for breach ot warranty on the above sale. In an action by pltf., as assignee, against deft. for payment of instalments due under the assigned agreement, deft. claimed to set off the amount of the judgment. Pltf. contended that deft.'s right to damages in respect of the breach of warranty had merged in the judgment, & that the latter could not be set off against his claim :—Held : the set-off was valid.—LAWRENCE v. HAYES, [1927] 2 K. A licence was duly granted & renewed for a further year on Mar. 1, 1933. A copy of the rules was supplied to pltf. at the time of his application, & reg. 20, para. 16, provided that the boxer's money might be stopped only when he was disqualified "for committing a deliberate foul, for not trying, or retiring without sufficient cause, or if the referee gives a no contest decision." This paragraph was altered on June 17, 1932, to read: "Boxers in case of disqualification are only entitled to receive bare travelling expenses, pending the decision of the board . . . when the board . . . may deal with the money as it thinks fit." No notice of the altered rules was given to pltf. On July 12, 1933, pltf.

sk. Bye-law — Validity —Restricting play by women members of golf club.]—A club, incorporated under the provisions of the Incorporated Societies Act, 1908, had power under its constitution to make & alter its rules, & its committee had authority to make bye-laws within certain prescribed limits. The rules provided for the admission of various classes of members, each class enjoying specifically defined rights, but in the case of ordinary members no distinction was drawn between the playing privileges of men & women. The committee, without the previous authority of a general meeting, purported to enact a bye-law prohibiting women who were ordinary members from playing on the club links on Saturdays before the hours of 3 p.m., & then only after men players had commenced their rounds. It was further provided that women playing on Saturday afternoons should give the right of way to men players. The committee, in making this bye-law, relied upon one of the rules of the club, which was to the following effect: "The committee may make bye-laws for the regulation of the club-house, grounds, & links, & for the arrangement & control of games & matches." Certain women members, who challenged the validity of this bye-law, played on a Saturday & were fined by the committee & were suspended from the exercise of their privileges as members. Upon an application by these members to have the club restrained from putting such bye-law into force & acting thereunder:—Held: the committee, in making the bye-law in question, had acted beyond the powers conferred upon it by the rules of the club, & the bye-law was therefore invalid.—O'NEILL v. PUPUKE GOLF CLUB, INCORPORATED, [1932] N. agreed to box at the White City Stadium on the terms that he should receive £3,000 win, lose or draw. At the contest pltf. was disqualified for hitting below the belt. The promoters of the contest paid the sum of £3,000 to the Board of Control at their request, & after holding an inquiry the Board withheld the money from pltf. on the ground that he had been disqualified. Pltf. brought proceedings to recover the amount against White City Stadium, Ltd., & the Board of Control:—Held: (1) the contract with the Board of Control was too closely connected with a contract as to employment that it was binding on the infant pltf. having regard to the fact that the contract as a whole was for his benefit; (2) notice of the altered rules was unnecessary in order to make them binding on pltf. in view of the terms of his application for a licence.—DOYLE v. WHITE CITY STADIUM, LTD., [1935] 1 K. 136a. —— Whether members' club is.]—The committee of management of a members' club installed in the club certain machines for the use of members only & for the purpose of giving additional pleasure to the members. The machines were operated by means of pennies inserted in a slot. The player, having first inserted a penny, depressed a handle, causing three cylinders to revolve on which were depicted bells, bars & fruits. On the cylinders ceasing to revolve the player either lost his penny or received winnings up to twenty pennies, according to the combination of fruits &/or bells &/or bars opposite a pointer. The machine automatically filled a jack pot from its winnings, & the pennies in the jack pot were returned to the player who obtained the combination of three bars. The machines were similar in type to other machines for the user of which persons had been convicted under the Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), where the persons had used the machines in shops or places of public entertainment or in proprietary clubs. Four members of the committee of management of the club in question were charged under Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), s. 4, for being persons having the care & management of certain premises, to wit, the club, which were then being used for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein. The contention of the members of the committee of management was that the position of a members' club was analogous to that of a private house, & that gaming upon the machines in a members' club was therefore not unlawful gaming :—Held : in order that a house should be a common gaming house within Gaming Act, 1845 (c. 109), s. 2, it was not necessary that some person should be keeping the house for his gain, lucre or living; it was sufficient that it was a house kept or used for playing at any game where the chances of the game being played therein are not alike favourable to all the players; the chances of the game played on the machines in this club were not alike favourable to all the players, & the fact that the club was a members' club did not prevent the club premises being kept or used for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein, & therefore the members of the committee of management of the club could be convicted of the offence charged under s. 4 of the Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), s. 4.—DANIELS v. PINKS, [1931] 1 K. Members contributed ten cents apiece to the funds of the club for each half hour's play at the poker table, irrespective of whether they were winning or losing. This money was not taken from the stakes or the pot, but was collected by the applt., as steward, from the players & paid over to the club. Only members were allowed in the premises, a bye-law expressly forbidding the introduction of visitors to any part of the club property. Applt. was convicted, under sect. 226 of the Criminal Code, of unlawfully keeping a common gaming house; & the conviction was affirmed by the appellate ct.:—Held : the club was not "a house . . . kept for gain" within sect. 226 of the Criminal Code & applt. had been wrongly convicted.—R. v. BAMPTON, [1932] S. He kept the keys of the machines, deposited money of the club in them & collected the "proceeds" of their operation for the benefit of the club. The playing of the machines was a game of at least "mixed chance & skill," if not of pure chance. The secretary was convicted of keeping a common gaming house :—Held : the conviction should be sustained.—R. v. THOMAS, [1934] 1 W. W. R. 493; 61 C. C. C. 301; 48 B. C. R. 76.—CAN.

——.]—In 1902 the Crystalate Manufacturing Co., Ltd., commenced manufacturing & selling (inter alia) electrical accessories, & in 1928 sold their business to pltfs. At no time had either co. sold electric lamps. In 1933 defts. were formed & commenced selling electric lamps, & in one advertisement were inadvertently described as "British Crystalate Co., Ltd." Pltfs. commenced an action to restrain defts. from carrying on business under their name or any name containing the word "Crystalite" or any other word only colourably differing from "Crystalate." Defts. alleged that the businesses carried on by the parties were dissimilar & that there was no likelihood of confusion :—

sd. "Precision Engineering Co."—"Ou-Tone Precision Engineers."]—An application by C. & T., Ltd., for approval of a change of name to the "Ou-Tone Precision Engineers, Ltd.," was opposed by the Precision Engineering Co., Ltd. Both cos. were engaged in the engineering business. Appct. had been engaged in making what are known as "precision tools," & in what is styled "precision work." The objecting co. was engaged in manufacturing motor-plates, steel shelving, lockers, & office equipment. Appct. co. had decided to make "precision work" a prominent feature of its business, & adopted the term "precision" not as a fancy word, but as being descriptive of the kind of work in which it proposed to specialise : —Held, granting the approval sought, as the word "precision" was an ordinary English word descriptive of part of the work carried on by appct. co. in common with other engineering firms, it had not acquired a secondary or subsidiary meaning to denote only the business of the objecting co., & could not be monopolised by the latter, & its use in the form proposed was not calculated to deceive.—Re CUFF & THOMSON, LTD., [1933] N. Held: defts. had adopted their name in good faith as being descriptive of the " crystal light " sold by them, but pltfs. & defts. were both concerned in the same trade, that their names were substantially similar, & the use by defts. of their name was calculated to cause confusion between the two businesses. Each fund, with its accretions of interest, was divided up periodically among the members ratably at a period of the year which differed in each branch. The assocn. & its branches all consisted of more than twenty members. The assocn. was not registered under any Act. 439a. " Issued " to the public—What amounts to.]—A co. being in want of further capital, a document was prepared by applt., who was the managing director, & signed by the other directors, stating the position of the co., that it was proposed to issue 20,000 preference shares, & giving an estimate of the profits after the new capital was available. Attached was an application form for preference shares. A second document was also prepared by the applt., written on the co.'s paper & addressed to a fellow director, marked " strictly private & confidential," which, after setting out the amount of nominal & issued capital, stated the purposes for which the additional capital was required, & concluded thus : " I shall be very happy to discuss this proposition in all its details with any one who is really interested." Attached was a form of application for ordinary shares. Several copies of these documents were given to applt.'s fellow director, who sent a copy to a solr., with a request, in substance, that he should find some client willing to provide the capital required. The solr. sent the documents to resp.'s brother-in-law, & he in turn sent them to resp., who, on the faith of the statements they contained, subscribed for 3,000 ordinary shares in the co. Subsequently ascertaining that a considerable part of the issued capital had been issued otherwise than for cash, a fact that was not stated in either of the documents, he sued applt. for damages for the loss he had sustained through the omission by applt. to comply with the requirements of 1908 Act, s. 81 (1) (e). At the trial the jury found that the two documents were an offer of shares by the co. to the public. In answer to the question, whether they were in fact issued to the public, the jury said : " There is no proof of this." 581a. —— —— Directors without knowledge that misrepresentation basis of contract.]—Deft. co. had no knowledge, that, so far as pltf. was concerned, his application had been induced by any representations made before the co. was incorporated. In these circumstances I think pltf. fails to establish any right to have any contract to take the shares in question rescinded (LUXMOORE, J.).—COLLINS v. ASSOCIATED GREYHOUND RACECOURSES, LTD., [1930] 1 Ch. 1, 14; affd., [1930] 1 Ch. 1, 28, C. 581b. —— Contract between company & agent for undisclosed principal—Whether principal entitled to rescission.]—Shortly before the incorporation of a co. a draft prospectus, which was afterwards adopted by the co., was circulated for the purpose of obtaining underwriters of shares intended to be offered to the public by the proposed co. An investment co. entered into an underwriting agreement on Nov. 28, 1927, by which they agreed that they would within three days of the issue of the prospectus "either subscribe themselves . . . on the basis of the said prospectus for 1,164,000 . . . shares of 5*s* each or cause the same before the date aforesaid to be subscribed on the terms of the said prospectus by responsible persons," & any reasonable objection might be taken by the co. within two days to persons put forward by the investment co. On Nov. 29, 1927, M. & O. signed & remitted an offer to underwrite 12,000 shares addressed to the investment co. & also an application for the shares addressed to the proposed company, which was accompanied by a cheque for £600. On Dec. 12, 1927, the incorporation of the proposed co. took place, & the underwriting agreement & prospectus were adopted by the co. & the prospectus issued to the public. The public response was insufficient, & 8,160 shares were allotted to M. & O., the allotment letter bearing at the back a form of renunciation. M. & O. were agents for pltf., who had provided the £600. They renounced the shares in favour of pltf., who paid the further sum of £624 due on allotment & sent the allotment letter to the co., who replied stating that it had been duly registered in his name & placed his name on the register of shareholders:—Held: pltf. was not entitled to rescission, because (1) the contract between M. & O. & the co. was of such a class that M. & O. must be treated as the principals, so that pltf., as the undisclosed principal, could not sue on the contract or obtain its rescission, & (2) the contract constituted by the co.'s acceptance of pltf.'s authority under the renunciation to place his name on the register could not be treated as a contract entered into on the basis of the draft prospectus.—COLLINS v. ASSOCIATED GREYHOUND RACECOURSES, LTD., [1930] 1 Ch. 1; 99 L. 614a. ——.]—B. signed a printed form issued by the promoters of an intended co., expressing his willingness to become a member of the council of administration of the intended co. M. also wrote to the promoters promising to help the co. Soon afterwards the promoters issued a prospectus in which the co. was described as "to be incorporated under the Cos. Acts," & an extract was given from the proposed articles of assocn. to the effect that there would be a council of administration of members of the co., & a list of members of the council was appended containing the names of B. & M. In reliance on this prospectus, K. applied for shares in the intended co. On Jan. 31, three days after K.'s application, the co. was duly registered under the Cos. Act; & on Feb. 2, the directors allotted K. the shares which he had applied for, & approved a form of prospectus substantially the same as that which had been issued by the promoters. On Feb. 11, K. paid the allotment money on those shares. On June 26, K. discovered that B. & M. had both declined to take shares in the co. & to become members of the council of administration, & took out a summons to have his name removed from the list of shareholders:—Held: the effect of the statement in the prospectus was not merely that B. & M. had expressed their willingness to become members of the council of administration, but that they had authorised the publication of their names as members, & as such was a false statement of fact; the prospectus, although issued by the promoters before the formation of the co., was the basis of the contract between the co. & K. for the allotment of shares; that the misstatement in the prospectus was relied on by K., & was material to the contract, & consequently that K. was entitled to rescind the contract

& repudiate the shares. The ct., being of opinion that there had been no laches or acquiescence, ordered K.'s name to be removed from the list of shareholders, & the money paid by him in application & allotment to be returned with interest at 4 per cent.—Re METROPOLITAN COAL CONSUMERS' ASSOCN. 770a. Acceptance of sum paid into court—Effect on liability under 1908 Act, s. 84.]—Resp. applied for & was allotted debenture stock in W., C., & Co., Ltd., relying upon the statements contained in a prospectus. The first-named applts. were directors in W., C., & Co., Ltd.; the second-named applts. carried on business as merchant bankers in the name of S. & Co., who were stated in the prospectus to have purchased the whole of the debenture stock of W., C., & Co., Ltd., but who were alleged by resp. to have issued the prospectus as agents for the other applts. Resp. by his writ claimed "damages for false & fraudulent misrepresentation against all applts., & against such of applts. as were directors of W., C., & Co., Ltd., compensation under 1908 Act, s. 84, alternatively damages for conspiracy to defraud, the damages claimed in respect of the three claims being £178." The trial judge dismissed the action against the first-named applts. with costs. The action then proceeded against the second-named applts. until they amended their defence by leave & paid £130 into ct. with a denial of liability, which amount the resp. accepted in lieu of the £178 claimed, in full satisfaction of the cause of action for fraudulent misrepresentation. The Ct. of Appeal set aside the orders & judgment of the trial judge & ordered a new trial of the action as regards the causes of action under 1908 Act, s. 84, & conspiracy to defraud :—Held : (1) both on the issue of conspiracy to defraud & the issue of deceit, after the money had been taken out in satisfaction there was no cause of action & no head of damage remained unsatisfied of which there was any evidence or which could be ordered to be tried anew; (2) on the question of compensation under 1908 Act, s. 84, although the case should have been left to the jury there was nothing left to be tried after resp. had taken out in satisfaction money paid in on the issue of conspiracy only. Compensation was not, either as to the amount recoverable or the mode of measuring it something different from or even greater than damages.—CLARK v. URQUHART, STRACEY v. URQUHART, [1930] A. Sept., 1920, by deft. co., hereinafter called "the Trust," applied for & had allotted to him subject to the terms of the prospectus four £100 7½ per cent. profit sharing deposit notes of the Trust. It was stated in the prospectus that the notes would be paid off at 105 per cent. by four annual drawings, &, under the heading "Earlier payments," that the Trust retained the right to pay off at 105 per cent. all or any of the outstanding notes at any time on giving three months' previous notice in writing, but that in the event of the sale of the Trusts' R. B. estates, further referred to in that prospectus, which according to the construction placed upon the prospectus by the ct. was not confined to a sale under a certain option of purchase referred to later in the prospectus, but included a sale to anybody whomsoever, the Trust would set aside out of the proceeds of sale a sum sufficient to redeem all the notes then outstanding, & the holders would be given an option of being then paid off in cash at 105 per cent. or of retaining their notes till the date of drawing. Each of the notes, which was in the form of the specimen note referred to in the prospectus, provided that the Trust would, as & when the principal sum of £100 became payable in accordance with the conditions indorsed thereon, pay to pltf. the sum of £105, & was expressed to be subject to & with the benefit of those conditions, which repeated the provisions contained in the prospectus for the redemption of the notes by drawings & the option retained by the Trust to pay off the notes on notice, but did not refer to the promise by the Trust contained in the prospectus as to earlier payments in the event of the sale of the Trust's R. B. estates. The option to purchase referred to in the prospectus having lapsed & the Trust having contracted to sell the R. B. estates without having given notice to pltf. that his option to be paid off or to retain his notes had thereby become exercisable, & the Trust having repudiated their liability to perform their promise contained in the prospectus, pltf. brought an action to have the said liability of the Trust established & for an injunction to restrain them from dealing with the proceeds of sale without in the first place setting aside a sum sufficient to pay off the outstanding notes:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the relief claimed on either of two grounds, namely, (1) that the entire contract was contained in two written instruments, namely, the deposit the prospectus, the terms of which the ct. could reconcile by construing the promise in the prospectus as if it were inserted in the note as a proviso to come into operation, if & when the R. B. estates were sold, or (2) that the promise was a binding collateral contract, the consideration for which was the contract by pltf. to take up the notes, & that, as the terms of that promise & an animus contrahendi on the part of pltf. & the Trust had been clearly proved, the test laid down by LORD MOULTON in Heilbut, Symons & Co. v. Buckleton (see No. 1565) was satisfied.—JACOBS v. BATAVIA & GENERAL PLANTATIONS TRUST, [1924] 2 Ch. 329; 93 L. 834a i. Order under 1929 Act, s. 56 (3)—What amounts to special circumstances.]—In a petition at the instance of a shipping co. for confirmation of a reduction of capital, it appeared that the co. had no debentures or debenture stock, that the co.'s only debts, consisted of expenditure incurred by its ships in the course of their voyages, the amount of which would not be ascertained till their return; that such debts were, in practice, regularly discharged as soon as their amount had been ascertained; & that the value of the co.'s ships was ample security for its outstanding debts. On a motion for an order in terms of Cos. Act, 1929, s. 56 (3), the ct. directed that the provisions of Cos. Act, 1929, s. 56 (2), should not apply to the creditors of the co. or any class of them; & confirmed the reduction of capital simpliciter.—Re UNIFRUITCO STEAMSHIP CO., [1930] S. 834a ii. —— ——.]—In a petition at the instance of a colliery co. for confirmation of a reduction of capital, it appeared that the co. had no debentures or debenture stock; that the co.'s principal creditors were trade creditors, mineral owners in respect of lordships, employees in respect of wages, & the collectors of rates & taxes; that, during the dependence of the petition, all these creditors, with one exception, had been paid or had consented to the proposed reduction; that the remaining creditor, the Inland Revenue, whose claim was for £19,690 in respect of unascertained income tax liability had, in accordance with department practice, declined to sign any consent, but had stated no objection to the proposed reduction; & that the value of the co.'s liquid assets was ample security for its outstanding liabilities. On a motion for an order in terms of Cos. Act, 1929, s. 56 (3), the ct. found it unnecessary to apply the provisions of Cos. Act, 1929, s. 56 (2), & confirmed the reduction of capital simpliciter.—Re CADZOW COAL CO., LTD., [1931] S. C. 272.—SCOT.

with a capital of £95,000,000 consisting of cumulative preference, ordinary & deferred shares, petitioned the ct. to sanction a reduction of capital to £89,565,859 by cancellation of half the amount of each of the 21,736,564 deferred shares of 10*s.* each, & by conversion & consolidation of each four deferred shares into one £1 ordinary share carrying full dividend rights as from Jan. 1, 1935. The scheme, which was submitted by the directors for the purpose of simplifying & strengthening the co.'s financial structure, was approved by more than the statutory majority at the extraordinary general meeting, & by more than the majority prescribed by the arts. of assocn. of the co. at each of the separate class meetings of the ordinary & deferred shareholders. It was provided by the memorandum & arts. of assocn. that the special rights or privileges of any class of shareholders should not be varied or extinguished without the approval of a separate class meeting of the shareholders so affected. Apart from the scheme, the co.'s profits, in terms of the articles, were to be distributed in payment of (i) a dividend of 7 per cent. per annum on the cumulative preference shares, (ii) a dividend of 7 per cent. per annum on the ordinary shares, & (iii) out of the available balance of profits, (a) a further dividend on the ordinary shares, together with (b) a dividend on the deferred shares in such a manner that the balance so distributable in respect of the ordinary shares should be as nearly as possible twice the total amount to be distributed in respect of the deferred shares. The board sent to all shareholders a circular which contained detailed information regarding the scheme, but which made no reference to the comparative holdings of the directors in ordinary & deferred shares of the co. Meetings for the purpose of obtaining the shareholders' sanction were convened, & held on May 1, 1935. The first was an extraordinary general meeting of all shareholders, at which the chairman spoke in support of the scheme & announced that, with the approval of the shareholders, he proposed to make that one speech in relation to that meeting & to the two subsequent class meetings of the ordinary shareholders & deferred shareholders respectively, without any further speeches. The resolutions having been defeated on a show of hands, a poll was taken forthwith, & thereafter two meetings, purporting to be separate class meetings of ordinary shareholders & deferred shareholders, were held. The resolution was duly passed at the meeting of the ordinary shareholders, & it was declared lost on a show of hands at the deferred shareholders' meeting, but was subsequently carried by the requisite majority on a poll being taken. Holders of shares of classes other than deferred shares were present in the hall during the holding of the class meeting of the deferred shareholders, but there was no evidence that any shareholder other than deferred shareholders either took any part in the conduct of, or voted at, that meeting. The co.'s petition was opposed by applt. on behalf of himself & all other holders of deferred shares, on the ground that, inter alia, the reduction of capital was ultra vires the co. & was not properly sanctioned by the deferred shareholders, who, under the scheme, were exposed to unfair treatment as a class of shareholders :—Held : (1) as the arts. of assocn. empowered the co. to reduce its share capital in the ways specifically mentioned therein, " or otherwise as may seem expedient," the co. thus became entitled to reduce its capital in any way authorised by 1929 Act ; (2) the meeting of deferred shareholders was properly convened, the objection which might have been raised to the presence of holders of shares of another class was waived, the poll was duly demanded, & the extraordinary resolution was duly passed by the requisite majority ; (3) the circular issued to the shareholders disclosed sufficient information to enable them to judge of the fairness & propriety of the scheme ; (4) the proposed reduction of capital should be confirmed, as the scheme for the re-arrangement thereof did not operate unfairly in relation to the holders of deferred shares.—CARRUTH v. IMPERIAL CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES, LTD., [1937] A. 1012a. —— At date of registration of minute.]—A co., which desired to vary the constitution of its capital, petitioned the ct. for an order sanctioning a scheme of arrangement which involved the reduction & subsequent increase, subdivision & consolidation of capital. The capital was to be reduced by converting certain issued ordinary shares of 15*s.* each into ordinary shares of 12*s.* each. The capital was then to be increased by the issue of redeemable preference shares of £1 each & shares of 4*s.* each. It was part of the scheme that the unissued ordinary shares of 15*s.* each should be subdivided & consolidated into ordinary shares of 12*s.* each. It was proposed that the minute of reduction to be registered under 1929 Act, s. 58, should be approved in a form which, after dealing with the reduction, stated the amount & constitution of the share capital at the date of the registration of the minute, but did not give details of the increase, subdivision & consolidation of the capital :—Held : the scheme should be sanctioned & the suggested form of order should be approved.—Re HARRODS (BUENOS AIRES), LTD., [1936] 2 All E. 1012b. —— ——.]—A co. with a share capital consisting of preference shares of £1 each & ordinary shares of £1 each, desiring to reduce its capital, approved a scheme by special resolution whereby the issued preference shares & ordinary shares of £1 each (which were fully paid up) were to be reduced to an equivalent number of preference shares & ordinary shares of 10*s.* each. These 10*s.* shares were then to be consolidated in such a manner that every two of such preference & ordinary shares respectively should constitute one £1 fully paid preference or ordinary share as the case might be. The ct. was petitioned to sanction the scheme. The ct. sanctioned the scheme & approved a form of minute for registration.—Re HOLLAND & WEBB, LTD., [1936] 3 All E. R. 955; 80 Sol. Jo. 1014.

1019a. Passing of special resolution—& confirmation by court.]—(1) The proper form of minute in petitions for reduction of capital is not as set out in Re Salinas of Mexico, [1919] W. (2) With regard to the form of notice of registration pursuant to 1908 Act, s. 51 (3), it is a sufficient compliance with the statute to give such notice in the short form approved in Re Oceana Development Co. (1912), 56 Sol. On increase of capital.]—After this cross-reference add :—

1126a. —— When increase takes place.]—In Dec. 1927, resp. co. passed an extraordinary resolution that the capital of the co. be increased to £1,550,000 by the creation of 300,000 new ordinary shares & payment was made on the increase of the stamp duty under Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), s. 112. On the same day the co. passed an extraordinary resolution altering the Arts. of the co. & adding an Art. 44 (a) which provided " the directors of the company for the time being be & they are hereby authorised from time to time by resolution passed by them to increase the existing capital of the co. from £1,550,000 to £2,500,000 by the creation of 950,000 additional shares of £1 each. Such increases within the limits aforesaid may be made successively & such new shares shall have " certain priorities & rights. The Crown asserted that immediately on the creation of Art. 44 (a) there was an increase of capital within the meaning of Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), s. 112, & stamp duty was payable on the 950,000 new shares:—Held: under Art. 44 (a) two steps were necessary before an increase of capital was created within the meaning of Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39) s. 112 : first the introduction of the article & then a step which might not in fact be ever taken, namely, a resolution creating the increase or some of the increase of the capital authorised by the article ; & until the directors exercised the power to increase given to them by the article there was no increase in the registered capital of the company & no duty was attracted under sect. 112.—A.-G. v. TUBE INVESTMENTS, LTD. 1358a. ——.]—The appct. was persuaded by Y. to take part in a certain transaction & to deposit with Y., as security until the transaction was completed, certain shares, of which the appct. was the registered holder. The appct. was told that these shares were to be put temporarily in the name of Y. & for that purpose the appct. signed certain documents, but in no instance was the signature witnessed. By means of a transfer purporting to be executed by the appct. & properly witnessed, the name of Y. was entered upon the co.'s register as holder of the shares. The appct. in evidence said that she had never signed a transfer of the shares & the witness to the signature admitted that she had not signed as witness in the presence of the appct. A handwriting expert gave evidence that the appct.'s alleged signature on the transfer form was more likely to be genuine than a forgery. The appct. moved to rectify the co.'s register under 1929 Act, s. 100. Certain brokers had been instructed by Y. to sell the said shares & they opposed the application on the ground that the transfer was part of a scheme " to rig the market " : —Held: (1) the jurisdiction of the ct. to rectify the register is not limited to cases where a name has been entered improperly, but extends to cases where a name stands on the register without sufficient cause; (2) there was sufficient evidence, even assuming the transfer to have been a proper one & not a forgery, that the appct.'s name had without sufficient cause been omitted from, & Y.'s name had without sufficient cause been placed upon the register, & it ought to be rectified; (3) as the brokers did not claim that they themselves or anyone with whom they had entered into any contract had a right to have their or his name put upon the register, their application must be refused, but they had rightly brought the suggestion of illegality before the ct. On the evidence the appct. was no party to any illegality.—Re IMPERIAL CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES, LTD., [1936] 2 All E. R. 463; 80 Sol. Jo. 533.

1379a. Restrictions on transfer—Deposit with bank as security—Sale by bank notwithstanding restrictions.]—S. H., the holder of shares in a private co., T. H., Ltd., was also chairman of a co., C. & Co., Ltd. The account of C. & Co. with their bankers being largely overdrawn, S. H. gave the bankers a continuing guarantee & deposited with them a certificate for 800 shares in T. H., Ltd., with a memorandum charging all shares, the certificates for which were or might be lodged with the bankers, as security for the payment on demand of all moneys due or to become due to them, &, upon default by him in paying or further securing on demand any money secured, authorising them without further notice to sell the shares.

By the arts. of assocn. of T. H., Ltd., a member could not transfer his shares until he had given notice to the secretary offering to sell the shares at a price to be fixed by the auditor, & until the secretary had offered them to the other members, one director, T. H. V. H., having a right of pre-emption. The bankers began to press for a transfer of the shares into the names of two nominees. They were aware of the arts. of assocn. of T. H., Ltd., & were warned by S. H. that such a transfer would be invalid. They also gave S. H. notice in writing demanding payment of C. & Co.'s overdraft. S. H. then gave them as further security certificates for 346 additional shares in T. H., Ltd., & executed instruments purporting to be transfers of 1,146 shares in that co., & the nominees of the bankers were placed on the register of the co. as the holders of the shares. In order to obtain a further advance for the benefit of C. & Co., S. H. executed a mtge. of other property, covenanting to pay the bankers on demand all money then or at any time due from himself or from C. & Co. Application was then made to the auditor of T. H., Ltd., to fix a price for the 1,146 shares: a price was fixed, & the shares were bought by T. H. V. H. with money borrowed from the bankers & secured by a so-called transfer of the 1,146 shares & 850 other shares to nominees of the bankers, who were placed on the register of T. H., Ltd., as the holders of 1,996 shares. Two actions were brought, one by E. H., a shareholder in T. H., Ltd., suing on behalf of herself & all other the shareholders in the co., except T. H. V. H., & claiming to have the register of shareholders rectified by restoring thereto the name of S. H. as the holder of 1,146 shares & entering that of T. H. V. H. as the holder of 850 shares on the ground that all the transfers & registrations aforesaid were made in contravention of the co.'s arts. & were void. The second action was brought by S. H., who sought the same relief & also claimed the right to redeem the 1,146 shares on the footing that the sale of the shares was void, & that his equity of redemption was still subsisting. In E. H.'s action, which was the first to be tried, an order was made for rectification of the register as prayed therein. In S. H.'s action a similar order was made, a further order that S. H. was entitled to redeem the 1,146 shares. T. H. V. H., T. H., Ltd., & the bankers & their nominees appealed against the orders in both actions. The Ct. of Appeal dismissed the appeal in E. H.'s action. From that decision there was no appeal. The Ct. of Appeal allowed the appeal in S. H.'s action, holding that S. H. was entitled to be upon the register, but that the sale of the 1,146 shares to T. H. V. H. operated as a valid transfer of the equitable interest in the shares, & ordering that S. H. should execute a declaration of trust of the shares in favour of T. H. V. H. & bankers or as they should direct. From this decision S. H. appealed, & there was a cross-appeal by T. H. V. H., T. H., Ltd., the bankers & their nominees:—Held: applt. was entitled to have the register rectified by restoring his name thereto as the holder of 1,146 shares, on the grounds: (1) Per Lord CHANCELLOR, Lord BLANESBURGH, Lord RUSSELL OF KILLOWEN & Lord MACMILLAN (Lord ATKIN doubting), that there was no effective demand for payment before the attempted sale of the shares, the demand which was made having been superseded by the security & mtge. subsequently given & executed; (2) Per Lord CHANCELLOR, Lord ATKIN, & Lord MACMILLAN, that there was no effective sale of the shares, the restrictions imposed by the arts. of assocn. of the co. not having been observed; (3) Per Lord CHANCELLOR & Lord MACMILLAN, that applt. was not estopped from claiming rectification of the register, inasmuch as the bankers were well aware, & had been informed by applt., of all the restrictions upon the sale of the shares (Lord BLANESBURGH assenting on other grounds); (4) Per Lord CHANCELLOR, Lord BLANESBURGH, Lord ATKIN, Lord RUSSELL OF KILLOWEN & Lord MACMILLAN, that the attempted sale by the bankers did not operate to pass the equitable apart from the legal interest in the shares.—HUNTER v. HUNTER, [1936] A. Act, 1899, of New South Wales, the material provisions of which Act were similar to the law as to English cos., the co. was to have power to issue with preferential rights part of the shares in its original capital thereby stated. The articles of assocn. contained no express power to issue preference shares as part of the original capital. Art. 10 provided that the shares should be under the control of the directors, who might allot them on such "terms & conditions" as they thought fit. By art. 117 the management of the "business of the co." was vested in the directors who, in addition to the powers otherwise expressly conferred on them, might do all such things as the co. might do, save those which by the articles or statute were to be done in general meeting. 1654a. —— What amounts to.]—In Jan. 1920, K. applied, on a form supplied to him by Y., for 100 shares in a co. about to be formed On Apr. 14, Y. purported to transfer to K. 100 shares, but the transfer did not specify the denoting numbers of the shares comprised therein. At a meeting of the directors held on Apr. 16, a resolution was passed purporting to allot all the shares of the co. At that date the co. had not issued a prospectus or filed a statement in lieu thereof. On Apr. 20, the statement in lieu of prospectus was filed. At a meeting of the directors held on Apr. 30, the transfer from Y. to K. came before the board, & a resolution was passed approving the transfer & directing that a share certificate should be forwarded to K. Subsequently K. was registered a member of the co. The certificate, dated May 26, was sent to, & was accepted by, K. On June 8 a bonus, declared at the meeting of Apr. 30, was paid to, & was accepted by, K. K., as purporting to be the owner of the shares, attended a meeting of shareholders on Mar. 24, 1921. Subsequently the co. went into liquidation, & K., on whose shares there was a liability of 10*s.* per share, then denied being a shareholder, contending that the allotment of shares to Y. was void under 1908 Act, s. 82:—Held: (1) although the allotment to Y. was void, K. was a member of the co. at the commencement of the winding up, there having been no agreement between him & the co. until Apr. 30, when the co. was legally in a position to allot shares; (2) in any event, in view of his subsequent conduct, he was estopped from denying that he was a member of the co.—Re BURTON (JAMES) & SONS, LTD., [1927] 2 Ch. 132; 96 L. & the secretary; & the said one director & the secretary shall sign every instrument to which the seal shall be so affixed in their presence & in favour of any purchaser or person bonâ fide dealing with the co. such signature shall be conclusive of the fact that the seal has been properly affixed." The following further facts were held to have been established at the trial: from entries in the register of members it appeared that the shares in dispute had in Nov. 1927, been issued, with other shares, to the English & Foreign Investment Trust, Ltd., & that in respect of those shares three shillings per share were paid up. There was no entry showing when that co. ceased to be a member. There were entries in the register indicating that the 2,000 shares were transferred to W., & that W. was entered on the register as a member on Apr. 30, 1928, as having acquired the shares as fully paid & as having had a certificate No. 528 issued to him. There was no record of any transfer from the English & Foreign Investment Trust, Ltd. In Apr. 1928, while the register & seal of pltf. co. were under their physical control, D. & G. made the entries in the register, &, as director & secretary respectively of pltf. co., affixed the seal of that co. to & signed the certificate issued to W., but without any authority from pltf. co. & fraudulently in the interest of the A. co.:—Held: (1) the certificate not having in truth been sealed by pltf. co.'s authority, was, in the circumstances aforesaid, a forgery & not binding upon the co; (2) W., whose ignorance of art. 105 had been proved, was, on that account, precluded from relying on that article to support the contention that pltf. co. was bound in his favour to treat the attesting signatures as conclusive evidence of the fact that the seal of pltf. co. had been properly affixed to the certificate; (3) as affixing the seal was not a matter in which normally a single director would have power to act without the authority of the board of directors, W. was not relieved from the obligation to inquire whether the formalities required by the art. had been complied with.—SOUTH LONDON GREYHOUND RACECOURSES, LTD. v. WAKE, [1931] 1 Ch. 496; 100 L. 2183a. —— Lien in respect of debt of trustee—Right of trustees to sell shares.]—Pltfs. were the trustees of the marriage settlement of one of them, who was also a beneficiary under the settlement. They claimed damages from defts. for breach of an agreement, whereby defts. undertook to purchase shares in a certain company. The pltf., who was a beneficiary under the settlement, was, in his individual capacity, indebted to the co. & the co. had, under its articles, a lien upon shares in respect of the debts of a member. In a previous action it had been held that whatever equitable interest the co. had in these shares under its lien was postponed to the interests of the beneficiaries under the settlement, other than the debtor-trustee & persons claiming under him. Defts. now contended that, as the co. would lose its lien, which was admittedly good against the debtor-trustee & persons claiming under him, if the trustees were to sell, the trustees were not in a position to sell the shares free from encumbrances, & therefore the defts. were not bound to carry out their agreement to purchase :—Held : the right of the trustees to sell the shares in execution of their trust was not affected by the co.'s lien against the debtor-trustee's personal interest, & the trustees could give an unencumbered title to a purchaser of the shares, although the co. would lose its lien thereby. Defts. were, therefore, bound to carry out their agreement to purchase.—MATHIESON v. GRONOW (1929), 141 L. T. 553 ; 45 T. L. R. 604.

2224a. —— Dividend before exercise of option to purchase—Payment postponed.]—By a contract made in Apr. 1922, it was agreed between the persons interested therein that a business forming part of a testator's estate should be converted into a private co. with a capital of £30,000, divided into £20,000 debentures bearing interest at 7 per cent. & 10,000 ordinary shares of £1 each, fully paid, which were to be allotted to the trustees of the will. One of the trustees, F., was appointed manager of the co., & was given the option, so long as he continued to be both trustee & manager, of purchasing the whole of the debentures & shares at par value. In June, 1928, the co. declared a dividend of 57½ per cent. on the ordinary shares for the year ending Mar. 31, 1928, to be paid in three equal instalments on July 1 & Nov. 1, 1928, & Feb. 1, 1929, & the first instalment was paid on July 1, 1928. On July 30, 1928, F. exercised his option to purchase the whole of the shares & debentures for £30,000. At that date there was four months' interest due upon the debentures. The purchase was completed on Nov. 5, 1928. On a summons being taken out to determine the rights of the parties in the unpaid instalments of the dividend, & the debenture interest, as between vendors & purchaser :—Held : (1) the four months' accrued interest on the debentures passed to the purchaser ; (2) the declaration of the dividend on the shares having created a debt to the trustees as the then registered shareholders, the postponement of the payment did not operate to deprive them of their rights, & therefore the remaining instalments belonged to them & not to the purchaser.—Re KIDNER, KIDNER v. KIDNER, [1929] 2 Ch. 121 ; 98 L. 2250a. —— Valid tender of stock.]—A. contracts with B. for the sale of £200 South-Sea stock, for £1,360 to be paid on or before the day of shutting the transfer books, in order to make the Christmas dividend. The money not being paid, A. brought his action upon the covenant, & in his declaration alleged, that he attended at the South-Sea house, for the space of an hour before the shutting of the books, & was ready to transfer the stock to deft., but that he was not ready to receive it. On a demurrer, judgment was given for deft., pltf. not having made a sufficient tender of the stock. In an action upon a contract for the sale of stock, it is necessary for pltf. to show, that he had made a legal tender of the stock before he can claim the money; for his attending at the office upon the day, & being ready to transfer, is not sufficient. He ought to set out in his declaration, the manner of transferring stock, & the time & place when & where it is usually transferred; these being matters which the ct. cannot judicially take notice of.—STAPLETON v. SHELBURNE (1725), 1 Bro. An action was commenced against the chairman of the board of directors & the co. in which the pltfs. claimed that he held the shares as trustee for the individual shareholders & in which they sought an injunction restraining him from voting, at any meeting of the co., as the holder of the shares:—Held: (1) on the evidence, the chairman of the board of directors held the shares, not for the benefit of the individual shareholders, but for the benefit of the co., & that he held them on trust, at his discretion, to sell them; (2) the transfer did not offend against any principle laid down by any of the decided cases, & that the transaction was not made invalid by reason of the transfer having been made to a nominee on trusts which involved an obligation on the trustee to vote in respect of the shares as the co. might from time to time direct.—KIRBY v. WILKINS, [1929] 2 Ch. 444; 142 L. 2585a. Article restricting right of transfer—Construction.]—Arts. of assocn. restricting transfer of shares must be so construed as not unreasonably to prevent shareholders from fairly & reasonably exercising their powers as members of the co.

Testator appointed his wife, a son, & two other persons exors. & trustees of his will, whereby he bequeathed his residuary estate to the trustees on trust to sell & convert & to hold the proceeds, after the wife's death, upon trust as to one-third thereof for the said son, & as to the remaining two-thirds for the other children of testator alive at testator's death. The residue included shares in the co., some in testator's name, the remainder in the name of another as his nominee or as trustee for him. The will was proved by the widow & the son only. They caused these shares to be registered in their own names without qualification, as the arts. of the co. disqualified transferees from receiving notice of or voting at meetings. Later they appointed an additional trustee of the will; & in order to vest the shares jointly in them & him, all three executed a transfer. This was presented to the co. for registration, but registration was refused on the ground that the restrictions on transfer imposed by the articles applied:—Held: the transfer could be justified under the arts.—Re HOBSON, HOUGHTON & CO., [1929] 1 Ch. 300; 98 L. The substantial question, which came before the ct. upon motion, was whether one member was entitled, under the articles, to transfer shares to another member. The material articles were as follows:—

Art. 5: "The directors may in their absolute & uncontrolled discretion refuse to register any proposed transfer of shares, & clause 20 of Table A shall be modified accordingly. No shares shall in any circumstances be transferred to any infant, bkpt., or person of unsound mind. Under the constitution of the bkpt. co. its shareholders could not sell or dispose of their shares except with the leave of the directors evidenced by a resolution of the board. All the directors of the bkpt. co. except one were indebted to it on their shares. At meetings of the directors where as a result of a prearrangement each director in turn, except the one not indebted, refrained from voting on resolutions in which he was interested, resolutions were passed, in pursuance of the prearranged scheme, which resolutions authorised the exchange of resp.'s shares in the bkpt. co. for shares in the other co. & the purchase from her by the bkpt. co. of the shares so received by her from the other co., the purchase-price being payable by crediting her with full settlement of the amount owing by her to the bkpt. co. Similar resolutions were passed with respect to the shares & indebtedness of the indebted directors. Her husband voted on the resolutions affecting her:—Held: apart from the question of the validity of the resolutions, the transaction should be set aside on the ground that it was a sham & did not fall within the cases in which it has been held that a bonâ fide out-&-out transfer of partially paid shares on the eve of insolvency of a co. will be upheld, even though made to an insolvent & for the purpose of getting rid of the liability thereon.—CLARK (R. The son attained his minority, in Scots law, in Sept. 1923. The share certificates were held by resp. until July, 1925, when he deposited them with his law agents on behalf of the son. Dividend warrants were issued regularly in the son's name. Resp., on behalf of the son, claimed repayment for the year ended Apr. 5, 1925, of the tax deducted from the dividends on the shares. The Crown contended (a) that to make a gift by a father to his son effective there must be a delivery either to the donee or to some third person for him; (b) that as the son was a pupil child at the date of the alleged gift he was incapable of acting or consenting, & that resp., as tutor of the pupil child, was the only person who could act for him; (c) that as resp. had done nothing beyond taking the title to the shares in the son's name, the shares remained under the control & at the disposal of resp. The claim was allowed by the General Comrs. who held that the shares had been effectively donated to the son & were his sole property:—Held: an effective donation of the shares had been made.—INLAND REVENUE COMRS. v. WILSON, [1928] S.C. Such notice shall constitute the co. the agent of the retiring member for the sale of such shares to any member of the co. or a person selected as aforesaid at the fair value. No sale notice shall be withdrawn except with the sanction of the directors":—Held: there was nothing in the language of arts. 5 & 6 which gave rise to the necessity of implying any restriction upon the right of a member of the company to transfer shares therein to another member.—DELAVENNE v. BROADHURST, [1931] 1 Ch. 234; 100 L. 2589a. —— —— Finance Act, 1927 (c. 10), s. 55.—What amounts to "issue" of shares]—In connection with a scheme for the reconstruction of a company a new co. was formed to enter into a sale agreement to acquire the undertaking of the existing co. The consideration for the agreement was to consist, in addition to the discharge by the new co. of certain liabilities of the old co. of the allotment of shares in the new co. to the shareholders in the old co. Letters of allotment were sent to these shareholders, accompanied by a form of renunciation. Before the original allottees were registered some of them renounced in favour of other persons, with the result that of the first registered shareholders in the new co. those who had been shareholders in the old co. held less than 90 per cent. of the shares in the new co. The question of the stamp duty payable on the sale agreement & other documents was submitted for adjudication, the co. contending that the sending of the letters of allotment constituted an "issue" of shares to the original allottees, & that the conditions of exemption from ad valorem duty laid down in the Finance Act, 1927 (c. 10), s. 55, were complied with. The Comrs. of Inland Revenue decided that ad valorem duty was payable:—Held: the allotment letter accompanied by the form of renunciation was not an issue of shares, but only notice that the allottee was entitled to demand that shares should be issued either to himself or, if he preferred it, to his nominee to be named in the form of renunciation. Therefore the Comrs. were right in claiming ad valorem duty.—OSWALD TILLOTSON, LTD. v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., [1933] 1 K. B. 134; 101 L. J. K. B. 737; 147 L. T. 481; 48 T. L. R. 628, C. A.

2589a. —— —— ——.]—Applt. co. in 1918 acquired all the issued ordinary shares of the C. Co. for a cash consideration. In 1936, it acquired practically all the issued preference shares, in consideration of the allotment of preference shares of applt. co. It was contended that the transfers effecting the acquisition of the preference shares in 1936 were exempt from stamp duty under Finance Act, 1927 (c. 10), s. 55:—Held: the consideration for the acquisition of the ordinary shares was cash, & not the allotment of shares, & it could not be said that applt. co. had increased its capital with a view to the acquisition of 90 per cent. of the share capital of the C. Co. The transfers were not entitled to the exemption claimed, & attracted the usual ad valorem conveyance duty.—LEVER BROS., LTD. v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., [1937] 4 All E. R. 227; 54 T. L. 2590a. —— —— ——.]—Those in control of deft. co. were desirous of converting it into a private co., & pltfs. were anxious to prevent this being done. With this purpose in view pltfs. executed 44 transfers, each being a transfer of five £1 shares for a stated consideration of £5. Each transfer was stamped 1*s.* (which is the correct duty on a transfer for £5), but bore no adjudication stamp. It was proved that no consideration money passed, & that the transfers were not transfers upon a sale of the shares. The co. refused to register the transfers for the reason that they were not duly stamped:—Held: (1) the co. was justified in refusing to register the transfers. The transfers, not being conveyances on sale, must be stamped either as voluntary conveyances, in which case Finance (1909–10) Act, 1910 (c. 8), s. 74 (2), required that the stamp duty should be adjudicated, or under Sched. to the Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), as conveyances or transfers of any kind not thereinbefore described, in which case that Act required them to be stamped 10*s.*; (2) following Maynard v. Consolidated Kent Collieries Corpn., [1903] 2 K. 2879a. ——— ———.]—(1) A private co. was governed partly by special arts. & partly by Table A. Table A, art. 70, fixed the qualification of a director as "the holding of at least one share." Special art. 20 empowered the directors to appoint any other "qualified person" either to fill a casual vacancy or as an addition to the board. At a full board meeting on Saturday, Nov. 14, transfers of shares to two outsiders were duly passed for registration, after which the transferees were forthwith elected directors. The transfers were registered on the following Monday:—Held: though before their appointment the transferees had acquired an absolute right to registration, they were not "qualified persons" before actual registration, & their appointment as directors was invalid.

(2) A director was due to retire by rotation at the annual general meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 11, & part of the business of which notice was given was the election of a director in his place. The retiring director's re-election was moved at the meeting, but the matter, though discussed, was not finally dealt with, & the meeting was adjourned successively to Thursday, Nov. 12, Saturday, Nov. 14, & Tuesday, Nov. 17. At the last adjournment the original motion for the retiring director's re-election was put & lost, & another shareholder was proposed & elected in his place:—Held: as the adjourned meeting was merely a continuation of the original meeting at which the question of the retiring director's re-election or replacement was considered, the proceedings were in order, & Table A, art. 82, had no application. The larger the business carried on by the co. the more numerous & the more important the matters that must of necessity be left to the managers, the accountants, & the rest of the staff.

(2) In ascertaining the duties of a director of a co., it is necessary to consider the nature of the co.'s business & the manner in which the work of the co. is, reasonably in the circumstances & consistently with the arts. of assocn., distributed between the directors & the other officials of the co.

(3) In discharging those duties, a director (a) must act honestly, & (b) must exercise such degree of skill & diligence as would amount to the reasonable care which an ordinary man might be expected to take, in the circumstances, on his own behalf. But,

11. ——.]—Two of the directors of an Alberta co. who, at the time in question, owned in the aggregate all but 40 of its 1,000 issued shares, & who managed its business virtually as a partnership, agreed to, & did, pay themselves a bonus, in cash & in shares owned by the co., as extra remuneration for their services. Under the arts. of assocn. the bonuses in question could have been authorised by the directors of the co. The only remaining director on learning of the arraugement approved of it ; & it appeared that all the shareholders had been willing that all the business of the co. should be carried on by said two directors without consultation with the shareholders. The payment of the bonuses was not, however, authorised at a directors' meeting or by a resolution signed by the directors ; nor was any shareholders' meeting held to pass on it, & it was not proven that both of the two remaining shareholders other than the directors had individually assented thereto. Subsequently under an agreement to which the co. was a party, deft. C., one of said two directors, sold his shares to the other at an agreed valuation based on the assumption that the bonuses had been legally paid. In an action by the co. to compel the return of the shares received by C. as such bonus or for damages in lieu thereof :—Held : in the absence of a directors' meeting or resolution signed by the directors, the payment of the bonuses was invalid, & the co. was entitled to judgment.—GRAY & FARR, LTD. v. CARLILE, [1931] 2 W. PART III. SECT. 28, SUB-SECT. 4.—C.

3058 i. —— Reasonable diligence.]—In discharging his duties, a director must act honestly & must exercise such degree of skill & diligence as would amount to the reasonable care which an ordinary man might be expected to take in the circumstances in his own behalf.—GOVIND NARAYAN v. RANGNATH GOPAL (1929), I. L. R. 54 Bom. 226.—IND.

(c) he need not exhibit in the performance of his duties a greater degree of skill than may reasonably be expected from a person of his knowledge & experience; in other words, he is not liable for mere errors of judgment; (d) he is not bound to give continuous attention to the affairs of his co.; his duties are of an intermittent nature to be performed at periodical board meetings, & at meetings of any committee to which he is appointed, & though not bound to attend all such meetings he ought to attend them when reasonably able to do so; & (e) in respect of all duties which, having regard to the exigencies of business & the arts. of assocn., may properly be left to some other official, he is, in the absence of grounds for suspicion, justified in trusting that official to perform such duties honestly.

(4) A director who signs a cheque that appears to be drawn for a legitimate purpose is not responsible for seeing that the money is in fact required for that purpose, or that it is subsequently applied for that purpose, assuming, of course, that the cheque comes before him for signature in the regular way, having regard to the usual practice of the co. A director must of necessity trust to the officials of the co. to perform properly & honestly the duties allocated to them.

Before any director signs a cheque, or parts with a cheque signed by him, he should satisfy himself that a resolution has been passed by the board, or committee of the board, as the case may be, authorising the signature of the cheque; & where a cheque has to be signed between meetings, he should obtain the confirmation of the board subsequently to his signature.

The authority given by the board or committee should not be for the signing of numerous cheques to an aggregate amount, but a proper list of the individual cheques, mentioning the payee & the amount of each, should be read out at the board or committee meeting & subsequently transcribed into the minutes of the meeting.

(5) It is the duty of each director to see that the co.'s moneys are from time to time in a proper state of investment, except so far as the arts. of assocn. may justify him in delegating that duty to others.

(6) Before presenting their annual report & balance sheet to their shareholders, & before recommending a dividend, directors should have a complete & detailed list of the co.'s assets & investments prepared for their own use & information, & ought not to be satisfied as to the value of their co.'s assets merely by the assurance of their chairman, however apparently distinguished & honourable, nor with the expression of the belief of their auditors, however competent & trustworthy.

(7) It is not the duty of a director of a big insurance co. to supervise personally the safe custody of the securities of the co. It would be impracticable, on every purchase of securities, for actual delivery thereof to be made to the directors, or, on every sale, for the delivery to the brokers of the securities sold to await a meeting of the board or of a committee of directors. The duty of seeing that the securities are in safe custody must of necessity be left to some official of the co. in daily attendance at the office of the co., such as the manager, accountant, or secretary.

(8) A co.'s stockbrokers, however respectable & responsible they may be, are not proper persons to have the custody of its securities except on such occasions when, for short periods, securities must of necessity be left with them; but immediately such necessity ceases the securities should be lodged in the co.'s strong room or with its bank, or placed in other proper & usual safe keeping.

(9) A director is not responsible for declaring a dividend unwisely. He is liable if he pays it out of capital, but the onus of proving that he has done so lies upon the liquidator who alleges it.

Art. 150 of the co.'s arts. of assocn. provided (inter alia) that none of the directors, auditors, secretary or other officers for the time being of the co. should be answerable for any loss, misfortune, or damage which might happen in the execution of their respective offices or trusts, or in relation thereto, unless the same should happen by or through their own wilful neglect or default respectively:—Held: (10) an act, or an omission to do an act, is wilful where the person who acts, or omits to act, knows what he is doing & intends to do what he is doing, but if that act or omission amounts to a breach of that person's duty, & therefore to negligence, he is not guilty of wilful neglect or default unless he knows that he is committing, & intends to commit, a breach of his duty, or is recklessly careless in the sense of not caring whether his act or omission is or is not a breach of his duty; (11) the immunity afforded by art. 150 was one of the terms upon which the directors held office in the co., & availed them as much on a misfeasance summons by the Official Receiver under 1908 Act, s. 215, as it would have done in an action by the co. against them for negligence; (12) upon the evidence & in accordance with the principles enunciated above, none of the resp. directors, other than the managing director, was liable.

(13) The measure of the auditor's responsibility depends upon the terms of his engagement. There may be a special contract defining the duties & liabilities of the auditors. If there is, then that contract governs the question. The arts. will, however, be looked at if there is no special agreement, because the auditors will presumably have taken their duties upon the terms, among others, set out in the arts. That is not to say that auditors can set aside a statutory obligation. No agreement or art. of assocn. can remove an imperative or statutory duty.

(14) Sect. 113 does not lay down a rigid code. The duty imposed on the auditors by it is not absolute, but depends upon the information given & explanations furnished to them, so that there is abundant scope for discretion. Art. 150 is not in conflict with the sect. The onus lies upon the auditors, who would not be excused for total omission to comply with any of the requirements of the sect., or for any consequences of deliberate or reckless indifferent failure to ask for information on matters which call for further explanation.

(15) An auditor is not justified in omitting to make personal inspection of securities that are in the custody of a person or co. with whom it is not proper that they should be left, whenever such personal inspection is practicable.

(16) When an auditor discovers that securities of the co. are not in proper custody, it is his duty to require that the matter be put right at once, or, if his requirement is not complied with, to report the fact to the shareholders, & this whether he can or cannot make a personal inspection.

Auditors should not be content with a certificate that securities are in the possession of a particular co., firm, or person unless the co., etc., is trustworthy, or, as it is sometimes put, respectable, & further is one that in the ordinary course of business keeps securities for its customers. In all these cases the auditor must use his judgment.

Where the auditors did not personally inspect the securities of the co. in the hands of the stockbrokers of the co., & accepted from time to time the certificate of the brokers that they held large blocks of such securities, & did not either insist upon those securities being put in proper custody or report the matter to the shareholders:—Held: (17) they committed a breach of duty, but, inasmuch as throughout the audit the auditors honestly & carefully discharged what they conceived to be the whole of their duty to the co., such negligence was not wilful, & art. 150 applied to exonerate them from liability.

Where the auditors after a full investigation in which they were misled & deceived, & their reports to the board suppressed, by the chairman of the co., (a) described large sums of money left in the hands of the co.'s stockbrokers & lent to the general manager of the co. as "Loans at call or short notice," "Loans" or "Cash at hand & in bank"; failed to discover that the co.'s stockbrokers, in order to reduce their indebtedness to the co. for the purposes of the audit, made purchases, on behalf of the co., immediately before the close of the co.'s financial year, of Treasury Bills which in fact never came into the possession of the co. & were sold immediately the new financial year had opened:—Held: (18) they were not guilty of any breach of duty as auditors.

The co. went into voluntary liquidation, & thereafter a director was indicted & tried for alleged fraud in relation to acts done by him as director prior to the date of the liquidation, the charges being that he had issued a fraudulent prospectus, & had fraudulently misapplied funds of the co. He was acquitted; & thereupon he lodged a claim in the liquidation for the expenses incurred by him in his defence. The liquidators rejected his claim:—Held: he was not entitled to his expenses either under the indemnity clause or at common law, in respect that expenses incurred in defending himself against an allegation that he did something, which he did not in fact do & which it was not his duty to do, were not expenses incurred by him as a director or as an agent of the co. in the discharge of his duties.—TOMLINSON v. SCOTTISH AMALGAMATED SILKS, LTD. After an order for the compulsory winding up of the co. appct. put in a proof for £950 in respect of directors' fees. The liquidator rejected the proof to the extent of £350, allowing only £600 on the ground that all directors' fees which had accrued due more than six years before the date of the winding-up order were barred by Stat. Limitations. The directors' fees due to appct. appeared from balance sheets duly signed by two directors & passed by the co. Upon a summons taken out by appct. asking that the decision of the liquidator rejecting his proof to the extent of £350 might be reversed, & that the proof might be allowed in the full sum of £950 :—Held : (1) a board of directors, acting as a board, & passing a resolution adopting a balance-sheet which includes directors' fees, does not bind the co. to pay those fees; (2) a balance-sheet so adopted & signed by directors pursuant to Cos. Special resolutions embodying that agreement were thereafter passed which provided also that the ordinary directors should have no right at directors' meetings to vote in respect of the co.'s financial affairs, & that with regard to other business they were to have only such rights of voting & control over the management as might be conferred upon them by the permanent directors. An accountant prepared a balance-sheet which showed the amount due to the co. by each of the two defts., & that balance-sheet, which was signed thus : " Peter Shaw, John Shaw, Directors," was adopted at a general meeting of the co. at which defts. were present.

permanent directors, at a meeting to which none of the ordinary directors was summoned, resolved that instructions be given for writs to be issued against defts. for the recovery of the debts owing by them, & although by a resolution passed subsequently by the shareholders at an extraordinary meeting of the co. the chairman was directed to discontinue proceedings, a writ was issued against each deft. claiming the amount as "found & admitted by deft. to be due to pltfs. as shown by pltfs.' balance-sheet." In this case, however, the ct. had not with regard to matters of fact the information necessary for deciding whether effect should be given to the objection to the competency of the actions & the objection therefore failed; (2) as to the cause of action relied upon: by the whole ct., the balance-sheet was not an account stated involving a fresh promise by defts. to pay the amounts debited to them therein, inasmuch as it was signed by them not animo contrahendi but in performance of their duties as directors.—SHAW (JOHN) & SONS (SALFORD), LTD. v. SHAW, [1935] 2 K. 3157a. —— Presumption of authority.]—Pltfs. were a firm of fruit brokers. Defts. & the P. Co. were two cos. engaged in the fruit trade. M. was a director of both cos. By art. 28 of the arts. of deft. co. the directors were empowered to "delegate any of the powers for the time being vested in the directors." The arts. also incorporated Table A. M. purported to make on behalf of defts. an agreement with pltfs. that in consideration of pltfs. advancing a sum of money to the P. Co., pltfs. should have the right to sell on commission all the fruit imported both by defts. & the P. Co., & that pltfs. should be entitled to retain the proceeds of sale of defts.' fruit as well as of that of the P. Co. as security for the advance. M. had no authority from defts. to make such a contract. Pltfs. requiring confirmation of the agreement by deft. co., the secretary of defts. wrote a letter purporting to confirm the agreement on behalf of defts., & pltfs., treating that as a sufficient confirmation, made the advance. The secretary had no authority to give such confirmation. Defts. subsequently repudiated the agreement as made without their authority. At the time that they made the advance pltfs. had no knowledge of the terms of defts.' arts. or that they incorporated Table A:—Held: whether the agreement was to be treated as having been made by M. as an ordinary "director" of deft. co., or by the secretary as "agent," or by the two combined, pltfs. were not entitled to assume that any authority to make it had been delegated to them by the board, because (1) although a person who contracts with an individual director or servants of a co., knowing that the board of directors has power to delegate its authority to such an individual, may in certain circumstances assume that power of delegation has been exercised & that he may safely deal with the individual in question as representing the co., he cannot rely on the supposed exercise of such power if he did not know of the existence of the power at the time that he made the contract; (2) there was something so unusual in an agreement to apply the money of one co. in payment of the debt of another that pltfs. were put upon inquiry to ascertain whether the person or persons making the contract had any authority in fact to make it; (3) even if pltfs. had known of the existence of the express power of delegation, they would not have been entitled to assume that it had been exercised in favour of M. or the secretary to any greater extent than was to be inferred from the positions which M. & the secretary respectively occupied or were held out by the co. as occupying.—HOUGHTON & CO. v. NOTHARD, LOWE & WILLS, [1927] 1 K. 3301 i. Estoppel of shareholders.]—Deft. brewing co. was incorporated under Dominion Cos. Act in 1924. In 1926 the C. co. was organised, also with a Dominion charter & with substantially the same incorporators & officers, to act as the agent of the brewing co. to promote the sales of its products. By an agreement between the two cos., the prices which the C. co. was to collect from customers upon sales, as well as the rates at which they were to remit when so collected, were fixed, the difference in favour of the C. co. constituting their remuneration for services to be rendered. Pltf. a shareholder & director of both cos. brought this action on behalf of himself & all other shareholders of the two cos. against the two cos. & four individual defts., who were shareholders directors & officers of both cos. to compel the individual defts. to pay back into the treasury or either or both cos. sums alleged to have been improperly paid to them by the cos. in 1927, 1928, & 1929. These sums were paid to the individual defts. for "promotion expenses" :—Held : in so far as the action rested upon the contention that the moneys paid by the brewing co. to the C. co. were improperly paid, it failed for the reason that pltf. himself received & still retained a portion of those moneys, & was not therefore in a position to complain either individually, or as a shareholder of the brewing co.—SHIESEL v. KIRSH, [1931] 1 D. At the end of the time he ceased, in accordance with sect. 141 (3) of 1929 Act, to be a director, but continued to act & to receive remuneration as a director, thus incurring penalties under sub-sect. (5). Later, he was re-appointed by the board pursuant to the co.'s arts. of assocn., retired, & was re-elected by the shareholders. He applied to the ct. by petition under sect. 372 (2) for relief against any liability which he had incurred by acting & receiving remuneration as a director after he had ceased to be a director : —Held : the ct. has jurisdiction under sect. 372 (1) to relieve a director who has acted as a director without having obtained qualification shares within the prescribed period from the penalties imposed by sect. 141.

But semble, the ct. will in general decline to relieve a director from liability to repay money to a co. or its liquidator in the absence of evidence as to the wishes of the shareholders or, if the co. is insolvent, of the creditors.—Re BARRY & STAINES LINOLEUM, LTD., [1934] Ch. 227; 103 L. 3345b. —— —— Invalid appointment of director.]—L. F. owned the greater part of the shares of J. F. & Son, Ltd. His wife was appointed director in his lifetime, & also in his lifetime one C. C. was appointed a director. The latter never took up his qualification shares, &, although he continued to act & was treated as a director, he in law ceased to be such in 1933. L. F. died in 1934, & his wife, being in bad health, then went to the South of France, it being expected that her stay there would be a temporary one, but in fact she never returned. The directors at their meeting in the autumn of 1934 proposed to recommend to the annual general meeting of the co. that she should receive remuneration at the rate of £8 per week as from Feb. 10, 1934, & that proposal was accepted & confirmed at the annual general meeting. It appeared, however, that there was not a quorum at that meeting, & payments made under the resolution were sought to be recovered from L. F.'s wife & the two persons who voted at the meeting. It was contended that this was a proper case for relief under 1929 Act, s. 372, as the persons in question had acted honestly & reasonably, & ought fairly to be excused :—Held : though the defect in the resolution was a mere technicality, the appointment of the director being invalid, this was not a case in which, in all the circumstances of the case, any of the parties ought fairly to be excused for the breach of trust in making the improper payments.—Re FRANKLIN (J.) & SON, LTD., [1937] 4 All E. 3455b. —— Failure to re-elect or replace.]—By art. 97 of a co.'s arts., "At the second ordinary general meeting in each calendar year, one-third of the directors . . . shall retire from office. A retiring director shall retain office until the dissolution of the meeting at which his successor is elected." By art. 100, "If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the retiring directors or some of them are not filled up, then, subject to any resolution reducing the number of directors, the retiring directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up & may be willing to act, shall be deemed to have been re-elected" :—Held : if a retiring director was not re-elected, & if his place was not filled up at the same meeting, he retained office until his retirement by rotation, since by art 100 he was to be deemed to have been re-elected & therefore there was no vacancy to which a successor could subsequently be elected.—HOLT v. CATTERALL (1931), 47 T. L. R. 332.

3455c. —— Construction of articles.]—Art. 85 of a co.'s arts. of assocn. provides that "at the ordinary meeting in 1925 & every subsequent year, one-third, or the nearest number next below one-third, of the whole number of directors shall retire from office," that a retiring director is to be eligible for re-election at the meeting at which he retires & shall act as director throughout that meeting, & that the directors to retire in 1925, "unless the directors agree among themselves, shall be determined by ballot" & those to retire in every subsequent year "shall be those who have been longest in office since their last election & when two or more of such directors shall have served for an equal period, then their retirement shall be determined by ballot." In 1935 the board consisted of the chairman & seven other directors. Of these the managing director was by art. 101 not liable to retire by rotation or be taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement, & two others were additional directors appointed under art. 90, which provided that any additional director should hold office "only until the next following ordinary general meeting of the co." No question arose as to the first director to retire, but if a second director had to retire a selection had to be made between the pltf. & the chairman who had held office as directors for an equal period :—Held : (1) the words "by ballot" in art. 85 meant "by lot"; (2) "the whole number of directors" under art. 85 of whom a proportion was to retire did not include the additional directors, who by art. 90 only held office until the ordinary general meeting, seeing that the directors to retire fell by art. 85 to be determined at that meeting. It followed that one director only had to retire.—EYRE v. MILTON PROPRIETARY, LTD., [1936] Ch. 244; 105 L. J. Ch. 121; 154 L. T. 120; 52 T. L. R. 208; 80 Sol. Jo. 15, C. A.

3455d. Effect on contract of service.]—Pltfs. entered into an agreement with deft. co., a private co. under 1929 Act, to act as managers, buyers & supervisors for a term of 5 years. The agreement provided that it should be ipso facto determined upon either of pltfs. at any time vacating his or her office as director, but neither of them should at any time during its continuance resign his or her directorship or disqualify himself or herself from holding such office. At the first ordinary general meeting of the co., when pltfs. would, under Table A, art. 73, which was incorporated in the co.'s articles, automatically vacate their offices as directors, but be eligible for re-election, the chairman, who was the governing director, proposed a resolution that another person be appointed director in place of one of pltfs. & that the remaining vacancy be left unfilled. This resolution was after adjournments passed. Deft. co. then treated the agreement as terminated, & pltfs. brought this action for wrongful dismissal :—Held : (1) if pltfs. had been re-elected, or not being re-elected there had been no resolution to fill up the vacated office, there would have been no vacation of their offices; (2) the provision in the agreement for its termination did not apply only to voluntary resignation, & pltfs.' offices as directors had by reason of the passing of the resolution been ipso facto determined under the first part of the clause.—WALKER v. KENNS, LTD., [1937] 1 All E. 3491a. —— —— Effect of voluntary winding-up.]—By an agreement in writing made between pltf. & deft. co. pltf. was appointed managing director of the co. for a term of 5¼ years at a fixed salary. Before the expiration of that period the co. passed a resolution, which was assented to by pltf., for the voluntary winding up of the co. on the ground that by reason of its liabilities it could not continue its business. Pltf. thereupon brought an action claiming damages for repudiation of the agreement :—Held : a term could not be implied in the agreement that if the co. should be wound up voluntarily & pltf. should vote for that course being adopted, his employment should cease so as to disentitle him to damages for breach or the agreement. Pltf. was therefore entitled to damages for breach of the agreement.—FOWLER v. COMMERCIAL TIMBER CO., LTD., [1930] 2 K. B. 1; 99 L. J. K. B. 529; 143 L. T. 391, C. A.

3497a. —— Failure to obtain qualification shares—Recovery on quantum meruit.]—Pltf. was appointed managing director of a co. by an agreement under the co.'s seal which also provided for his remuneration. By the arts. of assocn. of the co. each director was required to obtain his qualification shares within two months after his appointment. Neither pltf. nor the other directors obtained their qualification shares within two months or at all. Pltf. having done work for the co. claimed to recover the remuneration provided for in the agreement, or, alternatively, on the basis of a quantum meruit :—Held : the fact that pltf. did the work under an agreement which was in the fact void did not disentitle him from recovering on a quantum meruit.—CRAVEN-ELLIS v. CANONS, LTD., [1936] 2 K. 3500a. Power to provide for employees—Grant of pension.]—A private co., the articles of which authorised the directors to provide for the welfare of employees & their widows & children, entered into a deed of covenant by which it granted a pension of £500 a year to the widow of a former managing director five years after his death. Some three years later the co. passed a resolution for voluntary winding-up. The widow lodged a proof in the winding-up for the capitalised value of the annuity, but the liquidator rejected it :—Held : the transaction was not one for the benefit of the co. or reasonably incidental to the co.'s business. The pension did not come within the terms of the co.'s articles, as a managing or other director is not a person in the employment of a co., & the action of the directors was not confirmed by the shareholders in general meeting convened for the purpose of doing so. The grant of the pension was therefore void & ultra vires the co.—Re LEE, BEHRENS & CO., LTD., [1932] 2 Ch. 46; 101 L. J. Ch. 183; 147 L. T. 348; 48 T. L. R. 248; [1931] B. & C. R. 160.

The balance sheet of the co., for the year ending Mar. 31, 1935, showed a profit of £698 11*s.* 10*d.*, which sum the directors used for writing off preliminary expenses & in making a transfer to certain reserve accounts. 3560a. Remuneration by commission—Amount recoverable—How calculated.]—Applt., pltf. in the action, was for many years secretary of resp. co. Originally he received a fixed salary per week, but in 1916 an agreement was made between him & one A. S., managing director of resp. co., to the effect that in addition to his weekly salary he was to receive 10 per cent. on the balance of profits after payment of 12½ per cent. dividend. In 1926 applt. quarrelled with A. S. & left the service of resps., & shortly afterwards he brought this action for an account of the sums due to him as commission & for payment of the amount found to be due. It appeared that nearly all the capital of the resp. co. was held by A. S. & his family, & that he, as managing director, had entire control of the co.'s business. During applt.'s tenure of office A. S., with the connivance & assistance of applt., habitually appropriated funds of the co. to his own purposes. Applt. in framing his claim for commission contended (i) that the 12½ per cent. dividend referred to in the agreement must be a dividend subject to income-tax; (ii) that the 12½ per cent. dividend must be limited to an amount representing 12½ per cent. on the capital of the co. at the date of the agreement & had no application to subsequent increases of capital; & (iii) that for the purpose of calculating his commission he was entitled to reintroduce into the accounts all the sums which had been unlawfully applied for the benefit of A. S. personally:—Held: (1) the 12½ per cent. dividend must be a dividend subject to income-tax; the 12½ per cent. dividend must be measured on the capital as it stood in each year when the accounts were made up; & in reckoning the amount on which commission must be paid no account could be taken of the sums which ought to have been included in the profits but had been misappropriated by A. S.; (2) although applt. had been guilty of misconduct in relation to the affairs of resps., he was entitled to recover moneys which were already due to him for work done on resps.' behalf, & the remedy of resps. was an action or counterclaim for damages for breach of duty.—RAMSDEN v. SHARRATT (DAVID) & SONS, LTD. This branch manager, without having in fact received any authority from the co., & acting in fraud of the co., drew seven bills of exchange on behalf of the co. signed "S.C., Manchester manager." The bills were drawn to the order of the co., they were accepted by C. & W. & indorsed on behalf of the co. "S.C., Manchester manager." 3661 i. General rule.]—Persons who continue from year to year to assume the duties of auditors must be held to have agreed to conduct their work in a reasonably skilful & careful manner. In an action in which defts. auditors were held liable in damages for negligence in not detecting defalcations by the pltf.'s accountant, it was held that there was ample justification for the belief of pltf.'s shareholders that the report pltf. was receiving annually from defts. provided for such an audit as would reasonably catch such thefts & manipulations of the books as said employee had been guilty of. Defts. were not justified in taking directions from another employee, the manager, whom also they were required to check, as to whether it was necessary to do certain work of checking. Since defts. were aware that pltf.'s system of checking was faulty & that the danger of theft was always present, the default of pltf., or of its employees other than the accused in not remedying that situation did not excuse the continuing negligence of defts. The fact that pltf. had received from bonding cos. the greater part of the loss it had sustained was not a defence to the action. Any possible issue arising from such payment might be left to be determined between pltf. & said cos. on defts. making payment, or, alternatively, if defts. so required, the form of judgment might provide for notice to any parties, such as the bonding cos., presumed to have an interest therein.—INTERNATIONAL LABORATORIES, LTD. v. DEWAR, [1932] 3 W. 3661 ii. ——.]—The extent of the duty & liability of an auditor depends on the terms of his employment in the particular case, & on the book-keeping methods used, to the knowledge of his employer, by the latter's officials.—JAMIESON, AUSTIN & MITCHELL, LTD. v. BATTRUM, [1934] 1 W. W. R. 324.—CAN.

3668 i. As to balance sheet.]—Although an auditor of a co. is not an insurer, & does not guarantee that the books of the co. show the true position of its affairs or that his balance-sheet is accurate according to the books, it is his duty to ascertain & certify to the shareholders the true financial position of the co. at the time of the audit so far as reasonable care & skill on his part discloses it; it is not sufficient for him to ascertain that the balance-sheet corresponds to the books, he must take reasonable care to ascertain that the books themselves show the true position. It is his duty to report & comment on any item in the balance-sheet furnished by the directors which either appears or is found from investigation to call for comment or explanation. An auditor who gives shareholders means of information instead of information in respect of a co.'s financial position does so at his peril, & runs the very serious risk of being held, judicially, to have failed to have discharged his duty. When it is shown that the audited balance-sheets do not show the true condition of the co. & that damage has resulted the onus is on the auditor to show that such damage is not the result of any breach of duty on his part.—BLUE BAND NAVIGATION CO., LTD. 3704a. —— Interference by court.]—It is for the shareholders, & not for the ct., to say whether an alteration of the articles is for the benefit of the co., provided that it is not of such a character as that no reasonable men could so regard it.

The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that pltf. & four others should be the first directors of the co., & that they should be permanent directors, & that each of them should be entitled to hold office so long as he should live unless he should become disqualified from any one of six specified events. Owing to irregularities in the accounts furnished by pltf. of sums received by him on the co.'s account an extraordinary general meeting of the co. was held & a special resolution was passed that the articles should be altered by adding a seventh event disqualifying a director, namely, a request in writing by all his co-directors that he should resign his office. Such a request was subsequently made to the pltf. There was no evidence of bad faith on the part of the shareholders. In an action by pltf. for breach of an alleged contract contained in the original articles that he should be a permanent director, & for a declaration that he was still a director of the co. :—Held : the contract, if any, between pltf. & the co. contained in the articles in their original form was subject to the statutory power of alteration & that if the alteration was bonâ fide for the benefit of the co. it was valid & there was no breach of that contract ; there was no ground for saying that the alteration could not reasonably be considered for the benefit of the co. ; therefore, there being no evidence of bad faith, there was no ground for questioning the decision of the shareholders that the alteration was for the benefit of the co. ; &, consequently, pltf. was not entitled to the relief claimed.—SHUTTLEWORTH v. COX BROTHERS & CO. Subsequently the capital of the co. was increased by the issue of preferred ordinary shares with the right to a non-cumulative preferential dividend of 10 per cent. payable in respect of each year exclusively out of the profits earned in each year & to rank after the preference shares. 3943a. ——— ——— ———.]—A co. was incorporated as a trust investment co., the objects as defined by clause 3 of its memorandum of assocn. including (a) to acquire & hold stocks, shares & securities of the classes therein specified & from time to time to change such investments for others of the like nature, & (b) to borrow on debenture stock & to redeem or pay off any moneys so borrowed. The business & accounts of the co. were conducted & kept, as required by the articles of assocn., on the footing that profit or loss on a change of investment was carried to capital account, & net receipts over expenditure were carried to revenue account & became available for payment of dividends without regard to any depreciation in the market value of the co.'s investments. In 1900 the co. issued at par debenture stock. In 1918, owing to the general fall in the value of securities, the directors were enabled to redeem some of this debenture stock at a discount, & they claimed the right to carry the whole amount of this discount to revenue account. The investments forming the assets of the co. had fallen to an extent approximately equivalent to the discount at which the debenture stock had been redeemed :—Held : (1) apart from the special provisions of the articles of assocn., the single item of gain by redemption of debenture stock could not be dissociated from the loss of capital assets, & that the amount of the discount was not distributable as dividend; (2) the issue of loan capital was not one of the objects or part of the business of the co., but was a power to be exercised incidentally to, & in furtherance of, its objects, & even if the discount was otherwise divisible as net profit, such a division would be prohibited by the fact that it did not arise out of the co.'s business.—WALL v. LONDON & PROVINCIAL TRUST, LTD., [1920] 2 Ch. 582; 90 L. The by-laws of the co. provided that the directors might before declaring any dividend set aside out of profits such sums as they should think proper as a reserve. Arrears of dividend—Distribution.]—The memorandum of assocn. of a co. provided for the payment on the ordinary shares of the co. of a cumulative dividend not exceeding 5 per cent. per annum & for any balance of profits being applied for the benefit of a garden city or its inhabitants. Art. 129 of the arts. of assocn. provided that, subject to the rights of holders of debentures & preference shares, the net profits of the co., after providing for a reserve fund & for depreciation, "shall be divided by way of dividend among the members in proportion to the amount paid on the ordinary shares held by them respectively, but so that the dividends upon the ordinary shares for any year shall not exceed the aggregate rate of 5 per cent. per annum. The surplus of the net profits of the co. after payment of such dividends & the amount necessary to make up dividends for past years to the rate of 5 per cent. per annum shall be applied" for the benefit of the town or its inhabitants as therein mentioned. The co. from time to time over a number of years issued ordinary shares. From 1904 to 1917 no dividend was paid on the ordinary shares, & it was only since 1923 that a full dividend of 5 per cent. had been paid. There were now profits available for payment of arrears of dividend, after payment of the dividend for the current year, but not sufficient to pay the whole of the arrears:—Held: the fund available should be distributed ratably among the shareholders according to the respective amounts of the arrears of dividend payable on the shares held by them respectively.—FIRST GARDEN CITY v. BONHAM-CARTER, [1928] Ch. 53; 97 L. 4023a. —— ——.]—By its memorandum of assocn. a co. as an attraction to participating preference shareholders, provided for the constitution of a reserve fund of £50,000 to be accumulated from the profits of the co. after certain dividend payments had been made. The arts. of assocn. of the co., however, also authorised the setting aside of a reserve fund out of profits, in addition to the reserve fund empowered by the memorandum, & the fund set aside under the arts. was, according to the arts., to be used to meet contingencies, or for special dividends, or for repairing, improving, & maintaining the property of the co. & for such other purposes as the directors should in their absolute discretion think conducive to the interests of the co. The arts. also provided that the reserve fund to be set aside under the memorandum should be kept invested outside the business "until required for any of the above purposes" :—Held : the memorandum & the arts. might be read together to explain any ambiguity appearing in the terms of the memorandum or to supplement it on any matter on which it was silent, but that in the present case, as there was no ambiguity, the reserve fund authorised by the memorandum having been created for the benefit & protection of the preference shareholders, the two documents could not be read together, & it was ultra vires the directors of the co. to use the memorandum reserve fund of £50,000 for any of the purposes set out in the arts. of assocn.—ANGOSTURA BITTERS (DR. 4050a. —— Under agreement—To repurchase shares—Allotted in consideration of advance to company—Lender requiring repayment of loan.]—Pltf., with the view to assist his son-in-law in obtaining the appointment of business manager of a limited co. of which the two defts. were directors & shareholders, entered into a written agreement with the co. & defts. to advance to the co. a sum of £1,500 by the purchase of 1,500 £1 preference shares of the co., the repayment of that sum being secured by the co.'s undertaking, in the event of pltf. or his son-in-law terminating that agreement, to procure the repurchase of the shares at par & to secure the purchase money therefor by accepting bills drawn by pltf.: & in that arrangement the two defts. joined as sureties guaranteeing the due performance by the co. of its part of the agreement. Pltf., accordingly, advanced £1,500 to the co., & accepted transfers from the co. of the same number of its preference shares. Upon the son-in-law desiring to withdraw from the managership, pltf. in pursuance of a power in that behalf contained therein gave the co. notice to terminate the agreement & required the co. to procure the repurchase of the shares & to accept his bills for £1,500; but the co. refused to comply with those requirements & denied liability under the agreement on the ground that the performance of it would involve a purchase by the co. of its own shares, & would therefore be ultra vires & illegal. such a requisition of the utmost importance; for, according to that section, every contract entered into by an instrument not under their common seal would be unilateral as regards them—a contract under which they would be liable, but of which they could not claim the benefit against those with whom it was entered into.

(3) There is, no doubt, an important distinction to be drawn, & it is drawn in the case of Royal British Bank v. Turquand, No. 4094, ante, between that which, upon the face of it, is manifestly imperfect when tested by the requirements of the deed of settlement of the co., & that which contains nothing to indicate that those requirements have not been complied with. Thus, where the deed requires certain instruments to be under the common seal of the co., every person contracting with the co. can see at once whether that requisition is complied with, & he is bound to do so; but where, as in the case I have last referred to, the conditions required by the deed consist of certain internal arrangements of the co. for instance resolutions at meetings, & the like, if the party contracting with the directors find the acts which they undertake to do to be within the scope of their powers under the deed, he has a right to assume that all such conditions have been complied with. In the case last supposed, he is not bound to inquire whether the resolutions have been duly passed, or the like, otherwise he would be bound to go further back, & to inquire whether the meetings have been duly summoned, & to ascertain a variety of other matters, into which if it were necessary to make such inquiry, it would be impossible for the co. to carry on the business for which it is formed.—Re ATHENÆUM LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY. Ex p. EAGLE INSURANCE CO. 4129a. —— Borrowing.]—A trading co. was by its memorandum of assocn. empowered, inter alia, to raise capital & to borrow money by deeds of hypothecation, & to act through agents. The only reference to borrowing contained in the arts. of assocn. was a provision that the directors might borrow money. There was no express power of delegation by the directors. By various powers of attorney, the co. appointed agents, not directors, who were empowered, inter alia, to borrow money on the security of the co.'s goods, railway receipts, bills of lading or other documents of title. These agents borrowed money principally upon the security of letters of hypothecation relating to goods & produce in the co.'s go-downs. The co. was free to deal with the goods & produce in the ordinary course of business, & the contents of the go-downs therefore changed frequently. In some of the printed forms of letter of hypothecation the spaces for the names of the places at which the go-downs were situated were left blank, & at the end of the form, after the signature, a list of places was set out. One of the co.'s agents borrowed sums in excess of the value of the goods. A bank which held certain letters of hypothecation, acting upon a licence to seize contained in letters from the co., seized all the goods to which it had access by the terms of such letters of hypothecation:—Held: (1) the fact that the arts. of assocn. empowered the directors to borrow, did not restrict the co.'s general power to borrow, which it could exercise through properly authorised agents; (2) in the absence of anything in the memorandum or arts. of assocn. restricting the co.'s power to borrow through agents, borrowing by such agents was within their ostensible authority, the precise limits of the agents' power to borrow being a matter of internal management into which a lender would not be required to inquire. The co. was, therefore, bound even by the excessive borrowings of the appointed agents, so long as those borrowings were within the ostensible authority of the agents; (3) the letters of 4267a. —— ——.]—Two rival cos., the N. Co. & the W. Co., formed resp. co. to take over certain branches of their business of fruit importers, the shares of the new co. being equally divided between the two old cos., & the board consisting of two directors of the N. Co., namely, M. & G. Lowe, & two directors of the W. Co. By a brokerage agreement embodied in a letter dated in July, 1924, between M. Lowe & applts., a firm of fruit brokers, it was arranged that applts. should make certain advances to the N. co. & should receive all fruit consigned either to the N. co. or to resp. co. & keep back 70 per cent. of the net proceeds in reduction of the advances, & it was stipulated that resp. co. should subscribe to this arrangement. Applts. also obtained a guarantee of the loan from the two Lowes & a third director of the N. Co., who was also the secretary of resp. co. This arrangement was not ratified by any agreement under the seal of resp. co., but the secretary wrote to applts. purporting to confirm the arrangement on behalf of his co. The directors of resp. co., other than the two Lowes, first became aware of the arrangement after it had been in operation for some months, & it was then put an end to. Applts. had obtained fruit consigned to resp. co. on board several ships without production of the bills of lading, on giving an indemnity to the ships, & they sued resp. co. for delivery of the bills of lading. Resps. counterclaimed for the proceeds of fruit belonging to them & not accounted for :—Held : (1) the arrangement contained in the agreement of July was not authorised by resp. co. ; (2) resp. co. were not estopped from denying the existence of the arrangement by the knowledge of the Lowes, inasmuch as they were parties to the wrong done to the co., or by the omission of the other directors to inspect the accounts of the co., which would have disclosed the arrangement.—HOUGHTON (J. Pltf. procured from S. the co.'s promissory note, payable to pltf., on account of pltf.'s charges & outgoings in connection with the litigation. When the promissory note fell due, it was retired upon part payment & the giving of a new promissory note for the balance, made by the co. & payable to pltf. In an action by pltf. upon this promissory note :—Held : since pltf. had failed to show, as in the circumstances he must show, that the promissory note was given by the co. for good consideration & as part of or in aid of some business transaction of the co., the co. was not liable to pltf. on the note.—WOOLF v. SNIPE S. 4239 i. Signature—Promissory note—Authority—Whether bank bound to inquire.]—The co. was incorporated by Dominion Letters Patent on May 25, 1927, & went into liquidation in June, 1929. Applt. bank filed its claim in respect of five promissory notes made by S., as president, on behalf of the co. & amounting to $28,768.02. The liquidator called upon the bank to prove its claim before the Superior Ct. The notes were signed in blank by S. alone & were handed to L., the New York buying agent of the co., to be filled in & used by L. in payment of goods bought or to be bought by the co. L. filled the blank note forms with the names of two other cos. owned & controlled by him, being also at that time the owner of all the shares of the insolvent co. The notes were indorsed to applt. bank, & it is admitted that the bank was a holder in due course. S. was the only witness at the trial ; he produced a by-law of the insolvent co. providing inter alia that "all cheques . . . notes . . . shall be signed by such officer . . . of the co. & in such manner as shall from time to time be determined by resolution of the Board of Directors," & he also produced a resolution of the directors pursuant to the by-law which provides "that all notes . . . be signed by the president & countersigned by the auditor . . .," of which resolution applt. bank had no knowledge :—Held : applt. bank, being a holder in due course, was entitled to rank as a creditor of the insolvent co. The notes were made in general accordance with the authority of the president under the by-law of the co., & it was not necessary for applt. bank to inquire into the authority of the president to sign the notes on behalf of the co. Under sect. 106*d* of the Dominion Cos. Act, the president had to be one of the directors ; &, under sect. 37, the only persons who could make notes on behalf of the co. would be those designated in the by-law. Persons dealing with a co. are presumed to have notice of what is contained in the Act under which the co. was incorporated & the Letters Patent ; &, in a case like the present, where the Act refers specifically to the by-laws as the place where the authority of an officer or an agent to sign promissory notes is to be found, the person taking a note made by an officer is under obligation to ascertain from the by-laws that the officer who signed the note might have been authorised to make such note in the course of the co.'s business ; but he is not obliged to go further & inquire whether the directors passed the resolution which would give the officer express authority. That constitutes part of the co.'s "indoor management." If the officer might, under the by-laws, have been authorised to make the note, the making of it was within his ostensible powers & was "in general accordance with his powers as such under the by-laws."—Re ALMUR FUR TRADING CO., BANK OF UNITED STATES v. ROSS, [1932] S. 4307a. Extension of objects to new trades.]—A co. incorporated for the primary object of acquiring & carrying on two businesses, one that of a private co. making & selling footwear & clothing, but with other wide powers, & the other that of a retailer of footwear, petitioned the ct. for sanction to an extension of its objects, as set out in its memorandum of association, to the carrying on of a large number of different retail trades, including that of universal stores. The extension was approved by the co. in general meeting without opposition, but the petition was opposed by certain preference shareholders: —Held : there being no evidence that the proposed alterations were necessary or proper to enable the co.'s business to be carried on more efficiently, & as the trades it was proposed to take power to work were entirely outside the original objects of the co., the ct. would refuse to sanction the petition.

On appeal additional evidence was adduced to show that a large number of the trades to which it was sought to extend the co.'s objects were already being carried on by the co., & that to this extent the object of the petition was to regularise the position, & further that during the year 1934 a small profit had been made by the co. as opposed to the loss suffered in 1933 :—Held : in view of the further evidence the alterations in the objects, when limited so as to give power to carry on only those trades which were already being carried on by the co., should be sanctioned.—Re BOLSOM BROS. It appeared that, in the course of its existing business, the co. was in the habit of purchasing hops from persons who also grew fruit, & of selling hops, malt, & barley to persons engaged in the refreshment trade; & in these circumstances, the co. maintained that it could conveniently engage in business of the character proposed. Upon petition to the ct. to sanction the consequent modifications of the memorandum of assocn.:—Held: the proposed alterations did not affect the real object of the co., which was the improvement of poultry husbandry; they were ancillary to the main object, & were alterations within the words "with respect to the objects of the co." in Cos. Act, 1929 (c. 23), s. 5 (1); they appeared to be to enable the co. 4570a. Assignment to secure personal debt of directors—Directors sole shareholders.]—As additional security for an advance to three partners, who, in addition to & apart from the partnership, were directors of a limited co., a bank accepted a document charging the co.'s interest in certain bonds which had been deposited with the bank to meet any judgment which might be obtained against the co. in then impending litigation. The document was signed by the three partners & the co.'s seal was affixed thereto, accompanied by the signature of one of the partners as president & of another as secretary of the co. No resolution was ever passed, either by the co. or by the directors, authorising the creation of the charge. The partners held all the shares in the co. except two which were held by two other directors of the co. There were also persons equitably interested in the shares. The litigation against the co. was concluded substantially in the co.'s favour, & the bank claimed the balance of the proceeds of sale of the bonds in reduction of the partners' indebtedness :—Held : as the co., acting through its directors, & not by its shareholders in general meeting, had purported to apply its property for the benefit of those directors, the transaction was unenforceable, & the ct. would not inquire whether the co. had derived any benefit from it. The bank was, therefore, bound to account to the co. for the balance of the proceeds of sale of the bonds.—E. B. M. Co., LTD. v. DOMINION BANK, [1937] 3 All E. R. 555; 81 Sol. Jo. 814, P. C.

The ct. refused the motion, as it did not appear by "credible testimony" that pursuers would be unable to pay defender's expenses if he were successful, in respect that a later balance-sheet showed that the financial depression from which pursuers had been suffering was passing off, &, further, in respect that pursuers had a responsible directorate & a profitable record in the past, & that there was no suggestion that any creditor was pressing them for payment which he was unable to get.—EDINBURGH ENTERTAINMENTS, LTD. v. STEVENSON, [1925] S. Among its objects were the formation of a guarantee fund; the receipt of subscriptions thereto from persons, whether members of the co. or not, for the purpose of carrying out its objects & defraying its expenses; & the assignation of the letters of guarantee to any corporation which might give it credit. The co. obtained an undertaking from a firm, which was not one of its members, to pay a proportion of any loss arising in connection with the holding of the exhibition. It subsequently assigned the undertaking to a bank which had given it credit. A loss having occurred, the bank sued the firm upon the guarantee. The defenders contended that the assignation was ultra vires, having been made at a time when the co. was not in liquidation :—Held : the assignation was valid, in respect that the guarantee fund was not capital of the co. within the meaning of sects. 2 & 4 (1) (v) of 1908 Act, which could only come under the control of the co. or its directors in the event of liquidation, but formed an independent fund of credit to which an assignee could make good his right on the happening of the event on which the guarantee was contingent.—LLOYDS BANK, LTD. v. MORRISON & SON, [1927] S. 4699a. Effect of section—Redemption of debenture—Remedies of liquidator.]—A co., which had become insolvent, issued to a trustee, as security for some of their debts, a debenture which was to rank as a first charge on the co.'s assets & as a floating security only. Subsequently the co. sold the goodwill of its business, & out of the proceeds paid to the trustee the amount required to discharge the debenture. Within three months from the issue of the debenture a different creditor of the co. obtained a winding-up order. The liquidator took out a summons to set aside the charge created by the debenture & to recover the money paid under it :—Held : though under 1908 Act, s. 212, the charge was invalid, the amount paid could not be recovered on the summons, but it would be open to the liquidator either to apply to set aside the payment as a fraudulent preference within sect. 210, or to question the validity of the debenture on any other ground.—Re PARKES GARAGE (SWADLINCOTE), LTD., [1929] 1 Ch. 139 ; 98 L. 4707a. "Cash paid"—Need not be unconditional payment.]—Early in 1932 a co. which was in financial difficulty & insolvent obtained a loan from its chairman, who was also a partner in a firm which supplied the bulk of its stock of goods to the co. He thought that an advance might save the co., but before making any advance ascertained from his partners that they would only consent to continue to supply the co. with goods on credit if the past debt to the firm of £1,954 was paid. He therefore advanced to the co. £3,000 on the security of a third debenture, dated Mar. 24, 1932, after arranging with the co. that out of this sum £1,954 should be applied in paying the past debt to the firm. In July, 1932, a compulsory order for the winding-up of the co. was made :—Held : the sum of £1,954 out of the total sum of £3,000 was "cash paid to the co. at the time of . . . the creation of, & in consideration for, the charge" within Cos. Fifty-four days elapsed after the first advance & five days after the last advance before the issue of the debentures on Jan. 20, 1926. The delay in the issue of the debentures was not acquiesced in by the lenders, who when they sent cheques for the advances wrote that the money was in further payment on account of debentures to be issued as arranged. The co. went into liquidation on Jan. 25, 1926. During the period in which the bulk of the advances were made the lenders were unaware that the co. was on the verge of liquidation. The debentures were issued when the co. was unable to pay its debts :—Held : the debentures were valid, the payments being made "at the time of" the creation of the charge & in consideration for the charge within 1908 Act, s. 212, & consequently the debentures were not a fraudulent preference within 1908 Act, s. 210.—Re STANTON (F. & E.), LTD., [1929] 1 Ch. 180 ; 98 L. sr. "Cash paid."]—Deft. co. was owned by S., who was its managing director. In Feb. 1930, he obtained a loan of £300 from pltfs. for his co. on the security of his own promissory note & also of deft. co.'s debenture for £300, which should have been registered within 21 days, viz., on or before Mar. 13, 1930. As S. was endeavouring to effect a flotation of his co. as a public co., he requested pltfs. not to register the debenture until the last moment, which they agreed to do. On Mar. 13, S. asked for further time, & it was ultimately agreed that in lieu of such registration pltfs. should advance S. £400 on the security of a new promissory note & a debenture for that amount, out of which sum he should forthwith repay the £300 previously borrowed with interest thereon. This was intended to give S. the additional time he required without prejudicing pltfs.' security. In pursuance of this arrangement pltfs. gave S. their own cheque for £400. W., who acted as solr. to both parties, attended with S. at the bank on Mar. 15, when the cheque was presented for payment, & when the latter received the £400 he immediately in pursuance of the agreement handed to W. the sum of £310 in payment of principal & interest on foot of the first loan, which sum the latter immediately lodged to the credit of pltf. co. The debenture for £400 was duly registered. The contemplated flotation did not materialise & the deft. co. went into voluntary liquidation :—Held : under Cos. 4730a. —— Floating charge over part of assets already charged.]—Where a debenture trust deed, creating a general floating charge over all the undertaking & assets of the co. both present & future, reserves power to the co. in the ordinary course of its business to create specific charges over any of those assets, then although a second general floating charge over all the property comprised in the first charge but ranking pari passu with or in priority to that charge, is, under the general law, incompatible with the first charge & ranks subject to it, yet there is no principle of law which forbids the creation of a second floating charge over part only of those assets ranking pari passu with, or in priority to, the earlier floating charge, so long as the later floating charge is within the limits of the power reserved.

A debenture trust deed created a general floating charge over all its undertaking & assets both present & future, but reserved to the co. power to create in priority to that charge such mtges. or charges as the co. should think proper " by the deposit of any dock warrants, bills of lading, or other similar commercial documents, or upon any raw materials, or finished or partly finished products & stock for the purpose of raising money in the ordinary course of the business of the co." In pursuance of the power & in the course & for the purposes of its business, the co. raised £12,000 & secured payment thereof by charging all the before-mentioned documents, materials & stock, both present & future, by way of a floating security to rank in priority to the floating charge created by the trust deed:—Held: the power reserved to the co., except as to subject-matter & purpose, was unlimited; it enabled the co. to choose the form of a floating charge, if required, & the second charge was valid & entitled to priority over the first charge.—Re AUTOMATIC BOTTLE MAKERS, OSBORNE v. AUTOMATIC BOTTLE MAKERS, [1926] Ch. 412; 95 L. 4739a. —— ——.]—By a lump sum building contract entered into in 1922 between S. & Co., the contractors, & defts., provision was made for interim payments on the architect's certificates, to be given monthly at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of all work executed. The remaining 10 per cent., the retention moneys, was to be retained & deposited in a bank until the final adjustment of accounts. The contract was varied by consent, & in the events which happened the retention moneys amounted to £1,000 at the beginning of 1924; this was never deposited in a bank & remained a merely notional fund, but both parties treated it as a separate sum capable of being earmarked. It was included, without distinction, in the architect's final certificate for £1,848 10*s.* 2*d.* on Jan. 28, 1927. Meanwhile, pltfs., who were supplying cement to the contractors, found that the latter were getting into arrears with their payments, & to obtain further credit the contractors, being then indebted to pltfs. in the sum of £671 on Apr. 7, 1924, assigned to them the retention moneys by a document in these terms: " In reduction of the amount now or to be owing from us to you for goods supplied by you, we hereby assign to you all moneys now or hereafter to become due to us from the H.R.D.C. for retention moneys in respect of the G. Housing Scheme, & for which your receipt shall be a sufficient discharge. . . ." Of that assignment due notice was given by pltfs. to defts. next day. The contractors had at various dates between 1900 & Feb. 2, 1924, issued to the Manchester & County Bank, Ltd., a number of debentures charging the undertaking of the contractors & all their property, both present & future, the charge being a specific charge on the contractors' freehold & leasehold property, machinery, goodwill, & uncalled capital, & a floating charge on all the co.'s other assets, subject to a proviso that the contractors were not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge for any of their assets in priority to the debentures. On Oct. 13, 1924, a receiver for the debenture-holders was appointed, who duly entered into possession. On Oct. 20, 1924, a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding-up of the co. The receiver refused to recognise the right of pltfs. to payment under their assignment in priority to the debenture-holders, & on the architect's final certificate being given, in Jan. 1927, defts. declined to interplead & paid the retention moneys to the receiver for the debenture holders, & pltfs. thereupon brought their action upon their assignment:—Held: (1) the debentures only created a floating charge on the retention moneys, which the contractors could therefore assign or charge in spite of the clause in the debentures prohibiting the creation of charges in priority to the debentures; (2) pltfs. had no express notice of that clause in the debentures; (3) though the registration of the debentures affect pltfs. with constructive notice that debentures existed, it did not affect them with notice of the terms, including the limitation on prior charges, of those debentures.—EARLE (G. & T.), LTD. v. HEMSWORTH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL (1928), 44 T. 4785a. —— Validity—Charge given as compensation for loss of management share.]—By an agreement dated Sept. 28, 1925, after a recital that a management share of £1 of the T. Co. had been allotted to the S. Co. as manager of the T. Co. it was agreed that the S. Co. should be entitled to act as manager during the T. Co.'s operation of a certain undertaking & to receive in respect of each financial period of the T. Co. 50 per cent. of its net profits. The management share entitled the S. Co. to a majority of the voting power of the shareholders at any meeting & to a share of the surplus assets of the T. Co. in a winding-up after payment off of the preference share capital. In 1933 the rights of the management share were varied, & it became known as a reversionary share. The T. Co. having become desirous of putting an end to the management of the S. Co., a draft agreement had been prepared terminating the management in consideration of the payment to the S. Co. of £100,000 to be raised by the T. Co. by the issue of debenture stock. Incidentally the reversionary share was to be converted into an ordinary share. On the application of a shareholder of the T. Co. to test the legality of the proposed agreement:—Held: it was not ultra vires the T. Co. to enter into the proposed agreement. —— —— Due registration — Particulars of property charged insufficiently entered.]—A co. with the object of securing payment of the overdraft at pltf. bank "demised" to the bank a certain leasehold factory with all the movable "plant used in or about the premises" for a term of about 996 years. The bank sent the indenture to the registrar of companies for registration under 1098 Act, s. 93. In the particulars required to be filed pursuant to that sect. the instrument was described as a mtge. of the leasehold premises, no mention being made of the chattels. The registrar entered the description of the instrument in the register in similar terms, identifying it by its date, & omitting all mention of any charge on the chattels. Subsequently the sheriff, in execution of a judgment recovered by deft. against the co., seized certain chattels of the co. upon the mortgaged premises, including certain motor vans. The bank claimed the goods in question under their mtge., & obtained from the registrar a certificate "that a mtge. or charge dated "—specifying the date & the parties to the instrument—"was registered pursuant to Cos. On an interpleader issue to try the title of the bank as against the execution creditor :—Held : as the certificate identified the instrument of charge, & stated that the mtge. or charge thereby created had been duly registered, it must be understood as certifying the due registration of all the charges created by the instrument, including that of the chattels, & it was conclusive evidence of the due registration of the chattels none the less because the register in omitting to mention them was not merely defective but misleading.—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL & UNION BANK OF ENGLAND v. CHARNLEY, [1924] 1 K. 4944a. Assignment of goods to discount company—Financing hire-purchase agreements.]—A co. carried on a furniture business largely by means of hire-purchase agreements, & in order to provide the capital for the purpose entered into a series of agreements with a discount co. by which they assigned to a discount co. the goods comprised in the hire-purchase agreements subject to & with the benefit of the hire-purchase agreements on an immediate payment of 75 per cent. of the total purchase price, which was the same as that payable by the hirer if he continued payments of hire long enough to become the purchaser. From that 75 per cent. there was, however, deducted a percentage called the finance charge, which represented the discount co.'s profit. The balance of 25 per cent. of the purchase price was retained by the vendor co. out of the payments made by the hirer, 75 per cent. of such payments being secured collaterally to the discount co. by the issue of a series of bills of exchange which were equal in number to the instalments payable by the hirer & which were accepted by the vendors. The agreements with the discount co. provided that no notice thereof was to be given to the hirer, so long as there was no breach of the hire-purchase agreement. It subcontracted with another firm B. to do some of the work. A. fell into financial difficulty & gave B. an authority addressed to the L.C.C. to pay B. a named sum against the chief engineer's next certificate. The L.C.C. took interpleader proceedings against B. & the receiver of A., appointed by the debenture holder after the authority was given, & the Div. Ct. ordered the sum to be paid to B. The receiver appealed on the ground : (i) that the authority was a charge on the book debts of a co. &, not having been registered under 1929 Act, s. 79, was invalid ; (ii) that he ought to have credit for the expense he incurred in completing the work that was to have been done by B. : —Held : (1) the authority was an absolute equitable assignment & not a charge within 1929 Act, s. 79 ; (2) the receiver could not by any subsequent conduct alter the nature of the authority or the subcontractor's rights under it, & his remedy in respect of the expense incurred if any was by action for breach of contract.—ASHBY, WARNER & CO., LTD. v. SIMMONS, [1936] 2 All E. 4982a. —— Claim believed invalid—Notice to debenture holder—Duty to refund.]—A sole debenture holder appointed a receiver. The latter proceeded to realise the assets of the co., & paid four sums of £25, £50, £10 & £10 respectively to an agent of the debenture holder. Between the time of the first & second payment the receiver received a claim for rates in respect of certain premises occupied by the co. The receiver till then had been quite unaware that the co. had occupied these premises & he therefore inquired of the managing director of the co. & the agent of the debenture holder whether the claim was valid. Both assured him it was not. He therefore made the second payment but the claim being repeated, he stopped the cheque sent in payment & made further inquiries of the agent of the debenture holder. He was again assured that the claim was invalid but he only allowed the cheque to be paid upon the agent giving an indemnity. Ultimately the local authority sued the receiver for the amount of the rates & he joined the agent & the debenture holder as third parties. The claim of the local authority was subsequently admitted, & the action proceeded as to the liabilities of the third parties to the receiver. For the third parties it was contended that the receiver in making payments to the debenture holder without first satisfying that claim for rates had acted in contravention of 1929 Act, s. 78, & was therefore setting up his own wrong & basing his claim on his own contravention of a statute :—Held : (1) the payment to the debenture holder was not per se an illegal act but only illegal in certain circumstances, & as the agent had misrepresented the facts & induced the receiver to believe he was acting quite legally the defence of illegality failed ; (2) the agent was liable upon the indemnity to repay the receiver the amount he had paid in respect of the claim & costs ; (3) the debenture holder was liable to refund to the receiver the payments made after she had notice of the claim for rates ; (4) notice to the agent was notice to the debenture holder & the latter must therefore refund the last three payments ; (5) the receiver could not receive from the agent & the debenture holder a greater sum than the total amount he had paid in respect of the claim & costs.—WESTMINSTER CITY COUNCIL v. TREBY, [1936] 2 All E. 4982d. Preferential payment of rates—Increase in rates after taking possession by receiver.]—Where in the assessment of property relief has been claimed & in the first instance allowed in the valuation list under the derating provisions of the Local Government Act, 1929 (c. 17), but subsequently disallowed, the resulting change in the amount of a rate payable in respect of that property takes effect as from the date of the making of the rate, as if the change had been caused by a proposal for the amendment of the rateable value. Consequently, where a receiver for debenture holders has taken possession of the property of the co. which issued the debentures, an increase in the amount of the rates due at the date of taking possession, which increase has been subsequently ascertained by reason of such an alteration in the assessment, is payable by the receiver as a preferential debt.—Re AIREDALE GARAGE CO., ANGLO-SOUTH AMERICAN BANK v. AIREDALE GARAGE CO., [1933] Ch. 64; 101 L. On Oct. 31, 1927, the receiver in a debenture-holders' action entered into a conditional contract to sell land & cottages included in the debentures. The contract provided that the purchase should be completed on or before Dec. 31, 1927. By clause 14 it was provided that the contract was subject to its being approved & sanctioned by the ct., & in the event of its not being so approved it was to become void, & the purchasers were to be entitled to be repaid their deposit. The receiver took no effective steps to obtain the sanction of the ct., & on Jan. 10, 1928, the purchasers' solrs. wrote to the debenture-holders' solrs. repudiating the contract & demanding the return of the deposit money under clause 14. 5042a. Breach of price maintenance agreement.]—By certain agreements between pltfs., manufacturers of radio sets, & defts., wholesale dealers in such radio sets, it was agreed that the retail prices of the radio sets should be maintained at prices fixed by pltfs. The order form provided that the wholesalers were to be compensated for any loss that might occur through any alteration of list prices by pltfs., & that if a receiver should be appointed or pltfs. should go into liquidation, defts. should have the right to return any of the goods which they might have in stock. On Oct. 5, 1934, a receiver for the debenture holders of pltfs. was appointed & the appointment was notified to defts. on the same day. On the same day a large number of radio sets was invoiced to defts. On Oct. 9 defts. were informed that business was being carried on & that the co.'s policy of price maintenance was unaffected. Defts. thereupon ordered further goods from the receiver. On Nov. 3, 1934, a creditor presented a petition for winding up pltf. co.,

& on Nov. 20 the receiver stopped manufacture, no further goods being ordered by the wholesalers after that date. The receiver proceeded to negotiate for the sale of pltfs.' business, & on Nov. 30, 1934, an offer to purchase a large number of sets was accepted, the receiver imposing no conditions as to price maintenance. On Dec. 3 an order was made for winding up the co. & a provisional liquidator appointed, & on the same day possession of the stock was given by the receiver's agent to the purchasers, with the result that a large number of radio sets was put on the market at prices much below the list prices. Defts. wrote to the receiver referring to their right to return the goods, but no arrangement for their actual return was made. The liquidator then brought an action for the balance due on the radio sets delivered to defts., who counterclaimed damages for breach of contract, contending that the receiver had broken his contract to maintain prices. Pltfs. contended that, assuming there was such a contract between the receiver & the wholesalers, there was no breach before the winding up order on Dec. 3, & that after that date the receiver had no authority to bind the co., & that therefore the counterclaim could not be set off. The wholesalers contended alternatively that the liquidator was guilty of breach of contract in refusing or not accepting the return of the sets :—Held : (1) the agreement for the sale of pltfs.' business on Nov. 30, 1934, constituted a breach of the receiver's agreement to maintain prices ; (2) alternatively the liquidator ought to have accepted the return of the goods, as at the date of his appointment the wholesalers were entitled to return them.—TELSEN ELECTRIC CO., LTD. v. EASTICK & SONS, [1936] 3 All E. 5120a. Conduct of action—To whom given—Independent party—When desirable.]—The conduct of a debenture holder's action begun by a person whose transactions with the co. the ct. considers to require investigation, or whose interests are shown to be adverse to those of the remaining debenture holders, may be given by the ct. to an independent party.

One of the objects of the co. was to buy & let premises for use as flats & clubs. Its first directors were pltf. & his nominee, but it was in substance a "one man" co. with pltf. as managing director. It granted leases of certain premises to the S. syndicate, of which the directors were pltf. & the same nominee. The co. agreed to pay a yearly salary to pltf. & guaranteed the issue of debentures by the syndicate. The syndicate soon failed to pay rent, but pltf. took no steps either to enforce payment or forfeit the leases: &, although the co. was carrying on business at a loss, he bought a quantity of furniture with its money on its behalf. The syndicate issued debentures, pltf. becoming the holder of a number of them, & also holding debentures issued by the co. Later, a receiver & manager of the property of the syndicate charged by the debentures was appointed, & pltf. began a debenture holder's action against the co., subsequently selling the furniture which he had bought & the leasehold premises at a loss. Ultimately, he resigned his directorship: & this summons asked that the conduct of the proceedings should be vested in appct., another debenture holder, on the ground that pltf. against whom gross negligence was alleged, had an interest adverse to that of the remaining debenture holders:—Held : as the transactions of pltf. with the co. had never been investigated, & as it had so far been impossible to investigate them, it was desirable that the conduct of the action should be given to an independent person.—Re SERVICES CLUB ESTATE SYNDICATE, LTD., MCCANDLISH v. THE COMPANY, [1930] 1 Ch. 78; 99 L. 5184b. —— To enforce rights under Landlord & Tenant Act, 1927 (c. 36), s. 5.]—A co. was the lessee of certain premises under a lease expiring on June 24, 1930. In 1925 the co. issued a debenture by which it charged all its undertaking & all its property, present & future, including its uncalled capital in favour of the debenture holders. On Apr. 22, 1929, the co. gave notice to the landlords under above sect., requiring them to grant to it a new lease of the premises. In July, 1929, the debenture holders in exercise of the power on that behalf in the debenture appointed a receiver of the property & assets therein comprised. The landlords having failed to comply with the co.'s request for the grant of a new lease the receiver on Sept. 23. 1929, commenced an action in the county court in the name of the co. to obtain the grant of a new lease. On Oct. 15 a compulsory order was made to wind up the co. & a liquidator was appointed: —Held : the right to apply for a renewal of the lease under above sect. was a right given by the co. to the debenture holders as part of their security, & the receiver was entitled to enforce that right notwithstanding the liquidation of the co.—GOUGH'S GARAGES, LTD. v. PUGSLEY, [1930] 1 K. By his will C. C. appointed his three younger sons, who were employed in the business but were not members of the co., exors. thereof & bequeathed his 5,000 shares equally between them.

The arts. of the co. provided that the directors might in their absolute discretion refuse to register any transfer of shares, & without assigning any reason for such refusal, & that this power should extend to the registration of the personal representatives of a deceased shareholder. 6056c. —— —— Liquidation after Act.]—On Sept. 21, 1925, a policy of insurance was taken out by a co. insuring it against third-party risks. On Oct. 6, 1925, an accident to a third party occurred & the insurers thereupon became liable to the co. in respect of the accident. On July 10, 1930, Third Parties (Rights against Insurers) Act, 1930 (c. 25), came into operation. On Oct. 13, 1931, an order was made for the compulsory winding up of the co. On a summons taken out by the third party in the winding up of the co. asking to be subrogated to the rights of the co. against the insurers :—Held : the winding up of the co. having supervened after the Act of 1930 came into operation, sect. 1 of that Act became operative & enured to transfer the benefit of the policy of insurance from the co. to the third party.—

6195a. Particulars—In respect of what matters ordered.]—In a misfeasance summons by the liquidator of a co. against two directors it was alleged in the points of claim that certain dividends were paid wholly out of the capital of the co. & not out of profits, & that there were in fact no profits of the co. out of which the dividends could properly & lawfully have been paid. The directors asked for an order for further & better particulars of the facts relied upon in support of these allegations, contending that under R. S. C., Ord. 19, r. 6, the fullest particulars are necessary where a breach of trust is alleged :—Held : the fact that the dividends were paid wholly out of capital was a material fact within R. S. C., Ord. 19, r. 4, & the fact upon which the liquidator relied. The liquidator ought not to be ordered to give particulars of that fact, as to give any further particulars would be merely to disclose the evidence by which it was intended to be proved.—Re DEPENDABLE UPHOLSTERY, LTD., [1936] 3 All E. 6198a. Duty to give notice of intention to call witness.]—Two misfeasance summonses were called on for hearing together, appct. on each being the liquidator of the same co. It was stated that the liquidator desired to call a witness who had not made any affidavit in the proceedings, & that he had subpœnaed that witness, but had not given to resps. to either summons notice of his intention to call him. It was stated that resps. did not object to his being called. MAUGHAM, J., in allowing the witness to be called, said that misfeasance summonses were rather peculiar methods of procedure. They were summary proceedings, & brought out matters of great importance. An appct. on a misfeasance summons ought to give notice to resps. of intention to call a witness who had made no affidavit in the proceedings. Misfeasance summonses ought to be conducted with complete fairness to resps.—PRACTICE NOTE, [1933] W. N. 284.

6217a. —— —— ——.]—In the winding-up of a co., A. was placed on the list of contributories as the holder of 994 fully paid shares of £1 each out of a total capital of 1,000 shares. A. was assessed by the Comrs. under the powers given to them under Finance Act, 1922 (c. 17), s. 21, to the amount of £2,069 as his share of the profits of the co. during two assessing periods before the winding-up. On Oct. 18, 1929, a notice of assessment under the Income Tax Acts was given by the Special Comrs. of Income Tax. It was addressed to A. in the name of the co. (in liquidation). It was an assessment to super-tax of £568 19*s.* 6*d.* in respect of the £2,069. The notice contained the words :

On Nov. 30, the sum of £9,070 5*s*. was paid to A. in respect of his share of the surplus assets of the co. by the liquidator. The Comrs made an application under Cos. Act, 1908 (c. 69), s. 165, asking for an order that A. might be ordered to refund to the co. or the liquidator the sum of £568 19*s*. 6*d*. out of the £9,070 5*s*., & that that sum, being the amount of super-tax which had been assessed upon the co. under Finance Act, 1922 (c. 17), s. 21, as amended by Finance Act, 1927 (c. 10), s. 31, might be paid out of the moneys so refunded. A. disputed both the jurisdiction of the ct. & the propriety, if there were a jurisdiction, of making the order, or any part of the order, asked for :—Held : A. had properly been put upon the list of contributories, notwithstanding the definition of " contributory " in Cos. These shares being held at the date of winding-up by another co., also in liquidation & insolvent, the liquidator of the insurance co, made two calls, the first of 1*s*. a share in 1925. & the second, described as a " final call," of 1*s*. 6*d*. a share in 1927, on the B. contributories who held the shares before they had been transferred to the insolvent co. The proceeds of these calls, together with the other assets of the co., were insufficient to pay all its creditors in full, but, apart from the other assets, exceeded by some £10,000 the total amount of the debts & liabilities of the co. contracted at the date when the B. contributories ceased to be members of the co. :—Held : the surplus did not form part of the assets of the co., but must be refunded to the B. contributories. 6384a. Proof by holder against drawer—Dissolution of drawer before maturity—Limitation of action.]—In Oct. 1915, in order to rehabilitate Russian credit in London, an arrangement was made by the Bank of England, with the authority of the Treasury, under which approved Russian banks were to draw three months' sterling bills & remit them through the Banque de l'Etat, Petrograd, to London for acceptance by certain banks & accepting houses, who agreed to renew the bills until one year after the termination of the War, the Banque de l'Etat undertaking to provide to meet the acceptances on maturity. Imperial Russian Treasury Bills to the amount of the acceptances were to be lodged with the Bank of England as collateral security. No accepting house was to be liable for more than £100,000, unless otherwise agreed. In pursuance of this arrangement the Russio-Asiatic Bank in 1916 drew 151 bills of exchange on twenty-one accepting houses maturing in Feb. & Mar. 1918, which were presented through Baring Bros. & Co. as agents for the Banque de l'Etat & accepted by the banks & financial houses under a form of agreement with the Banque de l'Etat which carried out the above arrangement more completely; & authorised the issue by the Treasury of sterling Treasury Bills of the Imperial Russian Govt. to the amount of the acceptances to cover any default in payment on maturity. In Jan. 1918, shortly before maturity, all the acceptances were assigned to the Bank of England in consideration of the issue of Exchequer bonds to the accepting houses to the amount thereof. Notice of the assignment was despatched by the Bank of England to the Russo-Asiatic Bank in Petrograd, but according to the evidence never reached its destination in consequence of the Bolshevist revolution in Russia. By a decree issued by the Soviet Govt. in Dec. 1917, all private banks in Russia were abolished & the whole of their assets transferred to a State bank. The Russo-Asiatic Bank, whose head office was in Petrograd, was one of the banks so abolished. Its London branch was opened in 1908 & was ordered to be wound up by the ct. in 1926, under 1929 Act, s. 338. The Bank of England, on behalf of the Crown, lodged a proof of debt in the liquidation for £752,500, proceeds of the above named bills. The liquidator rejected the proof of the Bank of 6357 ii. —— ——.]—In Oct. 1907, R., J., I., G., & H., five directors of C. & Co., Ltd., entered into agreements under which they became employees of the co., each receiving a salary & one-fifth of the net profits. The agreements were to remain in force for ten years, unless terminated as therein provided. R., being unable to attend to the business of the co., entered into a new agreement dated June 14, 1911, whereby his prior agreement was annulled, & it was agreed that he & his personal representatives should continue to be paid one-fifth of the net profits, so long as he or they retained the share interest in the capital of the co., which he then held, in one undivided holding. The agreements with the other directors were not cancelled, but, by supplemental agreements, it was provided that if they gave up their employment with the co. they also would continue to receive their respective one-fifth shares of the net profits, so long as their respective shares in the co. were retained in one holding. H. died in 1913; G. in 1914; R. in 1919. In 1920 £3,000 was appropriated in respect of directors' shares of the net profits, payable under their agreements, & was placed to the credit of a directors' remuneration account. This sum was subsequently divided into five sums of £600 & placed to the credit of their respective deposit accounts with the co. The co. had power under its arts. of assocn. to fix the remuneration of directors, & in pursuance of a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the co. on June 11, 1920, a sum of £3,500 was placed at the disposal of the managing directors, then J. & I., & two others, as a bonus for the year 1919-20. Of this sum £1,300 was allotted to J. & I. respectively. These amounts were not paid out, but were retained by the co. & placed to the credit of their deposit accounts in 1925. The co. having become insolvent, went into voluntary liquidation, & up to that time the five sums of £600 & the two sums of £1,300 had not been paid to the persons who claimed them:—Held: (1) the sums of £600 claimed by the personal representatives of H., G., & R., were sums due to members of the co. in their character of members by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, within Cos. Act, 1908, s. 123 (1) (vii), & accordingly the persons claiming these sums were not entitled to compete with the ordinary creditors of the co. in respect thereof; (2) J. & I., having continued their employment with the co. until after June 11, 1920, the sums of £600 claimed on their behalf were payable to them under their contracts of employment, & not in their character of members of the co., & so did not come within Cos. Act, 1908, s. 123 (1) (vii); (3) the sums of £1,300 due to I., & to the personal representatives of J., were sums given to them, not by agreement, but under the arts. of assocn., & so were not payable to them in their character of members within Cos. Act, 1908, s. 123 (1) (vii).—Re CINNAMOND PARK & CO., LTD., [1930] N. I. 47.—IR.

England on several grounds, the most important being that the claim was barred by the Statutes of Limitation :—Held : (1) the bills had been assigned to the Bank of England with the authority & on behalf of the Crown, & had passed to the bank an equitable title to all the rights under the agreements made with the acceptors, including the right of action for breach of contract, if the bills were not paid at maturity ; (2) the obligation being to pay in sterling in London at maturity the debt was located in England & not in Russia, & therefore English law must be applied ; (3) the Russian Imperial Treasury bills were only a collateral security & being of no value at any material time were not a discharge of the debt ; (4) on the evidence of experts & documents, the Russo-Asiatic Bank ceased to have any corporate existence in Russia as the result of decrees of the Soviet Govt. made on or before Jan. 26, 1918, a date before the bills matured, & as from that date there was no debtor who could be sued. The Statute of Limitations therefore was no defence to the application, & the Bank of England was entitled to be admitted to prove for the debt in the winding up of the London branch of resp. bank. There being no evidence, however, that notice of the assignment had reached the drawers, the assignors must be joined in the application.—Re RUSSO-ASIATIC BANK, Re RUSSIAN BANK FOR FOREIGN TRADE, [1934] Ch. 720 ; 103 L. Under the trust deed, entered into by the society with trustees for the stockholders, an amount equal to 7½ per cent. on the par value of the stock was to be paid to the trustees, for apportionment to the interest & to a fund for the bonus. At the date of an order for the winding up of the society, most of the stockholders had received payment in full of interest at 7 per cent. on the amount of loan stock issued, up to & including a date seven months before the order. The trustees lodged with the liquidator a proof stated to be for cash advanced on loan ; & this summons asked (i) whether the proof should be rejected to the extent of interest proved for above 7½ per cent. up to the date of the commencement of the winding up ; (ii) whether interest should be calculated, at 5 per cent., to the date of the order or to the commencement of the winding up ; & (iii) whether Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 66 (2) (b), had any application to proof or dividend in respect of the loan stock :—Held : (1) the amounts proved for by the trustees were to be computed only to the date of the commencement of the winding up ; (2) Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 66, was not incorporated by 1908 Act, s. 207, so as to apply in the winding up of an insolvent co., & that the trustees' proof was therefore calculable at the rate of 7½ per cent.—Re AGRICULTURAL WHOLESALE SOCIETY, [1929] 2 Ch. 261 ; 98 L. 6457a. Lump sum compensation payable to workman—" Rights capable of being transferred."] —An injured workman received weekly payments of compensation from his employer, who was a limited co. insured with a mutual indemnity co., until the date of commencement of winding it up. The indemnity co. was only liable under its contract of insurance to indemnify the employer for six weeks after it commenced to be wound up, & accordingly only paid compensation to the workman for a further six weeks, when its liability to the employer under the contract ceased. The workman took out a summons in the winding-up of the employing co. claiming to all other debts for the lump sum for which, at the commencement of the winding-up his weekly payments could have been redeemed to the extent to which the liability of the insurers to the workman was less than the liability of the co. to the workman. He claimed that that was the combined effect of sect. 264 of Cos. Act, 1929 (c. 23), & sect. 7 of Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925 (c. 84). The contract between the indemnity co. & the employer was such as was mentioned in sect. 7 of 1925 Act, though the rights of the employers capable of being transferred to & vested in the appct. were in fact less than his rights against his employers, in other words, his employer was not fully insured. Sect. 264 of Cos. Act, 1929 (c. 23), provides for compensation to be paid in priority, unless there is a contract with insurers under which by virtue of sect. 7 of 1925 Act there are rights capable of being transferred to the workman :—Held : in view of the fact that there were " rights capable of being transferred " within sect. 264 (1) (d) of Cos. The liquidator issued a summons to have it determined whether the claims should be allowed & the judge made an order for an inquiry into the amount of damage sustained & that the claimant be permitted to prove for the sum so ascertained. The damages were so ascertained by the registrar & a proof carried in. The co. was ultimately found to be solvent, & the solr. claimed to prove in the liquidation for the balance of his bill of costs, being solr. & client costs incurred upon the instructions of the co. & its directors in opposing the petition. The liquidator rejected the proof on the ground that the amount claimed represented costs already taxed off the bill, & the registrar upheld his decision on the ground that there was no right of proof for any costs beyond the taxed costs of the petition under r. 192 of the Winding-up Rules, 1929 :—Held : the solr. was entitled to prove for any unpaid balance of costs due to him from the co., there being nothing to the contrary contained or implied in r. 192, which was concerned with the priorities of different sets of costs incurred in winding up. 6746b. Withdrawal of opposition—To motion for extension of time for registration of charge.]—The debtor co. of which applt. became the liquidator, deposited with resp. Trust title deeds of certain property to secure a sum of money owing by it to the Trust, agreeing to execute any necessary deed in respect of the property charged. The Trust did not register the charge within the prescribed time, & ten months afterwards applied to the Chancery Div. under 1929 Act, sect. 85, for an extension of the time for registration on the ground of inadvertence. The co., at the time of that application, was unable to pay its debts, & counsel were briefed on behalf of the co. to oppose the application for extension of time, but before the hearing of the application the instructions to oppose were withdrawn, an order was made for an extension of the time, & the charge was registered. An order for the compulsory winding up of the co. was made shortly afterwards, & the liquidator issued a summons in the winding up claiming that the withdrawal of the opposition of the co. was the suffering by it of a judicial proceeding with a view of giving a creditor a preference, & therefore must be deemed fraudulent & void as against the liquidator, having regard to the provisions in Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 44, & 1929 Act, sect. 265. W., who gave instructions for the withdrawal of the opposition by the co., was a director of the co. & managing director of the Trust:—Held: the onus was on the liquidator to satisfy the ct. that the dominant intention of the co. in withdrawing its opposition to the application for an extension of time was to prefer resps. &, there being no direct evidence of such an intention, an intent to prefer could not be inferred.—PEAT (SIR WILLIAM HENRY) v. GRESHAM TRUST, LTD., [1934] A. 6756a. Order made without jurisdiction.]—By the rules of a mutual marine insurance assocn., which was not registered under the Companies Act, it was provided that all persons who effected an insurance with the assocn. should be members. No ship was to be insured for more than three-fourths of its value, the person insuring paid a deposit of 25*s.* per cent. on the amount of the insurance, & in case of the total loss of a vessel, the members were to pay the loser the amount for which he had insured it rateably, according to the amounts assured to them respectively. The assocn. consisted of more than twenty members. A vessel insured by R. was lost, & the amount of the loss was referred to arbitration. R. assigned his claim to his bankers, who obtained judgment in R.'s name on the award, &, not obtaining payment, presented a petition to wind up the assocn., the petition stating that the assocn. consisted of more than seven members, but not stating that it consisted of more than twenty. The petition was served at the abandoned office of the assocn. which had ceased to carry on business, & the proper advertisements were issued. On May 28, 1880, a winding-up order was made, no one appearing to oppose. In Nov. 1881, another member of the assocn. heard, for the first time, of the winding-up order, & within a week applied for leave to appeal against it:—Held: the order having been made by a superior ct. having jurisdiction in winding up, & having authority to decide as to its own competency, must, if the assocn. was one which ought not to be wound up, be treated merely as an erroneous order, & not as an order void for want of jurisdiction, & that the proper manner of getting rid of it was by appeal.—Re PADSTOW TOTAL LOSS & COLLISION ASSURANCE ASSOCN. 6858b. Whether liable for negligence—On wrongful admission of proof.]—The H. Co. entered into an agreement for reinsuring marine risks with the L. Co. Later, it was voluntarily wound up, & B., the liquidator, agreed the L. Co.'s claim for a large sum, & paid dividends in respect of the claim. Following the practice of the co., B., notwithstanding the provisions of Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), & Marine Insurance Act, 1903 (c. 41), treated the agreement & the claim under it as valid. After the dissolution of the H. Co. he was advised that he should have disallowed the claim, & the dissolution was annulled, but an action to recover the money was dismissed, as no mistake of fact by B. was proved. On a misfeasance summons by a creditor of the co. :—Held : (1) a liquidator in the voluntary winding up of a limited co. is not, apart from negligence, liable for wrongly admitting a claim by an alleged creditor; (2) the liquidator did not, in the circumstances, fulfil his duty of investigating the claim of the L. Co., & was therefore liable as for misfeasance under Cos. Act, 1908, s. 215, for admitting the claim of the L. Co. since it was in fact an invalid one; (3) the Arts. of a limited co. cannot amount to a contract between the co. & its liquidator, & he could not therefore rely on an Art. absolving officers of the co. from liability except for fraud; (4) the position of a liquidator examining a proof for admission or rejection in a winding-up is the same as that of a trustee in bkpcy.; (5) in fixing the amount which a person liable for misfeasance under Cos. Act, 1908, s. 215, should be ordered to pay or contribute to the assets of the company, the ct. has a discretion, &, in the special circumstances, the liquidator should be ordered to contribute, by way of compensation, only such a sum as would enable all creditors to be paid in full with interest at 5 per cent.—Re HOME & COLONIAL INSURANCE CO., LTD., [1930] 1 Ch. 102; *sub nom.
